PROBE NRA RULE OF BUSINESS

ROOSEVELT WILL STICK TO PLANS TO RULE DOLLAR

U. S. Chamber Protest to Be Ignored.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Full steam ahead on the President's dollar depreciation program for the lifting of commodity prices. This is President Roosevelt's answer, it was learned tonight, to the resolution of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States representing the organized business of the country, demanding the abandonment of the present monetary experiment and restoration of the gold standard with a fixed dollar value.

The President's reaction to the condemnation of his policy by the business leaders of the country was obtained by administration officials in telephone talks with Warm Springs, where Mr. Roosevelt is sojourning. As a result Acting Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. will proceed with the gold purchase operations designed to depress the gold value of the dollar still farther and to raise prices commensurately.

Brief Halt in Program.

When the bidding up of the price of gold is to be resumed Mr. Morgenthau is to determine, after consultation with Prof. George F. Warren, author of the dollar depreciation and managed currency plan adopted by the President. For five days there has been no increase in the price offered for gold at home and abroad, the price boosting having been halted because of the alarming decline of government bonds below par.

Mr. Roosevelt is represented as being wholly undeterred by the attitude of organized business, as set forth in the chamber of commerce resolution. These business leaders, in his opinion, are "the modern Tories," who, he said in his Savannah speech yesterday, are arrayed in opposition to change.

The President is aiming at recovery through restoration of purchasing power; and purchasing power, he conceives, will be restored through increased returns to producers, particularly of agricultural and other products, the prices of which are made in international trade. Such prices he seeks to raise by cheapening the dollar. He is convinced that the prices of such products are now slowly rising in response to the depreciation of the dollar already effected.

Challenge to Policies.

The national chamber's pronouncement that the President's monetary policy is retarding recovery and endangering maintenance of the country's credit is the most formidable challenge of the new deal recorded up to date. It stirred official Washington as have few declarations of opposition to an administration. There was comment on every side that it represents the first break between the administration and organized business, a break of ominous significance.

The array of business leaders sponsoring the demand on the President to abandon his monetary policy includes P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company; Redfield Proctor, president of the Vermont Marble company; Paul Shoup, vice president of the Southern Pacific railroad; Chester I. Barnard, president of the New Jersey Bell Telephone company, and Henry I. Harriman, chairman of the board of the New England Power company and president of the chamber.

Among the bankers who helped frame the resolution are Felix M. McWhirter, president of the People's State bank in Indianapolis; Lewis E. Pierson, chairman of the board of the Irving Trust company; William R. Dawes, president of the Central Illinois Securities corporation; W. E. Gepharf, vice president of the First National bank of St. Louis; Thomas R. Preston, president of the Hamilton National bank of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Lyman E. Wakefield, chairman of the First National Bank and Trust company of Minneapolis.

Reaction Is Varied.

The President's characterization of his opponents as "modern Tories" was variously received among those designated. Some fumed, some laughed and none would be quoted except Senator L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.], who said:

"We have had 'chiselers,' and 'hobgoblins,' and 'dead cats,' and now it seems we have a new classification to be known as 'modern Tories.'"

Administration officials say that the President has no thought at this time

SEVEN INJURED IN TROLLEY CRASH ON HALSTED ST.

Seven passengers were injured and a number of others were shaken up when a westbound Lake street trolley car struck a southbound Halsted street car last night. The injured, all of whom were riding on the Halsted street car, were taken to the County hospital. Max Przyborski, 37 years old, 1015 West 32d street, a school janitor, was the most seriously injured. His spine is believed to have been fractured.

The others injured are Melodi Kolonitz, 622 Wellington avenue; William Bazar, 5516 West 64th street; Edward Jenkins, 308 South Green street; Peter Riley, 3721 Parnell avenue; his wife, Catherine, and Mrs. Bernice Jappaport, 3142 South Racine avenue.

Des Plaines street police reported that the motorman of the Lake street car evidently started against the red signal lights. The front of his car crashed into the side rear of the other.

POLICE DISCOVER 3 HUMAN SKULLS IN MAN'S EFFECTS

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 20 [Monday].—(AP)—Three human skulls found in the possession of Nick Lloyd, a truck driver, caused police to start an investigation today.

Lloyd told officers he obtained the skulls from Jack Mellon, a cook, who was also taken into custody for questioning.

Police said Mellon admitted previous possession of the skulls and said he obtained them from a Jack Love in Oakland.

Mellon was quoted by officers, who immediately started a search for Love, as saying he had planned to make an ash tray out of one of the skulls.

Lloyd declared he acquired the skulls from Mellon with other belongings for an unpaid moving bill.

Miami, Fla., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Pilot James Wedell of Patterson, La., claimed an airplane speed record of five hours 1 minute and 39 2-5 seconds between New York and Miami when he landed his low wing monoplane at the Municipal airport here late today.

Negro Bandit Slain by Victim with Own Pistol

An unidentied Negro bandit, about 30 years old, was shot and killed last night by his intended robbery victim, Plez Adams, 35, owner of a barbecue at 3558 South State street. Adams disarmed the man and shot him with his own weapon.

Seize Indiana Outlaw, Pal of Dillinger

Harry Copeland, paroled Indiana convict, identified as one of five outlaws who raided the jail at Lima, O., last month and liberated John Dillinger, Indiana desperado, after killing Sheriff Jess Sarber, was seized by the Chicago police on the far northwest side yesterday.

As a precaution against any attempt to free Copeland, Lieut. Richard Barry early this morning posted machine gun and shotgun squads at the front and rear doors of the police building at 11th and State streets, where the outlaw was held. The machine gunners were placed inside the building, the shotgun men outside. "There won't be any jail delivery here," said Lieut. Barry.

Early this morning the prisoner was taken back to the Indiana penitentiary for violation of parole.

Copeland's arrest was kept secret for several hours. Soon after it was disclosed that he was in custody Prosecutor Ernest Botkin at Lima said he would take immediate steps to have the prisoner returned there to face trial for the Sarber slaying. Dispatches from Lima said that Copeland's picture had been identified by the sheriff's wife and a deputy sheriff as that of one of the gunmen who took part in the killing.

Copeland Denies Charge.

From Copeland himself the Chicago police could get nothing despite hours of questioning. He denied sullenly any knowledge of the Lima raid. He did, however, admit knowing Dillinger.

The possibility that Copeland figured in the sensational escape of Dillinger from a Chicago police trap last Wednesday night was being considered by the authorities. Three Chicago squads and a detail of Indiana state police laid the trap for Dillinger outside a doctor's office at Irving Park boulevard and Keeler avenue.

Dillinger visited the physician as the Indiana authorities had been informed he would, but after emerging from the office he fought a thrilling gun battle with the police and outdistanced them in an automobile chase. He was aided in his escape by a young woman and by a machine gunner concealed in his car. It was the belief of the authorities last night that this machine gunner might have been Copeland.

Seized as He Waves Gun.

Copeland was arrested yesterday because he waved a gun in a dispute with a girl. He was sitting in an automobile with the young woman at North and Harlem avenues. The two quarreled, and Copeland flourished a revolver to emphasize his side. A bystander saw him and telephoned the Cragin police. Policemen Edward McBride and John Ryan arrested Copeland and the girl. Copeland did not resist.

He and the girl were taken to the station, but she was later released. Copeland at first gave his name as John Santon, but his actions aroused the suspicions of Capt. Thomas Duffy and he was taken to the detective bureau. There finger print records identified him as Copeland.

Paroled from Michigan City.

The police said that Copeland was paroled from the Indiana prison at Michigan City last summer about the same time that Dillinger was paroled. Copeland had served a term for robbery.

Dillinger was arrested in Ohio on Sept. 26, the same day that ten convicts escaped from the Michigan City prison. He has been suspected of having had a hand in planning the prison break, though he was arrested in Ohio for bank robbery.

According to the police, several of the escaped convicts took part in the freeing of Dillinger from the Lima jail and he joined with them in committing a number of bank robberies.

Call 6 Police When 600 Lb. Woman Falls from Bed

The services of six policemen were required last night when Mrs. Thelma Ames, 62 years old, fell out of bed in her home at 1033 Lawrence avenue. Mrs. Ames weighs 600 pounds. Three policemen first went there, but found it necessary to call the Town Hall station for reinforcements.

FIRST OF CITY'S IDLE RECEIVE U. S. JOB NOTICES

Police, deputy sheriffs and relief workers acted as emergency letter carriers last night to bring glad tidings to thousands of jobless men that they are to start to work this morning on a five-day week basis under the federal government's civil works program. It is expected that some 62,000 men—25,000 of them Cook county residents—will be put to work in Illinois today. The eventual statewide program will give employment to 137,000 men.

It was a willing and a cheerful task that the emergency postmen performed last night. Their visits, comparable to those of the Good Fellows on Christmas eve, spread joy to many homes.

Where to Report for Work.

The tidings they carried were official notices to the recipients as to where and when the latter should report for work.

Despite previous announcements that individual applications for jobs would be useless, erroneous reports that they would be accepted sent thousands of men to the Illinois Emergency Relief headquarters at 10 South La Salle street yesterday. The result was much confusion and disappointment. Many of the men had spent their last pennies for carfare.

Meanwhile relief headquarters worked at top speed to complete the necessary notices. This done, it was necessary to distribute them in time for the recipients to go to work today. Time being limited, volunteers were called for, and police aid was recruited. Some 400 policemen were busy yesterday on volunteered service distributing the employment notices.

War Veterans Get Jobs.

One special batch of 367 notices for war veterans on the relief rolls was distributed last night by detective squads on orders of Deputy Chief of Detectives William V. Blaul. The business of delivering the notices to the jobless was still going on early this morning.

Only those who are on relief rolls are being put to work today. The 137,000 jobs to be spread eventually throughout the state will be divided evenly between those on relief and the unemployed not on relief. It is hoped to have the quota on relief rolls fully employed by Dec. 1. After Dec. 1 the unemployed not on relief will be given employment.

Cook county's share of the 137,000 jobs in Illinois is 99,260. Of this number 50 per cent, or 49,630, will be assigned from the relief rolls during the period up to Dec. 1. After that 49,630 unemployed not on relief will be cared for.

Announcement to Give Details.

Official announcement as to the arrangements applying to the nonrelief unemployed will be made not later than next Saturday, according to Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois relief commission. This announcement will tell where applications for employment are to be filed.

"It should be clearly understood that no advantage can be gained by trying to file applications before arrangements for their handling have been announced," warned Mr. Dunham. "The announcement will be made in the newspapers.

"The unemployed are urgently requested to be patient, as any effort to file applications at this time only clogs up the machinery which the civil works administration is attempting to establish."

For Relief Roll Clients.

Mr. Dunham particularly emphasized that yesterday's and today's preparations are only for the men and women on relief rolls. It is the primary purpose, he added, to take dependents off the charity lists. And these people, he added, will be reached in proper time by the relief station case workers or other volunteer workers.

Roy C. Jacobson, director of the National Reemployment service in Illinois, is in charge of preparations to put the second half of the Illinois quota to work. Mr. Jacobson asked the civil works administration in Washington whether additional men on the relief rolls might be employed after half the state quota had been filled from that source. He had not received an answer yesterday.

It is believed that the first half of

Lincoln Plea Heard Again at Gettysburg

Gettysburg, Pa., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Seventy years ago today President Lincoln dedicated as a national cemetery and shrine the hills and valleys where a nation had been saved.

Today at the same spot a united nation was called on to preserve "a government of the people, by the people and for the people."

Among those there today was the great-grandson of Lincoln; there also were the grandsons of Grant, the final conqueror of the south; of Meade, who commanded the federal army in Gettysburg's terrible struggle, and of Robert E. Lee, leader of the armies of the south.

Seventy Years Ago.

Seventy years ago Lincoln, the Illinois frontiersman, had come, as President, to pay honor to those who lay buried here after the three days of the hell of Gettysburg, climaxed when Pickett's ranks were broken after the most gallant charge of history, and fell back. There invasion of the north ended.

The rain slanted down under leaden skies; the listeners were silent and sorrowful; mostly they were clad in blue uniforms, for the guns still roared across the Potomac, where the armies were in the death struggle.

The kindly man from the west began slowly.

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. We now are engaged in a great civil war testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure.

We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live.

It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract.

The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced.

It is rather for us to be here dedicate to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain, that this nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth.

Grandson of Grant Speaks.

Col. Ulysses S. Grant, the grandson of General and later President Grant, today pleaded for the reestablishment of the "old fashioned basic principles of honesty, good faith, and loyalty on which the greatness of our country in the past was founded."

Near him were Robert Lincoln Beckwith of Washington, great-grandson of Lincoln; Dr. George Bolling Lee of New York, grandson of Gen. Lee, and George Gordon Meade 3d of Philadelphia, grandson of Gen. George G. Meade.

With them was Mrs. M. O. Smith of Hanover, now 92 years old, the last member of the choir which sang the dirge at the dedicatory exercises of Nov. 19, 1863. Twenty or more civil war veterans and others who attended those exercises were also present on the platform today.

The crowd watched in silence as Dr. Lincoln Caswell of New York, impersonator of the civil war President, stepped forward in black homespun clothing and stovepipe hat. After he had finished his hearers hesitated a moment and then burst into thunderous applause.

Persons who had attended the exercises of 70 years ago recalled the silence that greeted President Lincoln's words on that occasion, leading him to feel that his brief address had been a failure.

TRADE LEADERS FIGHT CONTROL BY COMPULSION

Organize to War on Code Power.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, broadening its attack on the radical policies of the Roosevelt administration, has appointed a committee to study and investigate the NRA.

While no public announcement of the formation of this committee was made, it was learned today that its membership includes Henry I. Harriman of Boston, the present president of the chamber, and three former presidents.

One of the latter is Silas H. Strawn, noted lawyer and member of the Chicago firm of Winston, Strawn & Shaw. He is an active opponent of the administration's money policies, as well as of the attempts of the NRA to control American business.

Leads Fight with Sargent.

Mr. Strawn, with Fred A. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railroad, led the discussion which yesterday caused the chamber to adopt unanimously a sharply worded resolution condemning the President's financial program and demanding a return to sound money principles.

Asked to state his position on the NRA, Mr. Strawn declared that the purpose of the committee of the chamber's board of directors was to consider if it might be practical for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to aid in the better integration of business in this country.

"But we cannot go along with the apparent tendency of the NRA to attempt compulsory enforcement of codes," Mr. Strawn continued. "We do not agree that American business should be sovietized.

"There is not money enough, nor man power enough in the whole country to put a strait-jacket on business." ness."

Others on Committee.

The membership of the new chamber committee on the NRA, in addition to Mr. Harriman and Mr. Strawn, includes David F. Edwards, head of the Saco-Lowell shops in Boston and Maine, who is chairman of the committee; Julius H. Barnes and Lewis E. Pierson of New York City, both former presidents of the chamber; Fred H. Clausen, president of the Van Brunt Manufacturing company of Horicon, Wis., and former president of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' association, and John A. Law, president of the Saxon Mills, Spartanburg, S. C.

The national chamber of commerce has taken an active part in promoting the NRA up to date, President Harriman and other officers asserting that the features of the industrial recovery act which aim at the elimination of unfair competitive practices were worthy and useful.

Some of the directors of the chamber at yesterday's meeting protested, it was learned, against the ballyhoo and boycotting measures adopted by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

Resent Johnson Threats.

They voiced their resentment at his threats to "crack down" on business men who dared to question his power to rule their commercial activities.

Requests have been made of the chamber by Secretary of Commerce Daniel P. Roper, and also by Gerard Swope, former chairman of the NRA industrial advisory board, for the appointment of a chamber committee to sit with and consult the members of Mr. Roper's citizens' planning committee and with the members of the industrial advisory board.

The committee named will act in this capacity in addition to carrying on an independent survey of the results achieved by the NRA thus far and of the possibility of forming strong code authorities to aid in the self-government of industry, as well as to gather evidence for argument against the encroachment of federal policemen over the rights of private business.

For Self-Government.

Hesitating to strike out boldly at the NRA tendency to take control unto itself as it struck out at the President's monetary program, the chamber in a resolution attempted to point out that the original purpose of the industrial recovery act was to permit the majorities of business and industrial groups to administer the codes so as to bring what President Roose velt termed the "chiseling fringe" into line.

"Explicit recognition is given to representative trade associations by the national recovery act," the resolution of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States states. "Upon behalf of their industries they are authorized to submit voluntary codes. When such codes have received the President's approval, the trade association must arrange for effective and uniform application of code provisions.

"That this is the purpose of the law has been emphasized by the President, who has said that 'the organized national trade association becomes the directing authority for the industries it represents,' and that in large measure ultimate success rests upon those who guide and direct these organizations. It necessarily follows that the development of trade associations should be promoted in order that they may the better perform the duties contemplated by the recovery act and set up in each instance an effective agency of the industry to administer its code. This should at all times be the official attitude of everyone acting for the government.

Opposes Official Intervention.

"In the application and administration of a code, the agency of the industry itself should accordingly have every opportunity to consider promptly each difficulty which appears, whether through a complaint inside or outside the industry, or otherwise. The industry's agency should, without official intervention of any kind, be able to deal at once with every situation which arises affecting the industry, whether there be maladjustment or a failure on the part of some member of the industry to comply with code provisions.

"All representations as to the industry in relation to the code should be made directly to the agency of the industry. Charged with disposing of all matters that can be adjusted within the industry, the agency acts with complete knowledge of the observer appointed by the government itself.

"In the orderly administration of a code, it is only the legal penalties and processes provided in the law and abuses obviously harmful to the public or inherently wrong that should have the attention of government authorities."

Makes NRA Inquiry.

Under the rules laid down by Administrator Johnson, complaints that employers are violating the codes are not submitted to the industry code authorities until an investigation has been made by the NRA officials, and unless the administrator himself sees fit to do so, he may institute prosecutions against the accused violators without at any time consulting the code authority at all.

King of Bulgaria Drives Engine, Opens New Line

KARLOVO, Bulgaria, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Speaking from the cab of a locomotive which he drove over a railway linking this rose valley capital with Plovdiv, King Boris today explained to an admiring populace the importance of the new line. The queen and members of the cabinet rode in the coaches. Along the route peasants cheered the monarch, who was wearing overalls.

ENDS LIFE BY HANGING.

The body of a poorly dressed man about 55 years old, apparently a casual, was found yesterday hanging from a rafter in a barn at 159th street and Clifton Park avenue, Tinley Park. There were no identity marks.

ROOSEVELT WILL STICK TO PLANS TO RULE DOLLAR

Protest by U. S. Chamber to Be Ignored.

of a permanent stabilization of the value of the dollar and return to the gold standard. He has no thought of taking this step until the average price level of 1926 shall have been restored. Prices in this country now average about 30 per cent below the 1926 level.

The monetary experts advising the President have counselled him not to be stampeded into premature stabilization. They hold that the continued cheapening of the dollar is bound to promote export of American commodities, the result of which will be to increase commodity prices at home and that to stabilize now would enable the British to depress the pound, take foreign trade away from the United States and reverse any price rise in this country due to depreciation of the American dollar.

Fear Manipulation by British.

The administration feeling is that the British manipulated the exchange value of the dollar to the detriment of the United States between the time England went off gold in 1931 and America went off gold in 1933 and that a repetition of that experience should be avoided.

So it falls out that unless circumstances impel the President to alter his course we shall not have stabilization of the dollar for some time and then it will not be the sort of stabilization the conservatives are thinking of. The gold basis will be restored in a manner of speaking only.

Under the old gold standard the treasury was obligated to pay for a paper dollar 25.8 grains of gold nine-tenths fine. Under the gold standard the President contemplates restoring some time, the treasury will pay a varying number of grains of gold for a paper dollar, varying according to the price level index produced by the statisticians. If the price index goes up the treasury will pay more grains of gold for the paper dollar in order to bring prices down. If the index goes down the treasury will pay fewer grains of gold in order to bring prices up.

Called Rubber Dollar.

This is the managed currency the President aims to establish a medium of exchange the purchasing power of which never varies. Instead of having variable prices and an unvarying dollar we would have virtually unvarying prices and a variable dollar, what opponents of the plan call a rubber dollar.

The program for raising prices through depreciation of the dollar which was to be effected by bidding up the price of gold was adopted by the President against the advice of treasury and federal reserve officials. But he has now cleared the road of opposition and intrusted the administration of the policy to officials who have faith in it.

Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, who says his opposition was confined to the opinion that the gold purchase plan was illegal, but was converted by the attorney general's opinion to the contrary, has gone on an indefinite leave of absence.

Dean G. Acheson, who, as undersecretary of the treasury, was outspoken against the policy in White House conferences, has been eased out of office. His place has been taken by Henry Morgenthau Jr., 42 years old, who is now acting secretary of the treasury and who, though inexperienced in finance, is an ardent champion of the President's monetary policy.

Pupil of Gold Price Fixer.

Mr. Morgenthau was a pupil at Cornell of Prof. Warren, who daily determines the price to be offered for gold at home and abroad. As official adviser of the secretary of the treasury, Prof. Warren supplants Prof. O. W. Sprague, whose pupil Mr. Roosevelt was at Harvard. Prof. Sprague, who thinks the dollar depreciation policy is economically unsound, took his resignation to the President the day after the treasury shapeup but was persuaded by his old pupil to withhold it for a while.

Gov. Eugene Black of the federal reserve board, another opponent of the President's policy, remains in office but not in high favor as a presidential counselor. Another who has fallen from favor as a monetary adviser is Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, who brought about the appointment of Mr. Acheson to the treasury and shares Acheson's monetary views.

Hitherto our Presidents have felt it essential to have at the head of the treasury an important figure in the financial world. But important financial figures are invariably on speaking terms at least with Wall street, a circumstances that disqualifies them in the eyes of Mr. Roosevelt, who dislikes and distrusts Wall street intensely.

That was one reason he chose Mr. Woodin, who is not a financier, though it turned out he was on speaking terms with the house of Morgan, who put him in on the ground floor of speculative sure things.

From the start Mr. Roosevelt has been and apparently intends to continue to be his own secretary of the treasury.

WELLES WILL GO BACK TO CUBA AS U.S. AMBASSADOR

Confers with President at Warm Springs.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The definite statement that Ambassador Sumner Welles would not be withdrawn, but would be returned to his post in Havana, was made today by President Roosevelt following a five hours' conference here with the American envoy to Cuba.

The President's announcement set at rest reports that Mr. Welles was to be replaced. The ambassador's desire to return to duty as head of the state department's Latin American division is well known. His part in encouraging the overthrow of former President Machado, and his overt sympathy with the ousted De Cespedes regime, have stirred up demands for his recall on the part of the present Grau San Martin administration.

Backed By President.

But it was made clear here, albeit unofficially, that the President was firm in his intention not to retire Mr. Welles under fire—or any other American representative, particularly in a situation such as that now existing in Cuba where such an action would certainly be interpreted to be deterimental to American prestige.

Beyond the bare announcement that he and Ambassador Welles had discussed the Cuban situation at length, President Roosevelt had nothing to say concerning the conference. Mr. Welles was equally silent. It was tactily understood that Cuban affairs are in too serious a state, and American policies too delicate, for open discussion.

"At the President's request," the official statement explained, "Ambassador Welles will proceed to Washington tonight to spend the next few days conferring with Acting Secretary of State Phillips before returning to Havana."

The final four words were the significant ones.

No Change in Policy Seen.

There was no indication of any change in the administration's Cuban policy. It was reported that while Ambassador Welles brought word of no imminent crisis in the island, he told the President that no one could predict when and how serious the next outbreak would be. Mr. Welles left by plane for the eighty mile trip to Atlanta, where he boarded an evening train, which will bring him into Washington tomorrow afternoon.

In addition to his talk with Ambassador Welles, the President spent a portion of his day going through a batch of 300 telegrams commenting on his action in recognising Russia. It was announced that except for one extremely caustic criticism, the messages expressed varying degrees of approval. One of the approving ones came from Senator William E. Borah [Rad., Idaho] and another from Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.].

CUBANS SHOW SURPRISE.

HAVANA, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Although Cubans throughout the island showed an absorbed interest in the outcome of the conference in the United States between American Ambassador Sumner Welles and President Roosevelt, news of his impending return tonight brought forth only silence.

President Ramon Grau San Martin said: "Any statement I might make would be premature. I will wait until Welles has visited the state department at Washington and then make my comment."

Col. Fulgencio Batista, head of the Cuban army, said: "I couldn't comment. I am a soldier, not a diplomat."

Eduardo Chibas, student leader and generally considered the spokesman for the student directory as well as the government, said: "I am surprised he is returning. I cannot comment further."

WAGNER AVERS NRA ENDS STRIKES AND AIDS TRADE PEACE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Success in changing labor psychology from insistence upon strikes toward a readiness for arbitration of disputes was claimed today by Senator Wagner, chairman of NRA's labor board in a survey of results obtained by his conciliation agency.

Wagner said the national board alone already had settled more than half of the disputes affecting 300,000 workers, and that the number was being greatly increased by the work of seventeen regional boards thus far established. Particularly significant, he said, was a volume of requests, coming principally from labor, for establishment of new regional boards.

"To get rid of the whole idea of war to the limit and to substitute for it the idea of agreements through mediation was necessary if the recovery program was not to be hamstrung," Wagner said. "The requests for additional regional labor boards show that this change in psychology is taking place."

New York State Public Health Best on Record

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Never before have the people of New York state been so healthy as in the first eight months of this year, according to the records of the state department of health. And of the eight months, last month was the healthiest. The department announced today that only forty-five out of every 5,000 persons died in the state in September, a low death rate equaled only once before—in August, 1933.

Y. W. C. A. REPORTS GREATER DEMAND FOR OFFICE GIRLS

An increased demand for office workers during the last two weeks has been noted in the Y. W. C. A. employment office at 89 East Monroe street, according to Miss Esther Stamats, director. Twice as many calls have been received in that period as during the preceding ten weeks, Miss Stamats said. In October the bureau placed 70 girls in temporary jobs and 32 in permanent jobs.

Demands of the employers indicate, however, that only the most capable of girls are wanted.

7 KILLED, MANY HURT IN SPANISH ELECTION RIOTS

Conservatives Win Over Radical Groups.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, Nov. 19. — Old Spain, which has been in the background since King Alfonso was overthrown, today reasserted itself with dramatic vigor and, backed by the votes of millions of Spain's traditionally conservative women folk, put itself back on the political map.

Seven persons were killed and scores wounded in disorders in scattered sections.

Communists were the chief offenders in the disorders. They shot to death a priest at Gallarta, near Bilbao, stabbing him after their bullets had taken effect. Four other persons were reported slain in Bilbao. The leader of the Catholic Popular Action party was also killed by communist bullets at Seville. An abbot of Nonserrat monastery was shot while driving two nuns to the polls.

Mayor Slain in Riot.

At Torrence, near Valencia, the smashing of ballot boxes by extremists led to rioting in which Mayor Alhucen was killed and his wife and five year old daughter gravely injured.

Police with machine guns occupied the Barcelona postoffice last night. It was reported they were stationed there to forestall possible attacks by anarchists.

Due to the complicated electoral law no definite election results were available tonight, but Republicans and Socialists alike join in conceding an impressive victory to the right, headed by Gil Robles. Some of these victories may, however, be disputed owing to the rule which requires that the winning candidate in each district obtain 40 per cent of the total votes cast.

The elections, therefore, will have to be repeated in at least thirty of the sixty provinces and capitals. In the meantime desperate efforts will be made to persuade the Republicans and Socialists to present a united front.

Government Hangs in Air.

Meanwhile Spain and its governments hangs in midair. The Madrid trade union headquarters, which was optimistically hoisting the red flag of victory tonight, lowered it and again relaxed into pessimism. Excited Socialists demanded a general strike to meet the right menace, but the general desire to await definite results before taking a decision prevailed.

The Socialists claim they won 12 provinces and the right claims 25. Alejandro Lerroux's Radical party claim that victories in the Canary islands and elsewhere will probably enable them to equal or even increase their seats over the last parliament but their hope of leading the field is slight.

Even in left wing Barcelona, President Macia's Catalan party is fighting for its life against the conservative Catalan league and the outcome is doubtful. The Macia party is leading in Lerida and Gerona but at Tarragona the conservatives hold a slight lead.

Fugitive Millionaire Elected.

At Palma, Mallorca, Juan March, Spain's multimillionaire who broke jail and fled to Paris recently, was elected, but Gen. Jose Sanjurjo, leader of last year's monarchist revolt, was unsuccessful at Melilla, according to reports.

On the victorious conservative side comes first the lone monarchist group and then the Agrarian Land Owners, the ultra-Catholic and ultra-conservative party.

Long lines of women lined up before the polling places in many districts and cast their first votes. Most of them wore veils and carried prayer books in their hands. So impatient were Spain's women to cast their votes that at one polling center 200 women and but 30 men had voted at 10 a. m.

Nuns Go to Polls.

One woman, who gave birth to a child last Friday, rolled up to vote, in an ambulance.

Limousines provided by wealthy capitalists carried hundreds of nuns from the seclusion of Madrid's numerous convents to the polling centers. They had a special license to leave the convents from the bishops. Even the communists gave way for these women, strangely dressed in ill fitting clothes borrowed from relatives, and in practically no case did they have to take their turn waiting in line.

Scores of friars likewise laid aside their habits today and many appeared in smartly dressed civilian clothes bent on giving their votes to the Catholic parties. Some priests wore their clerical garments. Socialists and communists gave a hearty cheer for one popular parish priest who stood for an hour and a half awaiting his turn to vote.

Heiress Dies After Fall from Window

Mrs. Anne Elizabeth Whelan Kahn, who died in New York yesterday as result of fall from window, as she appeared with Gilbert Kahn before their divorce. She divorced the son of the banker last January.

ANNE E. W. KAHN, HEIRESS HURT IN FALL, DIES AT 30

Divorcee in Three Story Plunge Sept. 10.

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—After ten weeks of suffering from injuries she received a fall from her third story Park avenue apartment, Mrs. Anne Elizabeth Whelan Kahn, died today at Harbor sanitarium.

Members of the Whelan family were nearby when the 30 year old million dollar heiress, divorced wife of Gilbert H. Kahn, son of Banker Otto H. Kahn, and daughter of Charles A. Whelan, president of United Cigar Stores, passed away.

Death Caused by Fall.

Hospital officials announced that pneumonia was the direct cause of death, but Dr. J. J. Moorhead, who attended the society matron, said in his report to the medical examiners office:

"Ann Kahn died from injuries sustained when she had an accident at her home, Sept. 10, last, when she fell from a window."

Mrs. Kahn's fatal plunge came two weeks after Gilbert H. Kahn, who last February married Sarah Jane, the Broadway dancer, paid a brief and somewhat mysterious call at his first wife's apartment. During the ensuing two weeks Mrs. Kahn was moody and uncommunicative, friends said.

About 11 a. m. the heiress walked to the open third floor window, tottered a moment, and pitched through it. Miss Alice Dyer, a friend staying with her, grabbed Mrs. Kahn's chemise, but the silk garment ripped in twain and the young woman plunged to the sidewalk three stories below. Although painfully injured, the heiress resented the gathering of a crowd and vigorously said:

"Go away, I don't want to be stared at."

She was immediately taken to the sanitarium.

Married in 1924.

The marriage of the tobacco heiress to the international banker's son on Nov. 18, 1924, was one of the most elaborate social events New York City ever has seen.

The couple was considered ideally mated until early in 1932. Then Gilbert Kahn inserted an advertisement in a newspaper announcing his wife no longer was authorized to contract obligations in his name. Last January the heiress journeyed to Reno, Nev., and obtained a divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty. Less than a month later Gilbert married the dancer, Sarah Jane.

Chance Reunites a Father and Son After 34 Years

Thirty-four years ago in Chicago Philip Fischbacher, a construction engineer, quarreled with his wife and they separated. She took their three children.

Fischbacher's engineering work carried him to four continents. For years he sought in vain for his son, Arthur, who was 5 years old when the parents parted, and for Arthur's two younger sisters.

Yesterday the father and his son were reunited in Joliet. They discovered that they had been living a block apart, while the father was superintending the reconstruction of the Citizens brewery in that city. The son, who uses the name of Arthur Fischbacha, has been a teacher of manual arts in Joliet High school for eight years.

Reunited by Newspaper Item.

The son, who is now 39 years old, found his father, now 65, through an item in a Joliet newspaper, which commented on the fact that Fischbacher had eleven children by two marriages and that they had been born in seven countries.

Philip Fischbacher was the younger son of the hereditary ruler of a tiny principality in pre-war Germany, and broke a family tradition by becoming an engineer instead of a soldier. He married his first wife at Kiel, where he worked on the great canal and naval base. Later he went to Bucharest, Rumania, where Arthur was born while his father superintended the building of a street railway.

Two Girls Born in Chicago.

Arthur's two sisters were born in Chicago. When their parents separated, their mother placed Arthur and the girls in the Home for the Friendless and returned to Germany. Her husband sought information about her for years and finally discovered that she had returned to her native land. When he went there in search of her, he found that she had died.

He continued his work as an engineer in various countries of Europe, South America and the orient. He fought in the world war as a captain in the American army, and was wounded in France. The eight children of his second marriage were born in countries where he worked. Some of them live today in South America.

Boy Adopted in Centralia.

Arthur was adopted by a farmer living near Centralia, and later by Dr. C. N. Dunn of that city. The difference of his name from that of his father he explained by the fact that his name was on a label sewn in his clothing when his mother placed him in the orphanage, and that the label had become blurred at one end.

One of his sisters, Antonia, was graduated from the University of Illinois, married, and is living near Kewanee. The other, Maleska, died two years ago.

Father and son will give a party Wednesday evening to celebrate their reunion.

Body of Man Who Vanished Wednesday Found in Lake

The body of Kenneth Bryan, 28 years old, 3309 Herndon avenue, who had been missing since Wednesday, was taken from the lake at the foot of Barry avenue yesterday. The identification was made by Arthur Bryan, his father, who said the young man had been despondent over unemployment.

FINGER PRINTS TRACED IN SPITE OF OPERATION

Police fingerprint experts expressed the belief last night that they could still identify Jack Klutas, alleged kidnap gang leader, even if, as is reported, he has had his fingertips operated upon to frustrate identification through his recorded prints.

The reports stated that a downstate surgeon performed the operation. Several Chicago doctors and criminologists discussed the possibilities of the case, as did police.

"The whorls, loops and arches of a human being's fingers can never be destroyed permanently," said Sergt. Michael J. Hernon and Detective Joseph Gubbins of the detective bureau fingerprint department. "We have had many cases where the fingertips were tampered with, but by the simple method of soaking them in hot water the original prints reappeared."

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, doubted a successful fingertip operation has yet been done. Leonarde Keeler of Northwestern university's crime laboratory, and Dr. Sumner Koch of Northwestern university, said that operation might possibly succeed. Melvin Purvis, head of the local federal bureau of identification, said such practices, if successful, would hamper crime detection seriously.

Two Fight Gun Battle; Both Are Shot to Death

Greenville, S. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Clayton Williams, 35, and Otis Ownes, 33, shot each other to death today in a gun fight at the home of Lem Jones, near Pelzer.

KIDNAP GANG'S VICTIM DIES OF BULLET WOUND

Russell L. Blount, 57 years old, mortgage broker and manager of a currency exchange, died last night in the Roseland Community hospital of a bullet wound inflicted by an unidentified gunman at his home at 1740 West 104th place Thursday night.

The shooting, Blount told the police, was done by a gang which intended to kidnap him for ransom, although the police thought at first that the gang merely intended to take him to his office and make him open the office safe.

Blount, his wife and a daughter were in their home on Thursday night when some one appeared at the front door. Blount opened the door, and after a brief conversation with the caller shouted: "Don't shoot." Blount then fired a vest pocket tear gas gun at the man and ran to the rear door of his home to barricade it. Another gunman was there, however, and fired at Blount, hitting him in the chest. There were three men in the gang. No arrests have been made.

Autoist Is Found Slain in Car; Pistol at His Side

Peter Kubowicz, 39 years old, 2317 Marshall avenue, was found shot to death, apparently a suicide, yesterday in his automobile parked a short distance from his home. There were wounds in his abdomen and head with powder marks showing that they had been fired at close range. A small automatic pistol lay beside him.

GREEK PREMIER SEEKS WAY TO EXTRADITE INSULL

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

ATHENS, Nov. 19.—Premier Tsaldaris has indicated to a delegation of five from the Athens post of the American Legion that he would still be ready to surrender Samuel Insull to the United States authorities, despite the decision of the Greek Supreme court, if he could find legal grounds for doing so.

The American Legion committee asked Tsaldaris to "intervene with every lawful means at his disposal" to effect Insull's surrender. Tsaldaris replied that he had asked the minister of justice to examine all extradition treaties of the United States with other countries to determine what those countries would have done in a similar situation.

CATHOLIC CHURCH SUPPORTS FOES OF NAZI RELIGION

Backs Protestant Pastors in Fight for Bible.

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—(AP)—In the throes of the most bitter religious struggle since the reformation, Germany today witnessed a significant celebration of Martin Luther's birth 450 years ago. The celebration, in honor of the founder of Protestantism, was under the auspices of the new Hitlerite régime and the services took on a marked political character.

The political aspect and the magnitude of the ceremonies, however, were eclipsed by the startling and unprecedented step made by the Roman Catholic church in announcing virtual solidarity with non-Nazi Protestant pastors against the radical factions of the Nazi Christian church.

Sweeps Aside Old Grudges.

The fabric of the church itself was torn asunder last week by a demand of Dr. Reinhold Krause that the Old Testament be discarded and that a militant and heroic Jesus be substituted for the traditional meek and gentle Christ.

Sweeping aside age-old grudges, the Catholic news organ, Germania, covered its front page with an editorial rallying to the support of the beleaguered non-Nazi Protestant ministers and exhorting Catholics to "solemn reflection."

"Belief in Christ—the thing that Protestantism and Catholicism have in common—is at stake," the paper said. "If this is destroyed we Catholics, too, will strike."

Christianity Faces Crisis.

The Germania's editorial reflected the opinion prevalent in religious circles that German Protestantism, and even Christianity, faces the gravest crisis in its history on account of the onslaughts of the radical Nazi Christian movement.

Many non-Nazi pastors from their pulpits today many times referred to "our Catholic brothers."

Sermons in all churches generally reflected the strife that is dividing German Protestant sentiment. Pastors with Nazi leanings glorified Luther's German origin, his patriotic ardor and his "heroism." In other pulpits non-Nazi pastors expatiated his significance to universal Christianity.

The international interest in the troubled German church situation was made manifest in cables sent to Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller from many American ministers, including the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman and the Rev. Samuel McCrea Cavert.

Dodd Addresses Congregation.

These messages expressed "great relief" over Bishop Mueller's statement last week demanding church societies and organizations to "solemnly pledge themselves to the Bible and to the confession of faith."

American Ambassador William E. Dodd told a congregation of Americans that Luther's historical three pamphlets [to German nobility, Babylonian captivity, and the freedom of Christian men] were more constructive and more far reaching in their effects than anything else he wrote.

"When the people of the Netherlands accepted the Lutheran, Zwenglian and Calvinist reforms," said Dodd, "they applied the Lutheran school of ideas.

"The result was an educational system which New Englanders adopted 100 years later and a new literary and artistic life that sprang up in Holland, which has rarely been equaled."

Nazi Leader Speaks.

The day's exercises began with a radio address by the Rev. Joachim Hossenfelder, bishop of Brandenburg and leader of the Nazi German Christians, who said the church must not aspire to occupy a sphere of power beside that of the state.

"It must not be a church triumphant," he said, "but it must be the first and the most faithful servant of the third reich."

Referring to the attack that Dr. Krause made against the Old Testament, the Germania's editorial charged that it was "only the beginning of a campaign."

"This fight is not an internal Protestant matter," the editorial continued. "We Catholics cannot afford to sit coolly or gloatingly by.

"This anti-religious new heathenism is on a much lower level than pre-Christian heathenism even, which at least honored its gods and was in this sense pious."

Meanwhile widespread opposition to Nazi Christians and radicalism in the church was gaining ground. Even leaders of the German free churches (German Baptists, Methodists, and Congregationalists) called upon the government and the supreme administration of the church to ask where the free churches stood with regard to the totality claims of the Nazi Christians.

They were assured both by government representatives and by the church that there was no thought of infringing on their rights or coercing them in any way, although the "reich's church ardently desires the cooperation of the free churches."

HOLY LAND ARABS ORDERED TO RISE AGAINST JEWS

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

JERUSALEM, Nov. 19.—The meeting yesterday of the Palestine Arab executive, attended by 34 representatives from all the districts, decided that every town should hold a demonstration against Jewish immigration, led by a representative of the Arab executive, on Jan. 17, the first day of the Bairam feast.

All the celebrations and festivities usually held on that day were abolished.

Plans to Honor "Martyrs."

The executive called on every town in Palestine to commemorate the "Arab martyrs of Palestine" on Dec. 9, the anniversary of the capture of Jerusalem by Gen. Allenby. It also designated as "martyrs of Palestine" all the victims of the demonstrations of Damascus.

The meeting voted nonconfidence in the commission of inquiry appointed to investigate the police action in the recent disturbance.

It announced that it had not discussed the question of a boycott of Jewish shops, as that matter had been decided previously. The bureau of the executive has been charged with taking the necessary steps to carry out this decision and a special meeting of the executive will be held soon to organize the boycott.

Women Call Boycott.

Explaining why it had voted nonconfidence, the executive said that when a similar commission [the Shaw commission], appointed to investigate the 1929 riots, had given a decision favoring the Arabs, the government had not respected its decision.

The executive committee of the Palestine Arab Women's association has decided to visit next Thursday the graves of the Arabs killed in the recent riots. It has also decided to encourage the manufacture of Arab products and to deal only with Arab merchants. Delegations of women will conduct a house to house campaign for a boycott of Jewish shops and plan to expose any Arab not cooperating.

The political situation is becoming more aggravated every day. On the one hand, Arab politicians are clamoring for immediate stoppage of Jewish immigration and of the sale of land to Jews; on the other, Palestine Jewry is highly incensed at the Palestine government for restricting Jewish immigration and for heeding what they consider unjustified Arab demands.

MUSSOLINI ACTS TO PULL ITALY OUT OF LEAGUE

Calls Fascist Council to Meet Dec. 5.

ROME, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A strong suggestion that Italy might quit the league of nations was published today in three Italian newspapers, one of them Premier Mussolini's Popolo d'Italia.

The Corriere della Sera of Milan and the Gazetta del Popolo of Turin said editorially that the fascist grand council would be convoked Dec. 5 to "examine Italy's relations with the league in view of the departure of Japan and Germany and the fact that the United States and Russia are not members." The grand council is the highest constituted body in the kingdom.

Mussolini's Popolo did not mention the league of nations by name, but said the grand council would discuss Il Duce's recent references to the international situation, including the statement that the league had lost its effectiveness and "its very principle is absurd."

Scores League Intrigue.

The Gazetta significantly said that the grand council already had discussed the league in relation to the failure of the disarmament conference. The articles in the two papers published in northern Italy, which are geographically closest to Geneva, terminated a three weeks' campaign these papers had directed against the league.

The Italian press has charged that the league is ridden with intrigue and incapable of making a decision or enforcing one. It asserted the principle of open discussion of important and delicate international affairs is fundamentally wrong. In some quarters, however, the press campaign was regarded as an effort to shift the disarmament conversations from Geneva to Rome.

To Consider Debt Payment.

It was understood that Premier Mussolini assured the French ambassador to Italy, Count de Chambrun, in a conference last night, that Italy's situation was unchanged with regard to the league, but observers pointed out this did not preclude the grand council's changing it.

Well informed circles indicated the belief that the French ambassador and Mussolini did not discuss a possible four power meeting at Rome, but confined their conversations to the situation as it now exists, and Italy's reaction to it.

The Fascist grand council will also decide at its forthcoming meeting what payments Italy will make to the United States on the $1,250,000 of interest on debts due Dec. 15. It was believed Italy will make another token payment, as she did last June.

Proposes New Start.

GENEVA, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A proposal to clean the slate of all previous proposals and examine the situation afresh kept the disarmament conference marking time again today. This proposal was advocated by Hugh R. Wilson, United States minister to Switzerland, and found favor with the British and Italians.

France apparently stood alone in supporting the declaration of Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, Oct. 14, regarding a draft convention and a trial period providing for a measure of disarmament and the delayed achievement of the principle of equality. With the united front of the great powers thus smashed for the time being it is asserted in Geneva that there first must be definite agreement on a common policy before the conference can invite Germany to reënter the discussions she left a month ago.

The French delegation appeared to feel that the conference was headed for adjournment until January at least because of the lack of agreement. Arthur Henderson presided at the meeting today, which was attended by Sir John Simon, Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour, United States Minister Wilson, Foreign Minister Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia, and Signor di Soragna, Italian member of the steering committee.

BRITISH EMBASSY STONED AS JEWS MEET IN WARSAW

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

WARSAW, Nov. 19.—Windows in the British embassy were smashed overnight by stones around which were draped messages protesting against the "anti-Jewish administration of the British in Palestine."

At a mass meeting today, resolutions voicing the same sentiment were passed by Jews, after fiery anti-British speeches by Zionist leaders. The Zionist executive here is said to be preparing an international drive seeking to change the Palestine régime.

A league for a Polish mandate in Palestine, including prominent gentiles as well as Jews has been founded here. It plans to ask the Polish government to initiate a general debate on Palestine at the next meeting of the council of the league of nations.

AUSTRIAN NOBLES PARADE IN HONOR OF 'KAISER OTTO'

Hapsburg Heir 21 Years Old Today.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Nov. 19.—Living reminders of that great empire which once ruled this checkerboard part of Europe paraded the streets of its one time capital today as never in the 15 years since the monarchy crashed.

A general, archdukes, lesser officers, and lesser nobility strutted in their uniforms of imperial days in two celebrations in Vienna on the 21st birthday of their "emperor," Otto von Hapsburg. The birthday falls tomorrow.

Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss some time ago raised the ban on imperial insignia, but today was the first occasion taken by the living débris of the Franz Josef empire to enjoy the new leniency in Austria, which though still a republic is no longer radical and no longer even a democracy.

Raise Hapsburg Banner.

Vienna was treated to the extraordinary sight of portly, middle aged gentlemen squeezed into uniforms tailored many years ago for dashing lieutenants. Vienna was treated also to the black and yellow flag of the Hapsburg family and heard in the streets the Austrian anthem sung to words written to "God Save Our Emperor." A verse was added, "May he return soon to his people and bring them peace."

That this was accepted without protest in a capital long considered "Red" is a sign of the headway that Dollfuss is making against the Socialists.

The two rival legitimist groups naturally could not bury their differences, so they met in different parts of town. At St. Michaels, across from the imperial palace, the "True to the Kaiser" party gathered and in a tiny church in the suburbs the "Iron Ring," the more official party, met.

Bring Back Hapsburgs! Plea.

"Our emperor," said Dr. Friedrich Wiesner, leader of the "Iron Ring" party, "is now 21. All those who refused to bow to the Hapsburg tradition that he was of age at 18 must now grant that he is ready to take up his responsibilities. So many lies are current that he cannot speak German and that Empress Zita [his mother] is merely an Italian. Let us repeal laws banning the Hapsburgs and taking away their property and bring them back to live so that the people can get acquainted with them before any restoration."

At both churches the colorful but pathetic gatherings realized full well that if the emperor does come back it will not be because of any popular movement, but because the men determined to keep Austria independent will bring him back when there is nothing else left to do. Maybe that is why both sent delegations to Chancellor Dollfuss to assure him of their support.

TEAR GAS BOMBS ROUT MEXICAN POLITICAL RALLY

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Tear gas bombs forced more than 5,000 persons to flee today from a theater where a protest meeting of opposition political elements was broken up. Police denied they had used tear gas or entered the theater, and said political enemies were responsible, but several who attended the meeting said policemen had spread the gas.

Gen. Antonio Villareal, an opposition presidential candidate, was one of those who led the attacks on Plutarco Elias Calles, listing a number of "crimes" he attributed to the former president, who now is minister of finance.

Gen. Samuel Espinosa de los Monteros, president of the Mexican Nationalistic party, announced that Gilberto Velenzuela has accepted the party presidential nomination. Valenzuela is a lawyer living in exile in El Paso, Tex. He will face the opposition of Gen. Lazaro Cardenas, prospective candidate of the National Revolutionary party.

TRIES TO OBTAIN SNAKE VENOM TO TREAT CANCER

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BOMBAY, Nov. 19.—Dr. Robert Hemardinquer, French scientist, is trying in behalf of the Pasteur Institute of Paris to obtain a kilogram [2.2 pounds of snake venom for the treatment of cancer. Recent experiments at the Pasteur institute, according to Dr. Hemardinquer, led to the belief that snake venom might be successfully employed, but the investigation is still in an experimental stage. The venom was injected with drugs into the parts affected. Dr. Hemardinquer has established a snake farm at Haffkine institute and is asking for 5,000 snakes, chiefly cobras.

SYLVIA SIDNEY'S ADOPTION TO BE IN COURT TODAY

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The suit brought by Victor Kosow, clothing salesman, against his daughter, Sylvia Sidney, screen star, will go on trial tomorrow in Supreme court here. Kosow is seeking to set aside Miss Sidney's adoption by her stepfather, Dr. Sigmund Sidney.

Benjamin Spellman, attorney for Miss Sidney, declared tonight that even if the adoption were set aside the actress can, as an adult, permit herself to be readopted by the Sidneys.

A letter from Hollywood by Miss Sidney in which she told of meeting her father in New York in May, 1932, for the first time in 16 years was made public. The meeting, Miss Sidney disclosed, took place in the office of an attorney. She and her father greeted each other somewhat coldly, she said, and her father threatened to make public the fact that she was not Dr. Sidney's daughter, and said he intended to set aside her adoption by Dr. Sidney.

"I asked him," Miss Sidney's letter said, "what he had ever done for me or mother to deserve the glory we were getting. He asked me to buy him a house, saying good houses could be picked up in Brooklyn for $15,000. I told him to do that would be quite impossible. But I offered him money if he needed it. This he refused, saying he would not accept charity."

POLICE CAPTURE YOUNG VANDALS IN HIGH SCHOOL

Three boys were seized by police in the Calumet High school at 31st and Morgan streets yesterday after they had stolen about $40 and done about $1,000 damage to the building.

They are Vincent LePage, 18 years old, 510 West Garfield boulevard, said to be on probation on a similar charge; Edward Schoenecki, 16, of 5800 La Salle street, and Elliott Tucker, also 16, of 10228 Peoria street.

The boys smashed a rear window of the school to enter. During the next hour they smashed file cases, doors, telephone coin boxes, lockers, and damaged a safe in the principal's office.

CHAINED TO PIPE BY ROBBERS.

James Quinlan, attendant in a gasoline filling station at 3300 West Jackson boulevard, was chained to a pipe last night by two bandits, who robbed him of $10. A nearby resident heard his shouts and summoned police, who released him.

RUSSIA PICKS FORMER ENVOY TO JAPAN AS AMBASSADOR TO U. S.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Soviet Russia's first ambassador to the United States will be Alexander Antonovich Troyanovsky, formerly diplomatic representative at Tokio and now vice chairman of the Russian state planning commission.

Announcement that Mr. Troyanovsky was persona grata to the government at Washington and that his appointment as ambassador had been accepted by the state department was made on behalf of Maxim Litvinov, commissar of foreign affairs, at the home of Boris E. Skvirsky, chief of the soviet's information bureau here.

Confirmation is expected perhaps tomorrow of the appointment reported today in cable dispatches from Moscow of Mr. Skvirsky to serve as chargé d'affaires pending the arrival of the new Russian ambassador and thereafter as counsellor of the embassy.

The new ambassador's biography, as told here, says he was born in 1882 in Tula, a town of central Russia; attended a military academy and later studied at the University of Kiev, specializing in physics. He was a member of the Social Democratic party and in 1909 he was sentenced to exile in Siberia. He escaped, lived in France until 1917, when, returning to Russia, he served in the revolutionary army.

He held various posts of a political and business nature from 1923 to the end of 1927 serving as president of the board of the state trading corporation. At the end of 1927 he was appointed diplomatic representative to Japan, remaining until January, 1933. He is married and has two children.

Three Bandits Rape Girl and Rob Her Two Escorts

Three bandits held up two youths early yesterday as they were driving home from a dance and raped an 18 year old girl who was with the young men. The youths, Dan Keseric, 3905 West 31st street, and Charles Norek, 2547 South Ridgeway avenue, were held up at 49th street and Hoyne avenue. The bandits entered the automobile, which was Norek's, took $4 from the youths, and forced them out of the car at 64th street and Kenneth avenue. The bandits then raped the girl and drove away in the car.

RUSSIAN PRAISES NEW U. S. ENVOY; RAPS 'HOOVERS'

Calls Recognition Soviet's "Greatest Victory."

MOSCOW, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Karl Radek, foremost publicist of soviet Russia, praised newly appointed Ambassador William C. Bullitt in the newspaper Pravda today, and included other Americans who favored the recognition of Russia.

In an article called "America Discovers the U. S. S. R." Radek at the same time took a slap at the "Hardings, Coolidges, Hoovers, Colbys and Hughes" who, he said, "thought to dictate their own laws of the world, persuaded that our new country would expire because the world could not exist save on a basis of capitalism."

Greatest Victory, Pravda Says.

The Pravda, official communist party organ, was the only newspaper out today and represented the only published reaction to United States recognition that has reached the Russian people.

In an editorial the paper said "it should now be clear to every one that the soviet union has overthrown all obstacles to its peaceful construction," and described recognition as "th greatest victory in the soviet policy of peace."

Radek in his article wrote that the principles of capitalism "have been shaken by developments in the United States. They no longer have the right to assume such an ironical attitude toward the question whether our way is the right one.

Sees Capitalistic Defeat.

"Each nation selects its own way, and there is no doubt that our historical victories and the historical defeats of capitalism have compelled the world's largest capitalistic country to realize it was impossible to continue to ignore the soviet union—a great country of progress and peace."

The remainder of the soviet press was expected to dwell at length on United States recognition in tomorrow's issues.

President Roosevelt was toasted tonight for the first time in soviet Russia at a dinner tendered American correspondents resident in Moscow by the press section of the foreign office.

Drink to Roosevelt's Health.

At the conclusion of a speech in which he hailed recognition as a "victory for common sense in international relations," Alexis Neimann, acting head of the foreign office press department, raised a glass filled with champagne and said: "To the health of the American President, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

There was silence as 25 men, including nine American correspondents, foreign office officials, and leading soviet journalists raised their glasses to their lips.

Paying tribute to Roosevelt for initiating the action that brought about recognition, Neimann said: "The two countries have always been inspired by friendship for each other and our hope is that this friendship will mature and increase."

VON HINDENBURG HITS NAIL; OPENS RELIEF CAMPAIGN

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The German capital resounded today with the hammer stroke of 3,000 Hitler youths pounding on wooden shields to signify the opening of a drive to collect funds for winter relief.

The youths were hammering nails at the behest of the public for one cent or more each.

President Paul von Hindenburg was the first to drive a nail and many other prominent Germans including Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels and Count Felix von Luckner followed.

SOVIET AND U.S. ENVOYS IN TOKIO TRADE GREETINGS

TOKIO, Nov. 20.—[Monday.]—(AP)—The Russian and American embassies here abandoned today their attitude of diplomatic unawareness of each other's existence. Russian Ambassador Constantin Yurenev proceeded to the United States embassy and formally called on United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew.

It was learned that the ambassadors, in addition to exchange of felicitations on the resumption of relations, discussed the appointment of Alexander Trovanovsky as soviet ambassador to Washington and agreed that the choice was an excellent one. Trovanovsky is a former soviet ambassador to Tokio.

Ambassador Yurenev made the first call because Grew's rank in Tokio is that of senior in the diplomatic corps.

WORK TO RESUME ON FIVE SANITARY JOBS THIS WEEK

Ask Contractors to Sign New Agreements.

Work will probably be started by the end of this week on five projects of the sanitary district's sewage disposal program, which the district was forced to abandon two years ago for lack of funds, it was stated by T. J. Bowler, president of the district.

The federal government, through its public works administration, is furnishing $8,000,000 to complete these five projects, a sewage disposal plant in Stickney, two more in the Calumet district, and two sewers. The contracts for the work were let several years ago, but one of the conditions of the federal grant was that the contractors should sign new contracts with the district.

Back Bills Up to Board.

The principal provision of the new contracts is that the contractors are to receive payment from the federal grant for work done after they resume construction, and must still look to the sanitary district for payment of back bills. These revised contracts are now in the hands of contractors, and probably will be signed within a few days, President Bowler said. Work can start the moment they are signed.

Mr. Bowler has expressed hope that some of the funds from the additional grant of $33,000,000 for new sanitary district projects by the PWA will be available within three weeks. Under the terms given Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the district's finance committee, for obtaining that loan, the Illinois legislature must approve some laws affecting the district before the money is forthcoming.

"Gov. Horner has included those matters in his call for the special session of the legislature which meets Wednesday," said Mr. Bowler. "As soon as the acts are passed, we will try to get $5,000,000 of the $33,000,000 fund immediately.

"That money would be spent on four sewer projects for which we have the plans all ready, and would give work to 1,900 men through the winter. The remainder of the $33,000,000 loan would be spent on five more sewer projects and two disposal plants, giving work to 9,000 men for two years."

Asks Two Law Changes.

Two legislative acts were required by Secretary Ickes as conditions to the larger of the federal grants, to be given on the usual PWA basis of a 30 per cent gift and a 70 per cent loan. One is an amendment to the city's judgment tax statute providing that judgments shall be retired in the order which they were obtained.

The city owes the sanitary district about $7,500,000 for electroc current furnished for street lighting. The district got a judgement for $3,800,000 five years ago, which is still unpaid, and its bills since that time have reached almost the same amount. With collection of the judgements expedited by the proposed law, they would be pledged with the PWA as collateral on the loan.

"Where would we get the money?" was Mayor Kelly's only comment on behalf of the city government.

The second law demanded by Secretary Ickes concerns the old controversy between the sanitary district and industrial concerns, principally the meat packers, concerning the disposal of industrial waste. Under the statutes, the district is required only to dispose of domestic sewage.

Dumps Refuse Into Canal.

The stockyards refuse is dumped into the sanitary canal, and is equivalent to the domestic sewage of a community of a million people. The district has sought in the past to stop the dumping of the untreated sewage into the canal, and a case on that matter is now pending in the federal courts.

The state law which Secretary Ickes asked would give the district authority to build a disposal plant for industrial refuse, and charge the companies using it. Such a bill was drafted some time ago, but federal attorneys objected that it did not possess sufficient "teeth." The proposed plant could not be put in operation before 1938, Mr. Bowler said. The revenue collected from the industrial concerns under the proposed act would be used as security for the federal loans.

New Power Contract.

A third condition set by the secretary was that the district obtain a modification of its contract with the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois for "stand by" service in case the district electrical generating plant at Lockport breaks down. That is a matter which can be negotiated by the district's legal department, without legislation, Mr. Bowler said, and the negotiations are now under way.

Mr. Bowler proposed yesterday that the district seek an additional PWA loan of $800,000 to modernize its electrical generating equipment. The present plant, he said, is 30 years old, and half of it is shut down for repairs most of the time. Modern equipment, he said, would increase the district's revenue from electrical current sales by $165,000 a year.

ELECTROCUTED IN HOME.

OHIO GIVING WORK TO 50,000 TODAY IN PUBLIC WORKS PLAN

Columbus, O., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Ordering 50,000 men to report for work tomorrow morning, Ohio began the greatest single job giving problem in its history.

The Ohio program of coöperation with the federal civic works administration was outlined by Adj. Gen. Frank D. Henderson, head of the state's civil works administration, before 750 representatives of 44 counties and numerous cities. He estimated 70,000 Ohioans would be included in the project Tuesday.

Approximately 82½ per cent of the state's relief load will be covered in the initial program. A campaign of action for the other 44 counties will be determined Tuesday or Wednesday.

Every man employed in the gigantic group of projects will be paid with money; employment will be limited to 30 hours a week, and no employment will be permitted on so small a basis that the remuneration would be insufficient to care for the man's family, Henderson said.

SHOW TAX CASH AVAILABLE FOR SUPERHIGHWAYS

Find Other Street Work Will Not Suffer.

BY HAL FOUST.

A survey made yesterday of receipts from the 3 cents a gallon state gasoline tax corrects a common misapprehension that the construction of an elevated highway system would exhaust available road funds, already depleted by diversion for relief bonds.

Figures from Springfield records indicate that the superhighway construction would require only a small fraction of the road revenue and that, even with the diversion to charity, there would still remain substantial amounts for other street work in Chicago.

This is considered significant because a few local improvement clubs have expressed fears that building the elevated roadways will jeopardize their local projects.

$28,000,000 Indicated Revenue.

The gasoline tax receipts for the first ten months of 1933 were $23,497,789, indicating that the total for the year will approximate $28,000,000. At this rate Chicago, under the new division of gasoline tax revenue, will get $5,012,500 in 1934 as its share of 1 cent of the tax distributed to municipalities in proportion to 1930 census population.

Cook county will receive $4,350,000 as its share of 1 cent distributed to counties in proportion to automobile registration fees paid in the previous year. The third cent of the motor fuel excise will go to the state highway department.

From Cook county's $4,350,000, interest and principal payments on the old $20,000,000 state relief bond issue will deduct $2,460,000. From the county's and the city's total of $9,362,500 tax revenue, the new $30,000,000 relief bond issue will probably require $3,690,000 a year for retirement in ten years, assuming that Cook county relief requirements will take the same portion of the $30,000,000 as they did of the $20,000,000.

This will leave Chicago and Cook county with $3,212,500 a year of gasoline money for construction. In addition, the city will have $5,000,000 a year from the vehicle tax for street repairing and paving.

The initial construction program for the elevated highway system, totaling 15.26 miles, is estimated to cost $11,000,000. The state, the city, and the county will share in the cost, with a strong possibility of a federal grant for a portion of the expense. Engineers estimate that completion will require four years.

Should there be no federal grant and if the state contributes $1,000,000 a year, there would remain $1,750,000 a year to be paid from the city's and county's gasoline tax revenue.

Cost Not Yet Apportioned.

The cost apportionment as among the state, the city, and the county has not been agreed upon, but $1,000,000 from the state is not considered an exorbitant expectation since the motorists of Chicago pay $4,500,000 a year of the state's 1 cent share of the motor fuel excise in addition to $6,700,000 in license fees, all of which goes to the Illinois highway department.

In financing the elevated highway from the current gasoline tax revenue over four years, the city and the county would still have $5,848,000 for secondary improvements in these years, in addition to $20,000,000 of vehicle tax money.

In financing the project with a federal grant and loan to be retired with gasoline tax money, as advocated by the Chicago Motor club, the cost, including interest, to the state, city and county would be $9,825,000, to be spread over ten years.

The First Four Years.

In the first four years, in addition to a federal grant of $2,475,000, the state, city, and county would pay $1,387,500 a year. Minus $1,000,000 a year from the state, this would require $387,500 from the city and county, leaving $2,925,000 a year of municipal and county gasoline tax revenue for secondary construction.

After the first four years, the city and the county would assign $700,000 annually for interest and principal payments on the federal loan, leaving $2,512,500 gasoline tax money and $5,000,000 vehicle tax money for secondary work.

Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the council committee on traffic and public safety, will speak at 1 o'clock today at an open meeting of the streets and public safety committee of the City club on "Chicago's Traffic Problem." Ald. Massen will give particular attention to elevated highway plans.

PARLIAMENT AWAITS KING'S VISIT; FINANCES AND RELIEF FOREMOST

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Cheered by economic improvement in the British isles, the third session of the eighth parliament of King George will be opened at Westminster Tuesday.

With sufficient work to keep it at top pace for a year, the house of commons will plunge into two major legislative tasks, relief of unemployment and the government's fiscal affairs. The important problem of Indian reform may not be reached until next fall. In the background will be questions relating to disarmament which will come up for debate.

The opening day in the house of lords in Britain's most brilliant hour of theatrical pageantry, surpassed only by the coronation. The sparkling tiaras of peeresses, the gleam of satin and gold braid among diplomats and the ermine and jewels of royalty will enrich the spectacle in the lords' chamber when the monarch himself reads from the throne a document which from long tradition is known as the king's speech, although it is carefully prepared by the cabinet ministers.

62,000 to Start Work Today in State.

the state quota, or about 93,500 men, will be transferred from relief to federal pay rolls before the end of the week.

238,000 Families on Relief.

There are approximately 238,000 heads of families on relief rolls in Illinois, but Mr. Jacobson explained that many of these are women and that many of the men are too old or otherwise unfit for work on the civil works projects.

Pay on the civil works projects will average about $5 a day, the minimum being 50 cents an hour for unskilled labor and the maximum $1.20 for skilled labor. The men will work on a five day, thirty hour week.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission offices were kept open yesterday, with a large staff on hand, examining and approving projects for the civil works program. In Cook county 75 projects have been approved, while the downstate number is about forty.

Martin Hayes Bickham, Cook county director of the CWA, explained that of the 25,000 men put to work on federal pay rolls in the county today, 20,000 have been on the work relief rolls receiving the same hourly rate of pay as they will receive on the new jobs. However, they will earn considerably more money on the federal pay roll, for they will be on a 30 hour week. Heretofore their time per month has been limited so that their earnings were equivalent to the amount their families would receive on direct relief.

For October the family average was $31. On the federal pay rolls the men will average $5 a day, so that they may earn as much in a week as they were earning in a month.

Hewitt Issues Instructions.

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, in whose department 1,966 men on the CWA pay roll will begin work on 20 projects today, issued instructions yesterday to all bureau heads in the department urging them not to usurp the duties of relief organizations. He instructed the bureau heads to send back to CWA headquarters all men who lost on the job, who are unfitted because of undernourishment, physical infirmities or lack of clothing, or who are unqualified for the particular work assigned to them. He also instructed the bureau heads to exercise care not to employ surplus labor.

"In its instructions, as well as orally, the CWA has assigned us two tasks," said Mr. Hewitt. "These are first, to provide useful employment, work of benefit to the public, work that is needful and purposeful, and preferably of a constructive character, and second, to see that the work is performed, results obtained, and benefits secured.

"The CWA has also made it plain that the state, the county and the Emergency Relief association will supply and distribute relief, not this department. Be reasonable and fair, but do not usurp or infringe upon the duties of the relief organizations by continuing unserviceable employés."

Plans of Sanitary District.

Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary district board, has arranged for the employment of 500 men today and a similar number tomorrow. Most of them will be put to work in Lockport, Lemont, and Willow Springs. Work inside the city limits will be supervised by Philip J. Harrington, chief engineer for the board, who has already made arrangements.

Downstate counties have also made elaborate preparations for the new army of workers. In 49 counties 25,180 men will be put to work on state highway projects. St. Clair county, with an assignment of 2,310, has the largest division downstate.

LYNCHING CASE PROSECUTOR HIT BY RITCHIE'S IRE

Asks Judges for Ouster at Princess Anne.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie today suggested that circuit judges replace State's Attorney John B. Robins of Somerset county, unless he has arrested the nine men whom eyewitnesses have sworn had a part in the lynching at Princess Anne, Md., last month.

"If Mr. Robins does persist (in refusing to have the men arrested) then the judges will, I feel sure, consider the appointment of some one in Mr. Robbins' place to act as state's attorney in the prosecution and trial of these charges, and perform the duties which Mr. Robins will not perform," the governor declared.

Named By State Police.

The evidence against the nine was collected by Attorney General William Preston Lane Jr. largely from state policemen who were beaten back by the mob which stormed the Somerset jail and lynched George Armwood, Negro charged with attacking an aged white woman.

Lane forwarded the evidence to Robins and asked that the nine be arrested immediately and brought before a magistrate to decide whether they should be held for the grand jury. Robins refused to make the arrests, saying he believed a mob would take the men from the jail, if the magistrate sent them there. He suggested, instead, that the evidence be submitted to the grand jury at its customary secret meeting.

Ritchie Upholds Lane.

Lane's reasons "are obviously sound," stated Ritchie today. "If there is a hearing before a committing magistrate the facts will be disclosed to the public and the responsibility for following them through will be clearly centered."

The governor added that he did not consider Robins' talk about the danger of a mob warranted his comment.

When he read Ritchie's statement Robins refused to comment.

33 EX-COLLEGE MEN QUIZZED IN GUN CASES

Two-thirds of the persons questioned by the police in connection with gun carrying were born outside Chicago, it was revealed yesterday by the annual report of the police department's firearms experts to Chief of Detectives Schoemaker. Other interesting facts are shown in the tabulation of data gathered from Jan. 1 to Nov. 15 by Policemen Frank Ballou and John Kratzmeyer.

Of the 1,162 persons from whom statements were taken in gun toting arrests, 716 had elementary school education, 320 had high school education, and 33 had attended college. Almost a hundred were illiterate. About one-third were Negroes.

There were 1,177 guns seized by police in the period, almost the same number as were confiscated in a similar period last year, and about 100 less than in 1931.

The tabulation shows the guns were obtained as follows: Found on persons, 552; found in automobiles, 125; found in houses, 401; thrown away at the approach of police, 99.

BAR TIPS, URGES NEW YORK NRA ADMINISTRATOR

Ancient Custom Proves Vexing Problem.

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Complete abolition of the tipping system in restaurants and other places where it has been in vogue was urged today by Grover A. Whalen, New York City NRA administrator. Mr. Whalen declared that this appeared to be the simplest solution to the problem that has been vexing the NRA, restaurateurs and waiters' organizations as a result of the provision of the President's reemployment agreement and rulings thereon by the NRA officials.

Under the agreement and the subsequent rulings of interpretation, tips must not be included in the minimum wage set for restaurant and hotel workers. Restaurant keepers and hotel men have sought in vain to obtain modification of the rulings, pleading that exclusion of tips from wages was too burdensome an innovation. NRA officials have remained adamant, however, while the waiters' and hotel workers' unions have fought against the efforts of the employers to make the bulk of wage payments dependent on tips.

The whole subject will again come up for discussion a week from today in Washington when hearings on the permanent restaurant code will be commenced.

"I am fairly convinced," said Mr. Whalen today, "that the vast majority of waiters throughout the country would welcome abolition of the tipping system if they were placed on a straight wage basis and not compelled to rely upon the generosity of the public for their livelihood. This policy would be in keeping with the spirit of the NRA, the purpose of which is to place every worker upon a self-respecting wage earning basis."

ASK ROOSEVELT TO DEFEND DIXIE NEGRO PRISONERS

Fear Lynching of Nine in Scottsboro Case.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Intervention of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to halt the threatened lynching of the nine Scottsboro case Negro youths and their lawyers was asked in a telegraphed plea tonight.

Chief Defense Counsel Samuel S. Leibowitz of New York, dispatched the plea for aid to the chief executive after Gov. Benjamin M. Miller had refused to call out guardsmen or to extend any further protection to the threatened defendants and counsel than that of a few deputy sheriffs who will trek the ninety miles from jail here to the trial place at Decatur.

Text of Telegram.

The telegram, sent to the President at Warm Springs, Ga., and signed by Leibowitz and associate counsel, Gen. George W. Chamlee, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Joseph R. Brodsky of New York, earnestly asks the President to persuade Gov. Miller of Alabama to order out sufficient national guardsmen to adequately protect the nine Scottsboro boys and their attorneys, who are to appear in Decatur tomorrow morning for the arraignment and for trial on Nov. 27.

"At previous trials," the telegram continues, "Circuit Judge James E. Horton took judicial notice of incipient mob action to lynch defendants and attorneys by ordering the soldiers in open court to shoot if necessary to preserve the peace. Shortly after the trial Judge Horton, who has since been supplanted, adjourned court on his his own motion because of the temper of the citizens. Since the trial two Negroes in custody of a sheriff were lynched. A Negro named Royall was lynched in the very city of Decatur and a mob visited the Decatur jail to lynch a Negro prisoner named Broom. Only his removal to Huntsville jail before the mob arrived prevented his assassination.

"The situation now is definitely tense. Many persons in Decatur and neighboring towns have openly voiced their intention of 'getting the niggers' and their attorneys. Editorials today in Birmingham papers show their appreciation of the imminence of danger and urge the officials to call out the militia. Despite this extremely grave situation the governor has rejected the plea for state troops. The probability of a massacre of both defendants and their attorneys is extremely grave. We urge your intervention."

New Judge Refuses Troops.

W. W. Callahan, the new judge who will preside at the arraignment of the seven defendants for their new trials on charges of attacking two white girl hoboes in 1931, refused at Decatur today to follow the precedent set by Judge Horton when he called troops in defense of the prisoners.

The seven defendants to be arraigned today told attachés of the Jefferson county jail here that they will fight them if they attempt to remove them to Decatur.

"We'd rather die here fighting to stay than to let those mobs get us and string us up," the huge Haywood Patterson said. His companions shouted agreement with this stand.

Their New York counsel will leave in the morning. The present trials will be the third for Patterson and the second for the other six.

FIRST NORTH SIDE COOKERY SESSION TO BE TOMORROW

Tribune Expert Promises Husbands' Praise.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

North side housewives will have their innings this week at THE TRIBUNE school of cookery. The first session will be held tomorrow in the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue. Last week the school was offered to the west side women in Guyon's ball room, and the week before in the Trianon on the south side.

The fame of Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood's latest culinary triumphs has already traveled to the north part of town and more than 5,000 are expected to attend the first day's class, opening at 12:30 o'clock, to learn the secrets first hand. Last year and the year before a number of west and south side women attended the Aragon sessions to gain additional knowledge of cookery as taught by the internationally known food expert, and to meet Miss Mary Meade, TRIBUNE cooking editor, whose recipes appear daily in the columns of this newspaper.

Promises Praise from Husbands.

While Mrs. Chitwood was reluctant yesterday to reveal even a suggestion of the surprises she expects to spring tomorrow, she did promise that her recipes will be the kind that husbands will be sure to compliment. "And when a wife gets her husband to compliment her cooking several years after the honeymoon, she's accomplished something," she added.

An added attraction this year is the appearance each day of a Chicago authority on cuisine. Erik Dahlberg, maitre d'hotel at the Drake hotel, will appear tomorrow; Ernest Amiet, executive chef of the Palmer house, on Wednesday, and Camil Virla, executive chef of Htel Sherman, on Thursday. Each will give a demonstration.

Food talks will be given by Frances Peck, home economics expert of H. J. Heinz Co.; Nellie Snavely, director of home economics at R. Cooper Jr., Inc., and Mrs. Anna J. Peterson, director of the home service department of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company.

Variety of Entertainment.

The programs each day will offer more than food discussion. Phil Maxwell, as master of ceremonies, will present many stars of the stage, air and screen, and song leaders will give the women themselves a chance to show how well they can sing. These song leaders are Richard De Young, Frank Bennett, Carl Craven and Edgar Nelson, with Elsie Barge, Cathryn Bennett, Allan Grant and Helen Rauh as pianists.

Among the stars who will appear will be Reinald Werrenrath, Metropolitan Opera star, who is appearing in "Music in the Air," at the Erlanger theater; Harry Froster Welch, who is known as the "One Man Band;" Richard Cole's orchestra of the Palmer house; Julian Stripe, the best man singer of the 1933 Chicagoland music festival; the Lawson Y. M. C. A. glee club, Tony D'Orazi, cartoonist from W-G-N, Phil Harris, screen and radio star, and Leah Ray, singer from the College Inn, Hotel Sherman, and Lois Grider, contralto.

Mundy Choristers to Sing.

Others will be stars from the Dixiana show boat, Edwin Kemp, operatic tenor; Ruth Pryor, premiere danseuse of the Stevens hotel; Allan Jones, tenor star of the operetta, "Bittersweet," at the Grand opera house; the Mundy Choristers, Barbara Dragelis, opera star, and dance novelties by the following schools of dancing: The Betty Jones, the Murray Browne and the Gladys Hight schools.

Miss Lorraine Nevens and Miss Lois Grider, the grocerettes, will appear at each session.

Announcers from W-G-N who will make personal appearances are Bob Elson, Quin Ryan, who will bring "Uncle Quin's Scalawags," and Russ Russell. TRBIUNE woman writers will appear each day.

ENTERTAIN ON NORTH SIDE

The Kreiter twins, Bebe and Dimple (right), tap and acrobatic stars of the Betty Jones School of Dancing, Evanston, who will perform tomorrow afternoon at the opening session of The Tribune's north side school of cookery at the Aragon ballroom. The school is moving to the north side after runs on the south and west sides.

Harry Froster Welch, "one man band," who imitates everything from an oboe to the voice of Lawrence Tibbett, will also appear tomorrow.

MORE CULTURE AND NO NUDITY ASKED FOR FAIR

City Club Urges Additional Good Music.

The City Club of Chicago yesterday set as the price of its approval of the 1934 World's Fair the elimination of nude shows and other concessions of a questionable nature and the inclusion in the Exposition of more projects of a cultural nature.

"Our parks, forest preserves and public recreation committee has been carefully studying the World's Fair of 1933," said Arnold R. Baar, president of the club, "and has come to the conclusion that the 1934 Fair is highly desirable, in order that the splendid exhibits along industrial, commercial, educational and scientific lines may serve millions of other people who have not had the opportunity of viewing them in 1933.

Demands Dignified Basis.

But the committee feels, as its statement indicates, that in itself the club would not be justified in encouraging a Fair in 1934 unless the suggestions made by our committee will be considered and acted upon seriously by those in charge of the promotion of the Fair."

The statement to which Mr. Baar referred was as follows:

"The committee approves the continuance of the World's Fair for the year 1934 provided that it be assured that the Fair will be conducted on a dignified basis.

Ask More Good Music.

"It is suggested that careful consideration be given to the addition of certain features such as a children's playground, more pageantry and more high class popular and classical music, and that certain side shows which have brought unfavorable publicity be eliminated.

"The committee would view with disfavor erection of any structures of a permanent nature that are not in keeping with those already on the lake front, such as the aquarium, planetarium, Field museum and Soldiers' field, and would disapprove the granting of franchises to any private organization, extending beyond the duration of the Fair."

Parts of B.&O. Fair Exhibit Transferred to Station

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has transplanted a carefully selected portion of its World's Fair exhibit from the Travel and Transport building exhibit to the Grand Central station, it was announced yesterday. The exhibit which will be open today includes animated diaramas of Harper's Ferry, Baltimore City, the race between the locomotive Tom Thumb and the horse, as well as working models of famous early locomotives.

FINAL FIGURES ON FAIR WILL BE REPORTED TODAY

Final and corrected totals on the attendance, the receipts and the expenditures of A Century of Progress will be submitted today by the controller's office to the exposition executives. At the same session, the directors will discuss the problems of next summer's revised and improved production of the World's Fair. Discussions of 1934 contracts for concessionaires, changes in the exhibits, and arrangements for new attractions will keep the gathering occupied.

In order that inclement weather shall not delay the preparations for new buildings, plans for these structures are being pushed as rapidly as possible so that some of the preliminary work may be concluded during the milder periods of this fall and winter. Additional exhibits by foreign governments who did not participate in the Exposition last summer are expected next year, including displays by the Egyptian, Hungarian, Polish, Swiss, Norwegian, Greek, Spanish, and Brazilian nations.

The suggested removal of Camp Whistler to the south extremity of the grounds is expected to come before this meeting for a decision. The troops encamped there participated in many of the ceremonies and provided escorts for distinguished visitors.

A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. Leaf tobaccos for cigarettes can be bought from 5¢ a pound to $1.00...but Camel pays the millions more that insure your enjoyment.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

Men and women who are famous for their brilliant flying agree about smoking and healthy nerves. "I never worry about healthy nerves," they say, "because I smoke Camels."

They cannot afford to make a mistake in choosing their cigarette. They have to know. And it is more fun to know, because of the greater smoking pleasure they find in Camels. Camels are milder... better in taste. They leave no "cigaretty" aftertaste.

Change to Camels... and see for yourself that they do not get on your nerves or tire your taste!

POLICE AND BOYS EXCHANGE SHOTS IN AUTO PURSUIT

After a running gun battle with four youths in a stolen automobile, State Highway Policemen Frank Rizzo and Albert Knapp early yesterday captured one of the band and recovered the automobile. The prisoner is Charles Caley, 18 years old, 3844 Oconto avenue. He refused to name his companions.

The policemen were in the Schiller Park police station when Harry Culinski, 22 years old, 2033 Armitage avenue, and Jean Lodozynski, 1866 North Damen avenue, reported they had been held up by four youths who took their car and $11. A short time later the policemen saw the car and its occupants in Irving Park boulevard.

They gave chase, exchanging shots with the youths. At River road the car halted and three of the occupants fled into a field. The fourth, Caley, hid behind the car and fired on the police as they approached. Caley was seized and taken to the state highway station at Des Plaines.

TANKER SKIPPER BREAKS MUTINY; 32 ARE JAILED

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Having broken by his heroism the mob spirit of 32 Chinese sailors who threatened his life in a mutinous uprising as the ship was about to leave for the Dutch West Indies, Capt. B. G. Protheroe of the British oil tanker, Clam, today went about the prosaic work of signing up a new crew.

The mutiny, brewing in the forecastle while the ship plowed toward Los Angeles harbor from South America, burst last night in a wild melee on the steel decks of the vessel.

As Captain Protheroe stepped from his cabin a Chinese fireman, Geong Boo, slashed at him with a meat cleaver. Ducking and backing away from each charge, the captain reached his cabin, seized his revolver and forced the enraged Chinese to surrender his weapon.

While this individual battle was in progress, 32 of Boo's accomplices watched from below the bridge. With his surrender they broke into howls and rushed the bridge, waving wrenches and other tools.

A loyal little group of British crew members came to the captain's assistance, however, and the mutinous gang stopped. Later all were jailed.

REVISE DETAILS OF RUM CONTROL BILL TONIGHT

Ward Confident Board Will Meet Objections.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Those in touch with the work of establishing adequate state regulation over post-prohibition liquor were confident yesterday that most of the remaining knots will be untangled before the general assembly meets in special session on this subject on Wednesday.

The special commission headed by Senator Harold G. Ward will go into action at a meeting in Springfield this evening determined to straighten out the tangle that may exist in the preliminary draft of a bill intended for consideration by the legislature as soon as it meets. If necessary, a second meeting will be held tomorrow.

Chairman Ward said he felt certain that rough spots such as usually are found in a bill drawn up under general instructions by a commission or committee will be ironed out and that the final form of the bill will be such that it will get the two-thirds vote necessary for its passage.

Kelly Voices Confidence.

With the same goal—34 votes and 102 in the house in mind—Mayor Kelly said he believed the commission is on the right line and will answer the remaining questions in a way most satisfactory to the legislature and to the best interests of the people of the state.

He said that if it will be helpful he will go to Springfield on short notice ready for a real battle for complete home rule for the many communities of the state and to oppose radical proposals from extremists of either the wets or the drys. During their recent trip to Washington, he said, he assured Gov. Horner of his willingness to take a personal part in such a fight.

"Chicago," he said, "has no desire to dictate to any other part of the state, but I believe I understand the views of our people and, as their representative, I shall insist upon certain things in connection with the bill. And they can't pass a bill without Chicago votes.

Fights Statewide Rule.

"On that basis I am prepared to oppose any attempt to revive the proposal for a state commission or for state licensing. Such machinery either would be worthless in every way or it would be, if an effort were made to make it amount to something, an unnecessary expense and an unjustifiable invasion of the rights of cities to home rule. The responsibility for licensing and for enforcement must be concentrated on the local authorities."

He was asked whether he saw a violation of home rule in the draft proposal confining the dispensing of whisky to tables but permitting the service of beer and wines at bars in places where food is offered for sale.

"One of two things should be done with the major proposal of that requirement," he answered. "The state should either prohibit drink bars completely or should keep hands off the question, leaving the local communities to determine whether they want bars, beer, and wine bars, booze bars or any other kind of bars.

Asks Local Decision on Bars.

"As I read the proposed law, it would give cities the right to go half way in this matter. They could not authorize the service of liquor at bars but in other places where liquor is not sold they could permit bars where beer and wine are sold. If that is a correct construction, why not leave the whole question to the cities?

"This half-way authorization is dangerous. Every beer and wine bar would be selling whisky. There is no doubt about that.

"And Chicago, I am unalterably convinced, is absolutely opposed to such a condition. If the whole question were a municipal one, the city council, I feel sure, would prohibit drinking bars of any kind. I shall urge it to do so."

The mayor repeated his former criticism that any requirement making the sale of liquor contingent upon food in any way would not strengthen the law a particle.

Ward Withholds Prediction.

Senator Ward said that while all fifteen members of the commission have been mailed copies of the draft he prepared in collaboration with DeWitt Billman of the state legislative reference bureau in compliance with general policies adopted some time ago, he would not forecast the action tonight.

"The commission is divided in its opinions on some points," he said, "but we recognize the necessity for unity behind our bill if it is to receive the two-thirds vote required for it. We also know that it must be a bill acceptable to the major elements in the assembly such as the downstate and Cook county blocs. Controversial matter must be reduced to a minimum. And the bill must be kept in the simplest possible form.

"It is probable that there will be some changes agreed upon when we meet at Springfield, but we hope that they will be in those two directions—toward making the bill acceptable to two-thirds of the assemblymen and toward simplicity."

May Amend Bar Section.

The chairman was asked if he considered it likely that the section concerning bar service might be changed.

"That's entirely possible," he said. "That section was drafted the way the commission wanted it at the latest meeting, but it may look entirely different in print. My personal opinion is that the bill would be strongest with all elements, including reasonable drys if drink bars were prohibited anywhere in the state. However, there might be just as strong approval for leaving the whole matter to the home folks."

Chairman Ward said that he personally agreed with Mayor Kelly that a food selling provision need not be included in the bill.

"If we require that food be offered for sale,'" he said, "the old 'rubber sandwich' will come back into use. If we say intoxicants may not be sold except with food we limit sales to restaurants, and that has not been the intention of the commission.

Aims to Crystallize Sentiment.

"It must be remembered that all of these provisions were drawn up to meet the somewhat informal instructions of the commission so that before finally passing on them the members might have the text of a complete bill before them. Any of them are subject to change, either in wording or in principle."

It is possible that Gov. Horner may be invited to meet with the commission tonight. So far he has refused to "interfere" with the deliberations of a body representing the legislative branch of government. The meeting is to be executive except for the press, which has been admitted to all sessions in order to prevent possible garbling of the proceedings due to second hand reports of what occurred.

Cook County Leads Nation in Profitable Gardening

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Although Cook county, Illinois, ranked second in the number of acres its farmers devoted to raising mixed vegetables, it made more from its acreage than any other county in the nation. The bureau of census reported today than in 1930 Cook county farmers made $579,502 from the sale of products raised on 2,643 acres. Hidalgo county in Texas devoted 3,730 acres to mixed vegetables, from which was received $218,749.

STATES TO USE VARYING MEANS OF LIQUOR RULE

Survey Shows Regulatory Plans to Date.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

After repeal—what?

With prohibition of intoxicating liquors about to be officially removed from the organic law of the nation, the question of regulation takes on the complex pattern of the behavior modes of the people of the states and parts of the states. There is no common solution in sight as to taxation, methods of sale, or as to what is intoxicating liquor.

These problems have become acute in the nineteen states that automatically revert to a wet status on Dec. 6. Illinois, Missouri, Delaware, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, and Pennsylvania are now wrestling with the problem. The status of Kansas as a dry state may be changed by a new vote of the people. Experimentation and education seem to be the mood of the people. Democratic decision takes the place of attempted enforcement from the top. It will be a varied, changing spectacle for years.

State Regulation Plans.

Interesting decisions have already been made by some of the states. These are reported in a summary of the situation issued by the American Legislators' association, which maintains a clearing house in Chicago. The regulatory decisions to date follow:

ARIZONA—Retail licenses granted by state liquor control board.

CALIFORNIA—Retail licenses granted by state authority; no sale by glass permitted.

COLORADO—Retail licenses granted by local authorities; no sale by glass.

CONNECTICUT—Retail licenses granted by state authority; no sale by glass; local option.

DELAWARE—Retail license by state authority; state owned store for wholesale sale; buyers' permits required for purchases in quantity; local option.

INDIANA—Retail licenses granted by state; no sale by glass.

MARYLAND—Retail licenses granted by local authorities in Baltimore county only.

MONTANA—State owned stores; no sale by glass; buyers' permits required; local option.

NEVADA—Retail licenses granted by local authorities.

NEW MEXICO—Retail licenses granted by local authorities, with state approval; buyers' permits required; local option.

NEW YORK—Retail licenses granted by state authority.

RHODE ISLAND—Retail licenses granted by local authorities; no sale by glass; local option.

Five states are to have new referenda on state dry laws in 1934.

Views on "Intoxicating" Liquor.

What this is about and the how the states regard the question of what is intoxicating liquor is discussed in the legislative association report by Rodney L. Mott, research consultant, as follows:

"The prohibition statutes in the states which have either statutory or state constitutional prohibition do not follow any common pattern, varying from each other in almost every provision.

"Beer and wine are specifically prohibited in Alabama and Georgia if they contain more than the traditional one-half of 1 per cent alcohol. The laws of eight states do not specify the alcoholic content prohibited in terms of a given per cent. These laws usually prohibit the manufacture or sale of liquors which are intoxicating in fact.' The Mississippi law is interesting in this connection. It provides for the punishment of any person who shall 'sell or barter; or give away or keep or have in his possession' liquors 'which if drunk to excess will produce intoxication.' The Supreme court of Mississippi has held that beverages with .13 per cent alcohol by weight are not intoxicating, while those with 2.12 per cent are.

2.75 Per Cent in Massachusetts.

"The Massachusetts statutes permit licenses to be granted for the sale of liquors with 2.75 per cent alcoholic content. Nineteen states permit beer and wine of 3.2 per cent alcoholic content. In two of these—Pennsylvania and Missouri—the definition of intoxicating liquors is contingent on the definition found in the federal laws.

"In Maine the repeal of the eighteenth amendment will automatically raise the permitted alcoholic content to 8 per cent. Several states have passed laws during the last year to relax restrictions on the distribution of medicinal liquor. Examples are Maine, Missouri, New Hampshire, South Dakota, and West Virginia.

"Amendments to the prohibition clauses of the state constitutions have been proposed by legislative action in five of the states. These are Florida, Idaho, Nebraska, South Dakota, and West Virginia. The referenda will be held in each state on Nov. 6, 1934. Ohio and Utah voted this month. Both remain dry by statutory provision. Ohio repealed its constitutional provision. Both now permit the sale of 3.2 beer.

"Most of the amendments to be voted on next year simply provide that the article shall be repealed. In a few cases the amendment would prohibit the return of the saloon. For instance, in West Virginia the amendment gives the legislature power to regulate the manufacture and sale of intoxicants, but any law for this purpose 'shall forbid and penalize the consumption and sale thereof for consumption in a saloon or other public place.' The Florida amendment permits local option, but prohibition continues until the locality has voted itself wet."

Analysis of State Laws.

An analysis of state liquor control laws that have been adopted to meet the new condition, made by Ann Neal of the Wisconsin legislative reference library, shows other interesting trends.

State liquor control commissions have been established in Connecticut, Delaware, Montana, New Mexico, New York, and Rhode Island. Indiana has an excise director. In Arizona the state tax commission administers the law, and in California it is administered by a state board of equalization.

Most of the states expressly prohibit the open saloon. California, Delaware, and Maryland prohibit sale of liquors over a bar.

The laws generally permit hotels or restaurants to serve wines and beers. Montana is the only exception. In six states, however, it may not be sold by the glass, even in restaurants. The most surprising example of this is California.

Some laws require the liquor to be served with a meal, but others only demand that it be served in a room where meals are regularly served. Ten of the states—all except New York and Nevada—prohibit the sale of liquor to minors. Several of the states have provisions permitting wives, sisters, or mothers of habitual tipplers to interdict sale of intoxicants to their spouses, brothers, or sons.

The posting is done by local authorities in Connecticut, or by state commissions, as in Delaware. In Colorado and Rhode Island the relatives of an inebriate may sue any dispenser who furnishes him with liquor after notice has been given. Some of the laws prohibit the sale of liquor to any person who is intoxicated, and in Delaware no one who has been convicted of driving while intoxicated may purchase liquor.

Decree Approving Miracles of Don Bosco Read to Pope

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A decree approving the miracles of Don Giovanni Bosco, the founder of the Salesian order for the care and training of children, was read today in the presence of Pope Pius XI. and an assembly of high churchmen and diplomats. This was one of the final steps toward Don Bosco's canonization.

LET TAX FIT POWER OF BEER, BREWERS ASK

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Brewers today recommended a reduction of $1 in the $5 a barrel federal tax on 3.2 beer and a $7 tax on brew of a higher alcoholic content.

This action was taken at a meeting of the executive committee of the United States Brewers association at which the American Brewers association also was represented.

C. D. Williams of New York, secretary of the United States Brewers association, said in a statement later:

"The federal tax on 3.2 beer at present is $5 a barrel, in addition to the tax imposed by its several states. By lowering the tax to $3 on the present legalized beverage, we will undoubtedly greatly increase the consumption of the lower alcoholic content beer which has been scientifically shown to be a non-intoxicating beverage.

"There are, however, people who want beer of a higher alcoholic content than 3.2. They will be willing to pay the higher tax of $7 a barrel."

Beached Liner Is Freed; Placed in a Drydock

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The liner Munargo, which was rammed Friday by the Deutschland in the upper bay, was shoved off the mud flats near Bedloe's island today and taken to a Brooklyn drydock for repairs. The Munargo had been beached after the collision tore a big gap in her side.

BIG DAIRIES HIT FOES TODAY WITH CREAM PRICE CUT

Chicago Milk Issues Await Consumers' Hearing.

Chicago's big milk companies will open a price war on their cut rate competitors who operate cash and carry milk stores today when they start delivering cream for 35 cents a quart, the same price charged by most of the cash and carry merchants.

The new price, a drop from 55 cents a quart, is to be charged by all of the milk dealers who signed the marketing agreement for the Chicago area, designed to put the planned economy of the agricultural adjustment act in effect in the city's milk business. Of some 300 dealers in the Chicago milkshed, the 87 who signed the agreement handle about two-thirds of the milk sold in the area.

The cut price applies only to cream by the quart. Half pint bottles of coffee cream cost 15 cents, as before. By this price setup the "big four" dairy companies and allied dealers hoped to strike at the cream trade of the cash and carry stands without disturbing their own sales in smaller quantities.

Fear Old Patrons Will Change.

Their spokesmen expressed fear yesterday, however, that housewives who have been buying cream from deliverymen all along will start purchasing by the quart, trusting to modern refrigeration to keep their cream sweet for several days. If this happens, the dealers fear a loss from their price cutting.

The price, paid farmers for milk from which cream is to be extracted remains unchanged at $1.45 a hundredweight, and this price is supposed to apply whether the milk comes from the Chicago milkshed or from the northern Wisconsin territory where several of the big dairy corporations get a large part of their cream.

The cream price cut was proposed to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and approved by him after a field survey had shown that it was from 35 cent cream, and not from milk at 7, 8, or 9 cents a quart, that the cash and carry dealers were making the bulk of their profit.

Threat to Slash Milk Price.

Early last week the large dairy companies had threatened that they might go into the cash and carry milk business on a city-wide scale, selling milk at prices below the 11 cents fixed by the marketing agreement. Whether they carry out this threat, it is believed, depends on the vigor with which AAA authorities apply the enforcement and licensing provisions of the milk code to put out of business the rate cutting competitors of the dealers operating under the code.

Friday it was reported in Washington that Secretary Wallace the following day would revoke the licenses of three large independent dairy companies which had admitted at hearings at Washington the sale of cut rate milk. License revocations would put the violators out of business.

But when he got the recommendations for revocations from the AAA attorneys he filed them without any action. According to present reports he will take no action on the matter until after a hearing for milk consumers is held by his agents in Chicago.

Expected Stands to Vanish.

It was the original theory of the AAA authorities that if the large independents who were dealing in cut rate milk both as retailers and wholesalers were put out of business the host of roadside cash and carry stands and city stores selling cut rate milk would drop out of the picture without any necessity for direct action against them for want of a supply of milk.

But when Elmer D. Hays, AAA attorney, opened hearings of price cutting charges last Tuesday against seventy-seven small cut rate dealers in Chicago, it developed that most of them got their milk directly from farmers, frequently paying as much for the milk or more than the milk delivery companies pay the farmers of the Pure Milk association, from whom they buy.

The failure of Secretary Wallace to take immediate action against the cut rate wholesalers, with the open minded manner in which Attorney Hays discussed their problems with the small violators, were taken as indications that enforcement of the milk code is to be suspended until consumers have a chance, at a local hearing, to present their views.

CHARGES AGAINST U. S. JUDGE WILL BE SIFTED TODAY

Miami, Fla., Nov. 19.—(AP)—A house judiciary sub-committee tomorrow will begin an investigation into charges against the official conduct of Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter, with exoneration or impeachment proceedings as the ultimate result.

Holding the spotlight of interest in the hearing, which probably will consume three or four days, will be an inquiry by the committee of five into the appointment of federal receivers in bankruptcy cases by Judge Ritter and fees allowed those receivers.

Members of the committee—four Democrats and one Republican—declined tonight to discuss details of the charges or announce a list of witnesses.

Carl T. Hoffman of Miami will represent Judge Ritter, who was appointed to the federal judgeship by President Calvin Coolidge in 1929.

FAMOUS CHINESE ARMY REVOLTS; JOINS RED FORCE

40,000 Troops Split with Dictator.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 19.—The presence of United States Minister Nelson T. Johnson and Rear Admiral F. B. Upham aboard the Augusta, flagship of the American Asiatic squadron, at the port of Amoy today lent international interest to the declaration of independence from the Nanking government by China's famous 19th Route.

The presence of the American flagship commanded by Capt. C. W. Nimitz, with the fleet admiral and the United States minister aboard, was purely a coincidence since the southern cruise was planned several weeks ago. The Augusta is scheduled to visit Hong Kong and Manila. Mr. Johnson is planning to leave the flagship at Hong Kong and make his first visit to Canton since his appointment in December, 1929.

Holiday Called for Today.

According to reports brought to Shanghai from Fukien province, the 19th Route army's split with Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, dictator of China, and declartion of independence were accompanied by considerable revolutionary enthusiasm. Tomorrow will be a business and school holiday with public organizations and pupils parading. Chief festivities will be held at Foochow and at the port of Amoy.

The 19th Route army, which defended Shanghai against the Japanese early last year, now has 40,000 men. While it is rumored that an understanding has been reached between the 19th army and communists in Kiangsi province, it is not expected that immediate hostilities will result unless a clash develops with the Canton commander, Gen. Chen Chi-tang. He is an ally of Marshal Chiang.

Those participating in the Fukien independence move include Chiang Kwang-nai, governor of the province, Gens. Tsai Ting-kai, Chen Ming-shu and Tai Chi of the 19th Route army and Li Chai-sum, Kwangsi province leader.

Calls Political Parley.

Wang Ching-wei, chairman of the Nanking executive committee, tonight sent messages to Canton as well as North China inviting leaders to attend a political conference. Canton's real attitude is still uncertain, for while Gen. Chen Chi-tang is an ally of Marshal Chiang, most of the Canton political leaders, including Hu Han-min, are strongly against Nanking.

The fact that Fukien's chief political principle is continued opposition to Japan has caused apprehension that it is likely to provoke Japanese intervention. The province contains extensive Japanese interests and is regarded as a Japanese sphere due to its location opposite the Japanese island colony on Formosa.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Watch out for the hazards of winter

but also try to avoid low resistance!

You can't go out in bad weather unprotected. People who take foolish chances usually pay for it in illness.

But outward precautions, you'll find, are not always enough to keep you well. It's necessary also to have good resistance!

The time to build up your natural forces is before you take sick. The body should be encouraged to use its own defenses as protection against illness.

One way of helping to do this is to obtain certain factors needed every day for good resistance—Vitamins A and D.

These factors, so essential for building-up, are abundantly provided by halibut and cod-liver oils with Viosterol.

But people who do not care to take the oils may obtain them in concentrate form—Squibb Adex Tablets-10 D.

CRIMINAL COURT OPENS DRIVE TO REDUCE DOCKET

Sullivan Moves to Cut the Pending Cases to 500.

Chief Justice Philip L. Sullivan of the Criminal court today will launch a campaign among his associate judges to reduce the number of cases on the court's docket to at least 500 by the time he leaves the Criminal bench to become a federal district judge about Dec. 1.

With only 500 pending cases, it was pointed out yesterday, the authorities would be able to bring defendants to trial shortly after crimes are committed, thus eliminating the long delays which have given aid and comfort to criminals.

Judges Outpace Grand Jury.

"Our objective is far from being an impossible one," Chief Justice Sullivan said. "At the start of the September term of court, the number of indictments awaiting assignment for trial totaled 841. The total now is 713, which represents a net gain of 128 cases."

During the period since September the grand jury returned 118 indictments while the Criminal court disposed of 246 indictments.

"I am calling upon my fellow judges, not to accelerate their already great efforts, but merely to keep up the excellent pace," Chief Justice Sullivan said. "I am immeasurably pleased by the coöperation I have already received from them, and it would afford me the utmost gratification to present the next chief justice with the smallest court calendar of modern years."

New Murder Trial Today.

The chief case scheduled for today is the murder trial of Arthur Barty, charged with complicity in the torture slaying last March 16 of Theodore Zutaut, 55 years old, 12017 Lowe avenue.

Barty and Mike Lepas, who is a fugitive, went to Zutaut's home and beat him in an effort to learn the hiding place of $4,000 they had been told he kept in a cigar box, according to the state's evidence. When the beating did not succeed in its purpose, Lepas shot and killed Zutaut, it is alleged.

Lepas has not been caught. Barty was granted a separate trial and he was expected to testify against Edward Weiss, who drove the robbers to the Zutaut home. Barty refused to testify, however, and Weiss was acquitted last Friday by a jury before Judge Harry B. Miller. The state then announced it would seek the death penalty for Barty.

SAMMONS TO ASK TRIAL BE MOVED TO SOUTH INDIANA

James [Fur] Sammons, rapist and murderer, will ask for a change of venue, it was learned yesterday, when he is arraigned today before Judge William J. Murray in Crown Point, Ind. Sammon's attorneys will assert that the people of Lake county, Indiana, have become prejudiced against the well known gangster because of the publicity given Sammons' arrest in a Cedar Lake, Ind., roadhouse two weeks ago.

Indiana had planned to try Sammons under the habitual criminal act. If convicted, he would be imprisoned for life. If a change of venue is granted, there will probably be another delay before Sammons is put on trial. His lawyers asked that he be tried in another Indiana county, preferably a southern county.

State's Attorney Robert G. Estill announced that Sammons would first be tried on a charge of attempted bribery. Deputy Sheriff John Cook is ready to testify that Sammons offered him $200 not to arrest him in the roadhouse. If successful in convicting the gangster of this offense, the prosecutor would then offer evidence that Sammons had previously been convicted of two felonies, those of rape and murder.

MUSSOLINI WINS DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST COUNT

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

ROME, Nov. 19.—Premier Mussolini won his suit for damages against Count Bernard Transfo yesterday.

The suit was brought in the premier's capacity as the minister of interior because the count had beaten a state's attorney at Catanzaro. Mussolini contended that his dignity and prestige had been injured by an attack on an official in his employ.

The count was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment for assault and battery. He was also required to pay heavy damages which were handed over to the Fascist welfare organization in the province of Catanzaro.

NEW $3,000,000 CHURCH OPENED IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 19. — (AP) — First services were held today in the new $3,000,000 Christ Methodist Episcopal church on Park avenue, and several hundred persons were unable to get in after the 1,200 seats were filled.

The cathedral, a union of the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal and the East 61st street Methodist Episcopal church, is byzantine in architecture. Four columns of purple marble support the dome of the main auditorium.

In the chancel, which is not complete, the semi-dome will be of gold mosaic with a huge figure of Christ done almost entirely in ivory.

FIND HART'S HAT IN BAY; NO TRACE OF YOUTH'S BODY

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Pressing the search for the body of Brooke Hart, 22 year old victim of a kidnap plot to obtain $40,000, authorities today found his hat on the mud flats on the Alameda county side of San Francisco bay.

The hat, identified by Deputy Sheriff John Moore, was found 976 feet north of the San Mateo bridge, from which the two men held, Thomas H. Thurmond and Jack Holmes, have allegedly confessed they threw young Hart after he had been stunned by blows.

The hat, authorities said, floated to the spot.

Investigators Find It.

Two investigators for the Alameda county district attorney's office, George Henningsen and Joseph Brandon, found the hat. They turned it over to officers here.

Inside the hatband was the name of the San Jose department store operated by young Hart and his father, Alex J. Hart.

Meanwhile police continued their operations of dragging the bay with grappling hooks, in an endeavor to recover the body, which was weighted, the statements of Thurmond and Holmes declared, with concrete blocks before it was thrown from the bridge, just an hour after Hart was kidnaped as he drove his roadster from a parking lot here Nov. 9.

Attempt to Get Ransom.

For nearly a week efforts were made to get the father to pay the $40,000 ransom demanded. Last Wednesday night Thurmond was seized as he was talking over a garage telephone to the elder Hart and a few hours later Holmes was arrested in his hotel.

14 MINERS KILLED IN BRITISH BLAST; 17 REACH SAFETY

CHESTERFIELD, Eng., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Fourteen men were killed in an explosion in a coal mine near here today. Seventeen others scrambled to safety when the blast trapped their companions 1,000 feet under ground. Four of them were slightly injured.

After three hours of feverish digging, a hastily assembled rescue squad found the 14 entombed miners dead from firedamp. Rescuers said the roof of the mine had crashed behind the men as they stood at the coalface, completely cutting off escape. It was assumed the disaster was caused by an explosion of coal gas.

Prince George motored from Chatsworth this afternoon to offer, in person, the sympathy of his father, King George.

14 MILLION SAVED BY COUNTY IN 2 YEARS: WHEALAN

$100 Tax of '30 Reduced to $74, He Says.

Reductions in the cost of county government under his administration were analyzed by President Emmett Whealan of the county board in a public statment issued yesterday. It accompanied the announcement of his candidacy for renomination and reelection.

The statement placed the total "savings" during his service as head of the board at $14,406,960. The reduction in corporate expense during this period was given as a cut from $23,823,673 in 1930, to $17,509,773 in 1933, which spelled a lowering of costs to the taxpayer of $6,313,900.

The highway fund, the statement said, was decreased from $7,207,584 in 1930 to $750,000 in 1933, and the costs of the forest preserve commission in the same period dropped from $6,424,019 to $4,888,594, a difference of $1,535,425.

Refuses to Cripple Service.

"When the demand came for lower taxes, economies, and retrenchments in public office," continued the statement, "President Whealan was in the vanguard, agreeing to do all in his power to retrench and lower taxes, but refusing to cripple the public services of Cook county and the forest preserve district.

"He met with severe opposition from within and without the board of county commissioners when his first budget, which was reduced $8,000,000, was presented. After a severe legislative battle it was adopted.

"Perhaps Worst Two Years."

"Having faced perhaps the worst two years any president of the county board had been called upon to direct, he has, sans ballyhoo or ostentation, gone forward creating new facilities for the accommodation of the public, building the necessary roads, extending the charity service, and improving the forest preserve district.

"The combined corporate and highway tax levies have been decreased, based on $100 to 1930 to $56 in 1933. The bond and interest fund levies were increased in these three years due to the large amount of relief bonds for which the county is bearing the burden. Notwithstanding this factor, there was a net reduction from $100 in 1930 to $74.83 in 1933."

Lindbergh Delay Hop Off to Azores; Attend Picnic

LISBON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh said today he would not take off for the Azores tomorrow. He did not announce a definite date for the departure. Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh spent the day at a picnic on the grounds of a castle captured from the Moors in 1140, when King Alfonso Henriques founded the Portuguese monarchy.

CERTIFICATES TO BE AWARDED 500 IDLE TEACHERS

Approximately 500 Chicago teachers temporarily out of work because of the operation of the board of education's economy program will be awarded teaching certificates within a week, Supt. William J. Bogan announced yesterday. Of this number 300 will be reëmployed in the school system. The reëmployment is possible because of vacancies through deaths, retirements and other causes.

The additional number of certificates will be granted in order that some of the unemployed teachers may avail themselves of opportunities to take positions in other schools or employment in federal positions, it was explained.

The board's economy measures placed 1,386 teachers on the waiting list with the abolition of junior high schools and household arts in the lower grades. Of this group 1,260 enrolled at the Normal college to take special courses of instruction entitling them to high school or elementary school certificates.

Mr. Bogan said that the 300 teachers to be reëmployed in the school system will be those who have made the best grades at Normal college and those who have seniority. Plans for the reëmployment will be perfected at a meeting of the board of superintendents today.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

RECOGNIZING THE SOVIET REGIME.

In the published exchanges between President Roosevelt and the soviet emissary, Litvinov, the political position taken by Woodrow Wilson and adopted by Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover has been abandoned by President Roosevelt. The first basis for refusal of recognition by President Wilson was that the bolshevik government was not a representative government. It is no more representative now than when President Wilson refused recognition. The present Russian régime may have the passive consent of the great majority of the Russian people, but it was established by force and is the government of a party composed of a very small minority of the 160 millions of Russian people. Dissent was obliterated by execution and exile and the party in power does not tolerate it now. Litvinov himself was a supporter of these measures, and if he and his associates do not now employ them conspicuously they have given no evidence that they have repudiated them as a legitimate means of seizing and holding power. Mass execution and imprisonment on a large scale were so effectual that they are not now necessary or expedient.

The other grounds for refusing diplomatic relations were confiscation of American property in Russia, the repudiation of our loans to the czarist and Kerensky governments, and the propaganda directed against our institutions in the interest of worldwide revolution. There is no announcement of agreement upon the property claims, except that the Russian claims for repayment of the damages alleged to have resulted from American participation in the Murmansk and East Siberian expeditions have been waived. The question of propaganda has been dealt with in a declaration that the Russian government will refrain. Also a pledge of religious freedom for Americans in Russia has been given.

The experience of Great Britain with the bolshevik government's pledges to refrain from the fomenting of internal disorder in Great Britain and the empire throws light on the pledge to the United States. In this regard the conclusion of a sympathetic examination of the Russian situation by the American Foundations Committee on Russian-American relations deserves attention. Of the assertion of advocates of recognition that the communist idea of world revolution has become unimportant the report says: "We believe that the Comintern" [or communist international propaganda agency], "and hence its members, which include the Communist party of Russia, which now controls the soviet government, is as much committed to world revolution as ever." All that the report concedes is a change of emphasis on the part of the soviet leaders, the latter having allegedly concluded that the best means of spreading the world revolution is to make their experiment in Russia a success.

If our present government is disposed to contribute to that success, it is nevertheless worth while to recall the reasoning upon which the refusal of recognition was founded, as summarized in a communication of President Wilson's secretary of state, Bainbridge Colby, to the Italian ambassador, of which the following paragraph is the gist: "In the view of this government, there cannot be any common ground upon which it can stand with a power whose conceptions of international relations are so entirely alien to its own, so utterly repugnant to its moral sense. . . . We cannot recognize, hold official relations with or give friendly reception to the agents of a government which is determined and bound to inspire against our institutions; whose diplomats will be the agitators of dangerous revolt; whose spokesmen say that they sign agreements with no intention of keeping them."

We don't doubt that expediency will cause the soviet government and the Comintern, which is its instrument for international mischief making, to be more careful in its methods, especially in the United States. But the American people should understand that the leopard has not changed its spots and that bolshevik influence will be pressed as efficiently as is expedient. The communist power is unavoidably hostile to democratic and capitalist peoples, and President Roosevelt's complaisant attitude in this controversy will not be shared by Americans who are conscious of that permanent factor in our relations with the communist régime. The recognition by the United States of the soviet government will add greatly to the prestige of the latter and to the activities of its agency, the Comintern, wherever there are unstable conditions. Recognition is in fact a step to the left. Pledges of the communist power are qualified by the communist doctrine that it is not morally bound by agreements with capitalist countries. The present government will keep its pledges just so far and so long as expediency dictates. Now that Moscow needs credit it will not talk of repudiation or fail to pay its debts with due regard for its ability to get further advances. What the prospects of trade may be will be examined another day.

CHAMPIONS OF SOUND MONEY.

The committee on monetary policy, organized by twenty-six men of affairs in Chicago, has not come upon the field a moment too soon.

The currency meddlers and wreckers have been confronted as yet with little organized opposition. Probably the delay in organizing may be attributed to inability to believe that the administration was determined to do the things it is now doing. It was difficult to accept the fact that a party pledged to a sound money policy in its platform and by its candidates could have embarked upon its present program.

The Chicago committee is made up of able men and it is in no sense partisan. It includes men who stand high in the councils of the Democratic party. In many respects the committee bears a striking resemblance to the National Citizens' league, organized by Chicagoans in 1911 to educate the nation in banking reform. The league was a nonpartisan organization which devoted itself, under the able executive direction of Prof. J. Laurance Laughlin, to public education. Efforts were made, as Prof. Laughlin has described in his last book on the origins of the federal reserve act, to make the league a mere mouthpiece for Wall street opinion, but that attempt was successfully resisted. The league remained to the end a nonpartisan, independent organization under the leadership of substantial business men of Chicago, and its services were of inestimable value.

The newly organized committee on monetary policy is fortunate in the fact that the so-called committee for the nation is already in the field. It might be embarrassing to have to attack the administration directly, but the committee for the nation wears no halo. The committee for the nation has boasted that it has given the administration its currency policy. Certainly the committee for the nation has given the treasury its monetary experts.

There are now two champions in the field. A series of joint debates is indicated. Every newspaper in the country can be counted upon to devote columns to the contending arguments if the debate is properly staged. There has been no comparable opportunity for public education on a political issue of first rank since Lincoln met Douglas on the stump.

LIQUOR LEGISLATION.

It is said that Gov. Horner is under pressure of various groups to make a grist of unrelated matters for the disposition of another special session of the legislature. He will have general approval in his refusal of these demands and in following his own sensible inclination to include only liquor policy in his call. The repeal of the 18th amendment makes the passage of control legislation a paramount duty of the legislature, and it should not be subjected to the competition of any other problem. Relief legislation has been accomplished. The next step is liquor control, and the legislature should be free to concentrate upon it alone. The inclusion of other questions would delay action and entangle it in unrelated interests. The latter can and should wait until the urgent duty of liquor legislation has been performed.

FIGHTING FOR EXISTENCE.

[News-Herald, Hillsboro, O.]

For three months we have been waiting silently if not patiently, hoping that officials of the federal government in charge of the NRA would show some signs of intelligence, some desire to help business. As the days have gone by we have lost patience and now feel that it is time to speak, and speak plainly.

Since the NRA went into effect business has become steadily worse. There is no sign of improvement and we can see no hope of improvement as long as the owners of small businesses are harassed and persecuted, required to fight for the privilege to continue in business. Since the announcement that codes to control the operation of different lines of business must be submitted to and approved by the federal government, the representatives of the different lines have been having meetings. Each line first held group meetings, next state, and then national meetings. As codes were adopted committees representing each line took their code to Washington and submitted it to the NRA officials. The members of the committees would have meeting after meeting with the NRA officials, the officials would raise objection after objection and insist on the impossible.

We attended several state and one national meeting of representatives of small town newspapers and printing plants. We know that these men were sincere in their efforts to cooperate with the government; that they were anxious to do everything possible to make business better. They were willing to pay good wages and make the hours of their employés as short as was practical. They entered into what they thought was the spirit of the "New Deal."

Representatives of the small town newspapers have been in Washington for three months, but they have been unable to get a code approved by the government. One ground of contention has been that the newspapers insist that a clause be included in their code guaranteeing "the freedom of the press." The government will not accept a code with this provision in it. We believe that any newspaper man who will sign a code without such a provision in it is not a good citizen.

The owners of country newspapers in the United States have spent many thousands of dollars trying to draft a code the government will approve. The country newspaper business is like every other line of business, many in it are struggling to exist; most of them have lost money for several years. The money they have spent on codes they needed for pay rolls, to pay bills, to buy food and clothing, but they knew their businesses would have to close if the restrictions asked by the federal government were placed in force and they have made their contributions. In the newspaper business we know that the representatives of the government have shown a woeful lack of knowledge of conditions, lack of tact, have been unfair and unjust; that instead of helping they have made conditions which were bad much worse.

What has happened in the newspaper business we think has happened with all small concerns. What ostensibly was for the purpose of helping business has injured and if a change does not come soon will absolutely cause many small plants to close. The owners of country newspapers are fighting to keep the government from putting them out of business. If that is the principle of the "New Deal," the purpose of the NRA, then we are opposed to it and will oppose it with all of the energy we have.

We hope that the representatives of the country newspapers in the nation will have the courage to tell the NRA officials: "Here is our code. We have made every possible concession. This is all we will do and is more than we should do. We have nothing more to say. Approve it or reject it. If you reject it we will urge every newspaper owner to refuse to sign any code you draw." They should refuse to attend any more hearings and leave Washington.

It is time for decisive action. So far as we can learn the only place which has benefited from the NRA is Washington, where the hotels have been crowded for months with men trying to protect their business from the government, spending time which should have been devoted to their business, spending money which was needed for pay rolls, merchandise, and equipment. Men fighting to keep the government from destroying their businesses. And this in the United States.

"THE MOST TRAGIC PHASE of the depression the world over," said Constance Brown, secretary of the Eugenic Society of Great Britain, to an audience out in Hollywood, "is the fact that it has prevented marriages." Not in Hollywood, Constance, not in Hollywood. They not only get married in Hollywood, Constance, depression or no depression, but they get married again and again and again.

All we need is bigger and better waste baskets.

UNRESIGNED.

And this, he said, was once my heart's desire:
To sit before a comfortable fire,
To smoke a contemplative pipe, and drowse
Through idle dreams, or, half awake, to browse
Among beloved books; to feel secure
From strife and storm; impassionate, mature;
Inert, indifferent, and surfeited
With Life's rewards and penalties, he said.

But now, he said, within my inglenook
I sit, but dream not, and each favorite book
Lies all unopened that I meant to read.
Stale ashes cloy my pipe; I give no heed
To Age's retrospective blanishments,
And in response I find no recompense,
But stir the fire and vainly try, instead,
As in my youth, to plan and peer ahead.

And vainly long to feel the stinging rain,
Hurling its challenge in my face again;
To overcome the ramparts of the snow;
To mock again the maddest winds that blow;
To dare the fury of the fiercest storm,
And feel my heart intrepid still, and warm—
To carry on—ah, still to carry on
Into the twilight, as from out the dawn.

So I have learned, he said, there is no goal
That satisfies the longings of the soul.
There is no journey's end, no ultimate
That, gained at last, shall ever compensate;
No respite from the struggle and the strife
That are the aim and end and joy of Life.
And only when Death's ashes quench the fire
Shall I no more endeavor and aspire.

EOLUS.

FROM NOW ON it will be distinctly bad form to speak of the "revolutionary massacres" in Russia. If you just must hark back to the dear old days, you can speak of those things as misunderstandings, accidents, and acute indigestion.

AND WE'LL HAVE TO LEARN how to drink vodka. We can begin practicing by sipping a mixture composed of a little tanning fluid, bay rum, mucilage, chopped barb wire, kerosene, and nitroglycerin. But after drinking white mule and bootleg hootch for fourteen years it won't take us long to get used to vodka.

AND, ANYHOW, it will be a pleasure to go to Russia, which is doubtless the only place in the world where we won't see ex-Russian grand dukes or cousins of the tzar as doormen outside of the hotels or hear the "Song of the Volga Boatmen."

DESPERATE SUGGESTION.

Oh, I've a velvet mantle,
With ermine at the throat,
And a haloed bonnet—
The ladylike new note.

And I've a scarlet evening frock,
A matching feather fan,
And flocks of other clever clothes
To please a gentleman.

Yet you keep bumping into me
When I'm in shabby clothes,
Arms full of paper bags
And runs in both my hose.

Since street cars in the morning
Leave no room for airs and graces,
Listen, Handsome, don't you
Ever go nice places?

THAT WASHINGTON MOUTH.

GEORGE WASHINGTON died about thirty years before photography became available. In consequence we must depend on oil paintings for information as to his personal appearance.

He must have been a very fine appearing man and aware of the fact, else he would not have given up so much of his valuable time to sitting for portraits. But as to the many details of his appearance the evidence is conflicting. Painters disagree just as do doctors, judges, lawyers, and politicians.

The picture first in the hearts of the Masons was one that disclosed the man first in the hearts of his countrymen as being badly pockmarked and far from handsome. For one hundred years a war has waged as to whether a certain deep line across one side of the face, as shown in this picture, was a scar following a saber cut or some other wound, or just an exceptionally deep wrinkle.

In A Century of Progress exhibition at the Chicago Art Institute there were several pictures of him painted by different artists. The pictures by Stuart, and the duplications thereof by his students, show Washington looking the part. The totality of his expression is, "Here is the boss of the show. I know it and so does everybody else."

Part of this expression is due to the shape of his mouth—the result of lips closed in a straight, horizontal line. But part of it is because his mouth was a little overfilled and his lips tried to hold back something.

The dentists tell us that that expression was not because Washington had commanded armies, whipped Cornwallis, and then held the wild horses of his country in check for eight years. They say it was caused by his false teeth. These tools were not skillfully made and, in consequence, they had a way of flying in the face of friend and foe. Washington had the stern mouth which the Stuart pictures give him because he had to keep back the rebellion [perhaps some insisted it be called revolution] in his own mouth.

The Savage pictures in this exhibition do not have the same expression of the mouth. It may have been that in the days when Savage was doing his painting Washington's teeth were not troubling him so much. It is not likely that he had discontinued wearing his plates. When a person who has worn plates for a long time takes them out, his mouth has a certain caved in expression not found in the Savage pictures.

George Washington died in the period of senescence. He never reached senility, so many stories to the contrary. None of his pictures showed evidence of absorption of the bones and wasting of the soft parts of the lower face which characterize advanced senility, and evidence of which can be seen earlier.

YOU FORGET THEM.

G. E. writes: We are a group of girls in the office and very often these girls tell one another what they had dreamed. These girls dream on an average of four nights a week.

I very rarely dream—maybe three or four times during the year. The girls say there is something wrong somewhere.

REPLY.

Everybody dreams repeatedly—every night. Some remember dreams better than others.

BRINGING UP FATHER.

K. B. writes: My father runs a high blood pressure. It is about 175. He is 42 years old. Sometimes he has violent fits of temper and afterwards he must lie down and rest. Very often he has splitting headaches and complains of drowsiness. He likes to eat lots of meat and salt, which I know is bad for him.

REPLY.

Your job is to control father.

ENLARGED PORES.

J. G. writes: How can a person get rid of enlarged pores?

REPLY.

Massage the face daily with a piece of ice.

SALT AS TEETH CLEANER.

T. M. writes:

1. Is salt good to clean the teeth with?
2. Does it harm the enamel in any way?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. No.

RATHER LARGE DOSE.

B. D. writes: Would three drops of tincture of iodine in a glass of water three times a day be injurious to an adult?

REPLY.

Probably not, although the dose is a large one. We need iodine, but a little goes a long way. Fortunately we do not absorb all we swallow. It is easier to get the horse to the trough than it is to make him drink.

MORTGAGE NOTES.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man takes out a mortgage on his house from a bank. The bank closes six months later. He did not get the full amount that the mortgage called for; some money was still due him when the bank closed a year and a half ago. He has paid interest on the full amount. 1. Is he supposed to do this? 2. Is the bank supposed to pay the full amount of the mortgage? 3. Can anything be done to collect the money he did not get? A private party holds the mortgage.

J. E. P.

1. Presumably the notes were so worded as to be payable to bearer and are now in the hands of a holder in due course. Such holder would be entitled to enforce clear of defenses.
2. Your claim for the money they agreed to pay you is like the claim of depositors for the money that the bank agrees to pay out on checks. You will have to take the same dividend as other creditors.
3. Yes. See 2.

LIFE INSURANCE.

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can an insured's interest in a life insurance policy be levied upon in satisfaction of a judgment against the insured? 2. An insured pays all the premiums on his policy, but does not pay his other debts. Can he be legally restrained from paying the premiums, thus avoiding his other obligations?

E. M.

1. Yes, if under the wording of the policy the insured has the right to change the beneficiary.
2. It would be a roundabout procedure to ask for an order that he should not pay certain obligations. If money is available to pay creditors the remedy of the creditors would be to subject that money directly to the payment of their claims.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

STREET LIGHT.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—[Friend of the People.]—The third street light on our street, which was in the middle of the block, was moved towards the west end. Was that done because somebody has a drag, or only because the rest of the folks are supposed to annihilate themselves falling over posts and fences? T. V.

This particular lamp was moved preparatory to the installation of another light in this block, which will double the illumination. This second lamp will be installed in the near future. W. A. JACKSON, Commissioner of Gas and Electricity.

TALLIN, Estonia. — Estonia's debt to the United States, which amounts to approximately $16,000,000, could be paid providing the American government would help Estonia to dispose of a portion of its chief crop—potatoes. The United States is asked to sanction the import of potatoes in the form of potato alcohol, which could be either converted into beverages when prohibition ends, or used industrially.

"Before the war Estonia had 200 distilleries, which produced 50,000,000 quarts of alcohol a year for the Russian government," said Edward Wirgo, director of the foreign trade department of the ministry of foreign affairs. "Today we have 130 distilleries which could manufacture 15,000,000 quarts of potato alcohol for the United States.

"If some means were found whereby the American government could accept this amount at a nominal price we would be willing to use our income from this source to pay our debt to America. Our distilleries are owned by farmer coöperatives. We could pay the coöperatives through an internal bond issue, which, in turn, they could discount at our banks. In this way we could convert our debt to America into an internal debt, which could be paid over a period of years.

"Our debt to the United States is the largest item in our foreign obligations. It was contracted through the purchase of war materials in France, food and clothing and equipment for an army of 100,000 men, who won for us independence from the bolsheviks. The prices which we contracted to pay for these goods were extremely high and today, if we could pay in kind, we would only need to spend about one-tenth of what we owe to liquidate this debt."

Mr. Wirgo added that the Estonian trade with the United States has suffered because of this debt.

"During our fifteen years of independence we have imported about $28,000,000 worth of American products," he continued. "Formerly America occupied second place in our imports. Today she is fourth. There is no doubt but what we need more American manufactured goods, but we were compelled to impose import restrictions because we found the American and other markets closed to our products.

"Our trade balance with America has been passive for many years. For the first eight months of 1931 we imported from America products to the value of 3,800,000 kroons (a kroon is worth 25 cents), and our exports to the United States totaled 1,400,000 kroons. For the same period of 1932 the figures were: Imports, 2,400,000 kroons; exports, 881,000 kroons. For 1933 imports were 2,100,000 kroons and exports, 1,500,000 kroons. The increase this year is due to the fact we found a market in America for some of our hides.

"If some means could be found whereby the American government could accept the proceeds of our alcohol export as payment of our debt and assist us to convert this into an internal debt America would also benefit through increased exports to Estonia. Our farmers, finding a market for their staple crop, would become purchasers of American goods. Both countries would benefit if alcohol could be made an article of barter."

SELF-RESPECT PENALIZED.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Mrs. P.'s letter of the 14th prompts me to add my feeble protest to the plan proposed by the government of putting four million men on relief rolls to work. Are we, who have struggled to keep from accepting relief, to be penalized in this way?

My husband, an A1 structural engineer, has also been unemployed for over two years, and as we lost every cent we had been able to save in our entire married life in the collapse of the Bain banks, together with money our 21 year old son had saved to help pay his way through college, it was, of course, necessary for us to obtain assistance from some place. We felt, and still feel, that our pride and self-respect were all we had left, and that by asking charity we would have to relinquish that, so we have borrowed to the limit on life insurance, contracted personal loans, gave our personal note for rent which is now thirteen months in arrears, in order to keep off the relief rolls, and for what? Evidently there is no commendation for those who have suffered deprivation and who have struggled and fought a losing battle to stand on their own feet and try to hold the home and family together.

We who have kept off the relief rolls need help in the way of jobs more than those who have had this assistance and through it have been able to keep out of debt. Why should this discrimination be made against those of us who were brave enough and strong enough to try to work out our own problems instead of weakly throwing up our arms and turning the burden over to the government to take care of for us?

I also see that the mayor and about fifteen other politicians have left for Washington to ask for a share in this easy money in order to put 75,000 men to work, but again they must be men on relief rolls. We haven't a chance, Mrs. P., and we might as well give up trying, get on the relief roll and take what we, as American citizens, are entitled to, for it looks as though we will get nothing unless we are one of those who won't stand up and fight for ourselves but sit back and let the government do it for us.

MRS. R.

FORGOTTEN MEN.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—What is going to be done for those unemployed who are not on the relief, those who by "rugged individualism" have managed to scrape an existence?

I have not had a day's work in 3 years. I have a wife and daughter by whose efforts we have managed to exist, that is to say, we have kept a roof over our heads and had barely enough food, but as for other necessities, such as clothes, doctors, dentists, etc., why we have to do without.

Now all the talk is of work for those on the relief only, and the white collar man, who is the backbone of the nation, is left in the cold as usual. I am in the "doomed forties," a graduate engineer. Surely those who are out of work and are not on the relief should have a chance of getting work.

FORGOTTEN MAN.

THE RED CROSS.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—The public mind is naturally confused by the multiplicity of relief drives going on now. Every day I receive reports that people are saying, "O, I've already contributed to the community fund!" believing that in doing so they have also lent a share of their support to the Red Cross. I have even heard that some are saying, "O, I've already joined the Red Cross!" The Red Cross is not participating in the community fund for allied Chicago charities [in fact, only half of the 200 agencies holding membership in the Council of Social Agencies of Chicago are included in the fund]. We are not attempting to be independent, but we are hoping we can reëstablish our dependency on our own resources. As a membership, quasi-governmental, and emergency organization our committee feels we should retain the annual roll call as our means of providing revenue.

JAMES T. NICHOLSON,

FROM A CASEWORKER.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Your articles about relief and caseworkers have tempted me to write to you several times in the past. Each time, however, I delayed such action hoping that in the future you would become informed about actual conditions under which relief is issued.

Speaking as a member of the Cook county bureau of public welfare, our cases almost always require considerable individual case work. In the past such situations were handled by private agencies who limited the worker's case load to perhaps fifty families at the most. Even that number, however, was considered high. During the period which your article charges was rampant in fraud, our workers were caring for from one hundred and fifty to two hundred families each.

A man, or head of the house, finds it difficult to care for his own family—yet you expect us to care for efficiently, and help solve the problems of more than one hundred families.

You are doing nothing but creating an uncooperative and unsympathetic attitude among the people of Chicago, instead of getting them to help solve the problems of assisting thousands of needy.

ROSE LEE HALPERIN,
Caseworker.

THE VOICE OF PARK RIDGE.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—An interesting article in yesterday's TRIBUNE reports that although several of our suburban towns are in dire need of improved water and sewage facilities they are refusing to take easy money from the government because, as officials of these municipalities explained, "this is no time to increase the local public debts and add to the tax burden of the taxpayer."

Three rousing cheers for the common sense officials of Evanston, Oak Park, and these other Chicago suburbs.

The home owners of Park Ridge are not lacking in pride, but they, too, are overburdened with taxes, so why a new city hall? With so many families destitute for the absolute necessities of life, why not call off the election, which would represent a saving to the city of some $500, and place this sum in the hands of the relief committee, where it would really do some good? A. H. H.

THE MASSACRE MONUMENT.

Oak Park, Ill., Nov. 13.—Referring to the Fort Dearborn Massacre monument at 18th street and Calumet avenue: The monument is inscribed as follows: "To the Chicago Historical society, May, 1893, in Trust for the City of Chicago and for Posterity."

Now that it has been decided that the World's Fair will continue for another year, it would seem that arrangements ought to be made to restore this monument to its original condition and give it a suitable setting.

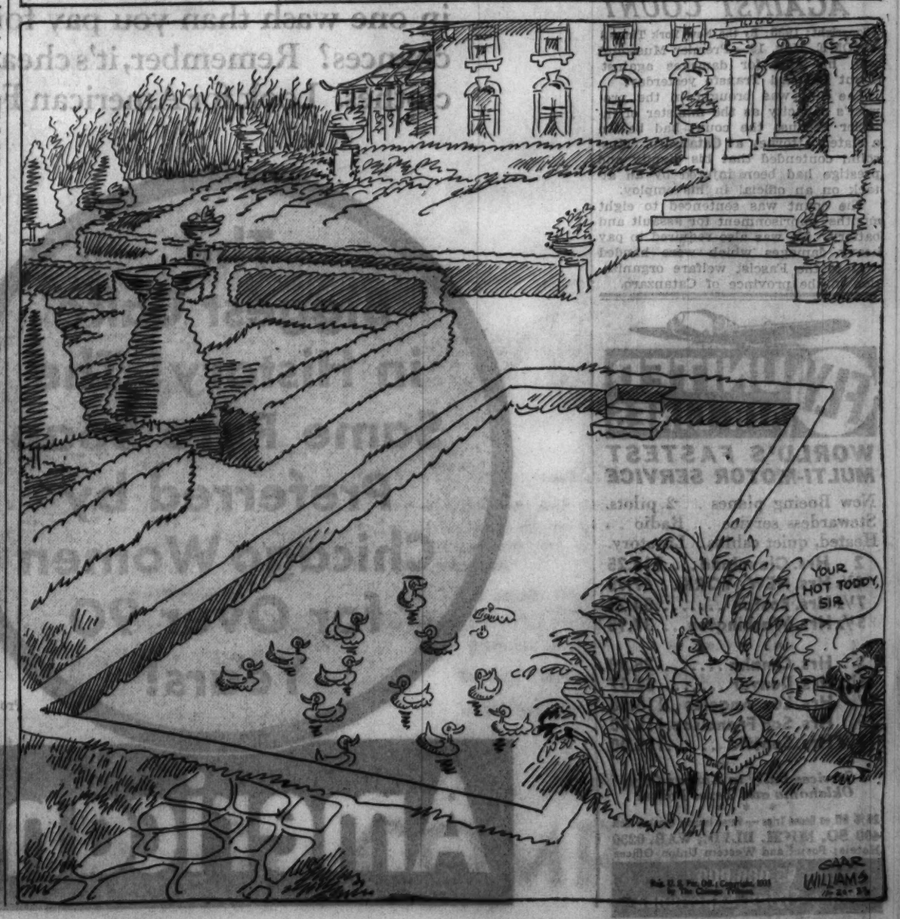
OUR SECRET AMBITION



PORTO RICO ASKS RELIEF ON HIGHER PRICES FROM U. S.

Seeks Aid from Roosevelt on Island Exports.

BY HARWOOD HULL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 19.—Commodity price advances in the United States have resulted in an increase in the cost of living in Porto Rico of 25 per cent, according to the chamber of commerce. The chamber has asked the federal government to extend to Porto Rico all national relief and emergency recovery measures. It points out that price advances in the United States have been immediately felt here while there has been no corresponding benefit to island products.

Specifically the chamber of commerce wants the national recovery act and the agricultural allotment act applied to the island. The two laws are applicable to Porto Rico, it is admitted, but the official action necessary to extend them here has not been taken.

Twelve industrial and business organizations have joined with the chamber of commerce in making an urgent request to President Roosevelt that there be no further delay.

Warn of Further Distress.

The message to the President emphasizes that the island is called on to pay more for its basic necessities while its own products for export, such as sugar, remain at low levels. Unless these products can benefit from the administration policy of price increase, the effects of depression, already acute, will become more distressing, business leaders contend. Gov. Robert H. Gore, now in the United States, has promised to aid in presenting the island's situation to Washington authorities, although the governor's illness, which has taken him north, is expected to limit his activities.

So far island industries are not working under codes, although several groups forwarded tentative drafts of working agreements to Washington more than two months ago. There have been frequent dispatches from Washington stating that an NRA coordinator for the island was to be appointed and that local codes, based on island conditions, were to be applied, but so far no definite action has been taken.

There is much interest in the announcement that Dr. William Myers will succeed Henry Morgenthau Jr. as head of the agricultural credit administration. Dr. Myers a few years ago made a survey of island agriculture and recommended that farm credits then availble be extended to Porto Rico.

Rice Doubles in Cost.

To substantiate the statement that living costs have gone up without corresponding increase for island products it is pointed out that prices for the new rice crop just announced are practically double those of a year ago. Porto Rico is the largest consumer of American produced rice, and rice is the largest item in a long list of food imports. Last year the island imported 2,400,000 bags of rice at an average landed price of $2.06 per bag, the lowest price the island has ever known.

Based on the new price of rice, it is contended here that island sugar should bring in the neighborhood of $4.50 per hundred pounds. Those who watch the island's buying power contend it is almost wholly fixed by the sugar price, sugar amounting to about 60 per cent of the value of all exports.

A recent bulletin on island economic conditions says that employment has declined to the point where privation and want have reached alarming proportions. Promised relief and public works measures so far have resulted in the employment of approximately 1,000 men in citizens' conservation camps. By the end of next week it is estimated that probably 6,000 men will find employment on roads.

COMMUNITY FUND SUBSCRIBERS WILL RECEIVE EMBLEMS

Lapel buttons bearing the letters "C" and "F" in fields of white separated by a narrow tricolor of red, white, and blue are the emblems to be worn by those who subscribe to the community fund, officials of the Allied Chicago Charities explained yesterday.

The buttons will become familiar to the public as the work of raising $4,000,000 for the 102 private charities and welfare agencies continues. The private institutions, it was emphasized, must depend for their support entirely on contributions.

Already more than $1,500,000 has been subscribed through the sponsors' division, which hopes to get at least half of the total sum needed. In the first three days of the campaign 241 firms, employing 175,000 persons, agreed to cooperate in the solicitation of the workers.

THE 4TH GREAT MARKET IN AMERICA

FEW markets anywhere offer so simple a problem of coverage, and yet are so rich in opportunities as Detroit.

It is America's fourth market, yet it has one newspaper which, by itself, reaches 71% of the purchasing power homes of Detroit—The Detroit News.

Its effectiveness in translating advertisements into sales is witnessed by the fact that The News prints as much advertising as both other Detroit newspapers combined. Despite adverse economic conditions early in nineteen thirty-three, particularly accentuated in the Detroit market by an unequalled and protracted bank holiday, The Detroit News is among the first five newspapers in America in total advertising.

The secret of this achievement lies in Detroit's fundamental stability and in the fact that The Detroit News is the home newspaper of Detroit with better than 84% of its Sunday and 95% of its week-day circulation concentrated in the Detroit trading area, where it has the largest circulation of any Detroit newspaper.

With automobile production since April, 1933, showing tremendous increases every month over 1932 the Detroit market today offers a tempting field for the aggressive manufacturer to increase sales with rising payrolls.

Advertisers who seek economical big population coverage find the Detroit market ready for them on a platter because of the unique position of The Detroit News in its trading area.

Here in the Detroit trading area is concentrated 47.80% of Michigan's total population, 57% of Michigan's wage earners, 65% of Michigan's income tax returns and 59% of Michigan's assessed valuation.

Evelyn Mott Is Engaged to John Dodson

Romantic Events Feature Society Week-end.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE winged young man known as Cupid used his bow and arrow so effectively during the week-end that our leading items this morning are of a romantic nature. Two engagement announcements and one wedding come as interesting news.

When Miss Evelyn Cutler Mott, the daughter of the Russell Motts of Charlottesville, Va., arrived to visit her aunt and uncle, the Frank M. Mulfords, a week ago at their apartment at 222 East Delaware place, little did they anticipate the pleasure of disclosing the engagement of their niece. Yesterday afternoon at tea at their home Mr. and Mrs. Mulford made known the betrothal of Miss Mott to John Esser Dodson, son of Mrs. Richard Chapman and Truman M. Dodson, both of Bethlehem, Pa.

The announcement was prompted by the arrival of Mr. Dodson Friday night from the east for a week-end visit. The wedding is to be an event of the winter season.

It is appropriate that Miss Mott's engagement should be announced in Chicago, for until moving to Virginia seven or eight years ago she made her home with her parents in Highland Park. Mr. and Mrs. Mulford [Mrs. Mulford and Mr. Mott are brother and sister] invited several of their niece's old friends for tea yesterday as well as the members of their family.

Miss Mott studied at Farmington. The last summer she spent abroad with her mother. After she has collected the major part of her trousseau this week she will return to Charlottesville to make plans for her wedding. Mr. Dodson is returning east this morning.

Tell Engagement of Doris Starkweather.

Another engagement we are making known this morning is that of Miss Doris Estelle Starkweather, daughter of Mrs. Frank H. Starkweather of Evanston, to John Knox Donnan Jr., son of Mrs. John Knox Donnan of Austin, Tex. Miss Starkweather, who is one of the most popular young women on the north shore, finished at Miss Porter's school at Farmington. She is a member of the Evanston Junior league. The wedding is to take place in early December.

The bride of the week-end is another of Evanston's popular and attractive young women. At 4:30 Saturday afternoon at the home of her parents, Miss Julia Allan Hurd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boyd Hurd, became the bride of Melvin Eddy Luther, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Luther of Madison, Wis. Judge Francis S. Wilson, a member of the Appellate court, read the service before the immediate families.

The bride wore a shimmering white satin gown and a lace trimmed veil that is an heirloom in the Hurd family. Both Mrs. Howard Keller [Anna Catherine Hurd] and Mrs. Carroll H. Harrington [Harriet Hurd] used it on their wedding days. The bridal bouquet was a shower of valley lilies.

After a small reception, Mr. Luther and his bride left on a several weeks' honeymoon trip to Florida. The new Mrs. Luther is a graduate of Northwestern university and a member of both the Junior league and the Service club. Mr. Luther was graduated from the University of Wisconsin.

Miss Lydia Atwater to Be Bride Dec. 2.

An important December wedding in Evanston will be that of Miss Lydia Atwater, daughter of the Walter Hull Atwaters, to Norton Cotterill, son of Mrs. Ralph Cotterill of New York. The ceremony is to be read at 4:30 o'clock the afternoon of the 2d, which incidentally is Mr. Atwater's birthday, by Dr. Harold L. Bowen, rector of St. Mark's.

Mrs. John Taylor French, the former Ruth Atwater, has come from her home in California with Mr. French and their two children to be her sister's only attendant. Robert Cotterill of Dayton is to serve his brother as best man and ushering will be two brothers of Miss Atwater, Robert Morrison Atwater and Horace Brewster Atwater, Robert Huston and Willard Brown, both of Dayton, and Mr. French.

There will be at least a dozen and a half parties for Miss Atwater between now and her wedding day. After a luncheon tomorrow to be given by Mrs. Kingsley Loring Rice, Mrs. John Blunt III. is to be hostess at a tea at her Winnetka home. Other friends who will be luncheon and tea hostesses for Miss Atwater this week include Miss Helen Chapman, Mrs. Edwin Sherman, Mrs. Edward R. Hurlbut, Mrs. Sherwood Kellogg Platt, Mrs. Leslie Wagner, Mrs. Robert Clark, Mrs. Benjamin Wham, and Mrs. Wilder Pickard. Mrs. George B. Dryden and her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Miller, entertained for Miss Atwater last Friday.

After her marriage Miss Atwater will go to New York to make her home. In the east, however, she is certain to feel very much at home since many of the friends she made at Smith college, where she was graduated, are now living in and about New York.

Edith Thomas Will Be December Bride.

From Greenwich, Conn., comes word of the approaching marriage of Miss Edith P. Thomas, daughter of Mrs. Sterling H. Thomas, to Norman B. Johnson, son of the William B. Johnsons of Evanston. The ceremony, which will be attended only by the immediate families and a very few intimate friends, will be read the evening of Dec. 16 at the home of the bride's mother.

The Johnsons are planning to go east at least a week before the wedding day and with them will go their daughter, Miss Helen Johnson, Miss Ruth Cain, and Miss Margaret Cutler,

New Hostess Gowns Win Style Favor

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Something excitingly new!

Hostess gowns or house coats that look like twin sisters to the long, sweeping, picturesque new evening gowns. For instance, a ravishing shade of turquoise blue chiffon velvet trails the floor in back, wraps doubly around the waistline, has long shirred sleeves that drape in deep folds from the shoulder to the elbow, and a face framing collar of super-flattering chinchilla fur.

The same affair, every bit as breath-taking, comes in a lovely shade of mulberry, with the same becoming silvery gray fur collar. Another heart breaker of turquoise blue velvet is contrasted with rich, spicy, brown fur bands, tricky loops and windarounds that race around the shallow neckline, down the sleeves, around and under them near the elbow and up and out for the cuffs at the wrist. Honies, both of them!

You'll need good control to pass by a clever new white satin creation, simplicity itself, but a simplicity that shrieks of deft French fingers. The sleeves are full and puckered into holly green velvet cuffs, the neckline is high and demure, repeating the ruffled cuffs with a collar of matching holly green velvet that ties in a bow and hangs in two long ends well down to the hips.

For the house pajama collector there is a new combine that will make you swoon . . . full black velvet trousers are topped with a stunning brocaded white crepe velvet blouse. The blouse is long and in tunic formation. High on the left shoulder is splashed a scarlet frog that matches the huge scarlet frog that fastens the slender belt. An eye filling creation with a cunning red collar that any one could wear.

A distinctive padded robe for a chilly soul is marvelous. . . . a real shimmery, silver satin is discreetly quilted from the hem to the knees. Around the cuffs is a large quilted design in roses . . . but the lining will sell the affair. . . . a red silk crepe that will create a riot.

Then there is some new dotted satin lingerie . . . high colors cheerfully spattered in contrasting dots . . . some delightfully new black chiffon nightgowns, made with the newest high choking neckline and fascinating insets of cobweb black lace . . . new satin and sheer nightgowns, with deep V lace necklines in front tied at the waist with soft big bows and a billowing circular skirt . . . a copy of the nightgown Marilyn Miller wears on the stage in her new play . . . if you are checking the Christmas lists, now is the time to pick the best plums in the lingerie collections.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The bawdy note that has become so insistent in contemporary plays and books reaches a strident pitch in the comedy called "Sailor, Beware!" which had a première at the Selwyn theater last night. This piece, which comes to Chicago as the reproduction of a current New York hit, is a humorous fantasy dealing with the sex life of the common sailor, or "gob," who is supposed to have no reticences at all in his relations with women.

The amount of humor that any one will find in "Sailor, Beware!" depends altogether upon the amount of lewd, lascivious, and libidinous allusions that he or she can absorb happily at one sitting. I myself am somewhat fastidious in these matters, and after a salty anecdote has been in progress for about five minutes I begin to wonder if there isn't some other subject that might be just as amusing, or perhaps a bit funnier. I have observed, however, that many people are practically adamant to the erosive qualities of carnal mirth. They can "take it" ad lib, and bellow for more.

"Sailor, Beware!" is a comedy for such hardy folks with strong appetities for tales of the flesh. It strives in a single minded way to give them a full meal of their favorite subject. It takes a wisp of lubricous story and worries it with merry energy through eight scenes, never giving the theme a rest.

The story deals with the meeting of an irresistible force in sexual achievement and an immovable obstacle in female virtue. The former is "Dynamite" Jones, able seaman on an United States battleship; the latter is Miss "Stonewall" Jackson, a so-called hostess in a Panama cabaret. Bets are placed upon the outcome of this conflict, and nothing else is talked about until the epic struggle ends with "Dynamite's" decision to turn square and marry the girl.

The talk, I might add, is so frank that it verges on the embarrassing. The authors apparently decided that sex is no longer a private matter, and they have dealt with Mr. Jones and Miss Jackson as if these characters were guinea pigs in a eugenic experiment.

The trend of "Sailor, Beware!" is toward the fantastic and the farcical. The play is a sort of "Beggar's Opera" in current slang, with the lecheries of sailor-men as its theme. I believe that sailors themselves are far more reticent about their amours than the gabby gang of "gobs" who follow "Dynamite" to and from his trysts; and that some of the remarks in this play would bring the blush of shame to the rough, red neck of any hard-boiled marine. The first-nighters at the Selwyn, however, manifested no signs of alarm. Well educated in the eccentricities of the drama, they accepted the performance as another outburst of good, dirty fun.

Lawrence Gray and Marjorie Peterson are well cast in the leading rôles, and the various other "gobs" and girls, chosen for types, form a good company. They are new to their rôles, and therefore somewhat nervous. A week hence, I suspect, all the impertinent and brazen lines that failed to click out their laughs last night will be registering in the center of the target.

Front Views and Profiles

WE like the story Dan Wallace of St. Paul, editor of the Farmer, tells about the evening he spent in Washington with his nephew, Secretary Henry A. Wallace, and Mrs. Wallace. They invited him for dinner and sent a government limousine for him. When he arrived he found Mrs. Wallace in a favorite three year old dress, bought in Des Moines, and Mr. Wallace looking—shall we say comfortable? Mrs. Wallace said it was the first evening they had had to themselves in three weeks, and that they were having spare ribs and sauerkraut for dinner and, moreover, she was cooking it.

After dinner all three of them did the dishes and then they decided to see a movie. They started out, with no change of attire, in the government car, which was recognized as it went down the boulevard, and in a few seconds had a motorcycle escort with sirens. By the time they arrived at the movie there were newspaper photographers and a microphone, and the secretary was asked to say a few words. He did, and so did Mrs. Wallace, and their uncle says they didn't seem to mind their old clothes at all. And when the man at the microphone asked the secretary who the heavy set man was, Mrs. Wallace said informally:

"That's Uncle Dan Wallace from St. Paul."

MAYBE you won't be able to bear it, but the other afternoon Karl Krueger, who will conduct the operas intime benefit for the Olivet institute at the Palmer house tomorrow night, emerged from rehearsal in the Lyon & Healy building humming a tune that was not from Mozart, nor yet a fragment of Rimsky-Korsakoff. It was—don't scream—"Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf?"

MRS. LEONARD KARCHER tells about the woman who apparently thought the Red Cross was a club. The woman approached the booth in the Palmolive building where Mrs. Karcher was sitting and asked what the booth was for.

"The Red Cross. Won't you join?" asked Mrs. Karcher.

"No, I can't. I don't live in Chicago," the woman answered.

IN the morning mail: "Dear June: . . . I thought you might be interested in hearing about the old lady I ran into in the New Roxy's. I dropped in to see that very swell movie of 'The Private Life of Henry VIII.,' and was just finding my way through the labyrinth of passageways when I found the old lady. She had been lost for two weeks and had been living on peanuts and candy from the slot machine until she had no more change. I offered to help her and we finally came out on one of the many balconies. And I have never seen any one as mad as that old lady. The show had been changed while she was trying to find it! I have been spending the last ten days in New York with Tony Sarg, and he asks particularly to be remembered.

PERHAPS you remember how slippery it was the other morning. The woman Ruth Mortimer saw on Pearson street was taking no chances. She had a can of salt with her, and with hand outstretched before her poured salt on the pavement as she walked down the street.

Delightful Exhibit at Hoosier Gallery

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A delightful exhibition has been opened in the Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive. The paintings of four women are featured. Ruth Kealing, Hallie Prow, Lillie Fry Fisher, and Conde Wilson Hickok are the four.

Mrs. Hickok is the more familiar name. A tinge of sadness covers her part of the exhibit, for the showing of her pictures now is something in the mood of a memorial, her recent death being one of the several losses the art world of Chicago has suffered this year.

Mrs. Hickok was well known to a large audience for the beauty of her flower paintings and landscapes. Her ability was well beyond the range of the amateur. Several of the canvases in the current exhibit give proof of that. One of the finest is the "Killarney Bay," a composition in gray and brown showing water with hills beyond. It is beautiful despite the unusual flat character of the colors employed.

"The Lily Bed" was caught at a brighter hour on a sunnier morning and is another important painting. "Iris" is most effective and "Washington Island" a sympathetic rendering of gleaming birch.

Ruth Kealing shows a number of charming and delicate paintings. Her "French Bouquet" is exquisite in coloring and above it hangs the "New Fallen Snow," a really lovely winter landscape, small but perfect. "Jonquils," "Calendulas," and "Asters" each in their turn have been effectively portrayed.

Lillie Fry Fisher offers the most unusual still life in the exhibit. "Every Day Things of Life" is intriguing both because of its context and its technique. It is broadly painted and very satisfying in its depth and quality.

Hallie Prow is the last but not the least of the group. "The Yellow Window" is excellent. Among her other paintings "The Orange Boat," "Syracuse Lake," and "Spring at the Quarry" are possibly the finest.

Music Critic Sees Treat in Opera Event

Program to Be Presented Tomorrow Night.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

There is excellent reason to believe that when "Mozart and Salieri" and "The Duped Cadi" are presented in the ballroom of the Palmer house tomorrow night the audience is going to find itself in the possession of an uncommonly attractive operatic treat.

It is not because these two brief works are new to Chicago. It is because they are charming. When you hear the score of "Mozart and Salieri" you will be under the impression that Rimsky-Korsakoff, who composed it, was actually something of a reincarnation of Mozart himself. As a matter of fact, he quotes here and there some half dozen of Mozart's sunniest melodies, as well as an excerpt from the lovely but solemn "Requiem" at the end. But more than that, he really writes like Mozart, not only in the manner, but in the spirit.

"The Duped Cadi," by Gluck, is a little farce, and the music is as gay and tuneful and lighthearted as any comic opera you ever heard. Apart from a few technical details which do not matter in the least, it does not sound in the least old fashioned. On the contrary, the tunes are as bright and alive as though they had been written a year or so ago. They are delightful.

In addition, those who go will hear some charming singing. The event will be a benefit for Olivet institute.

Vera De Villiers, who appeared for the first time in Chicago at the Studebaker yesterday afternoon, is a singer who will be of distinct assistance to the art of singing as many times as she chooses to lift her voice in public.

She is a British contralto and something of a blonde Brunnhilde in appearance, if not in vocal range. Possessed of a voice of fine quality and power she has developed it to the utmost in tone, in technical mastery and in the science and art of projecting words. In full mastery of the four languages of song recital, she was able to sing Italian, French and English works of three centuries ago in all their brilliance and their distinguished manner, and she was even better in Brahms, of whom two groups took the principal place on her program. Being both musician and interpreter, she projected them in a way that would probably have pleased the composer himself.

Continuing the dance recitals at the Punch and Judy theater, Vera Mirova appeared yesterday afternoon in a program mostly of oriental works. She is a specialist in this form of the art and she dances it not at all like a student and much like a personality of the east. She went through a range yesterday from the most enticing grace to the most grotesque, from motions that were as a water plant swept in a gentle current to poses to be seen only on Javanese batik from the exposure of her own pretty face to its concealment behind a hideous mask.

WALGREEN DRUG STORES

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

INSTALLMENT 1.
A STRANGER'S REWARD.

Pomeroy strode along a path in an upper fastness of Central park, whistling as he went. He was in his favorite stretch of the park, at the northern end, on a bypath obviously designed for birds and squirrels and lovers. It was not much frequented by human beings. In this daily morning walk he liked to be alone, liked the illusion that he was walking in the country, "beyond the city's roar," as he sometimes quoted to himself. He would not have quoted it to any one else. He was an eminently practical young man, with a small vein of sentiment unsuspected by others and robustly denied by himself to himself.

He had been born in poverty and kicked and cuffed through boyhood. He had seen his father brought home dead, the victim of an explosion, and had watched his mother die two years later. He was selling newspapers at 9 and earning his living, such as it was, at 13. No one had ever been especially kind to him or interested in him, except one or two teachers at the night schools he had attended and a few professors at the college through which he had worked his way.

Pomeroy liked the park, and had taken this particular walk on five days a week for two years. He had not been above listening to the birds on summer mornings, or even feeding the squirrels with a few peanuts he had in his pockets for the purpose. Today his solitude was unbroken by birds or even squirrels. It was a morning in late January, clear and sparkling, but cold enough to keep even furred and feathered creatures under shelter.

Pomeroy told himself that this three mile daily walk to his office was a great thing. It helped to keep him "fit," and he was an earnest believer in fitness. His mind and body were both sound. If they hadn't been sound, and been kept so by such devices as daily walks and evening work at a good gymnasium, he wouldn't be, at 28, a young captain of industry, already in possession of a comfortable fortune, and about to take a step which would make him a millionaire.

His heart rose at the reflection and his stride quickened. And he had done it himself, by God! At least—a sudden memory caught him by the throat—he had almost done it himself. Of course, Orleneff had invented the clip. But the old fellow hadn't been able to put over the proposition, or to find any one to stake him even for a meal. That's where he, Pomeroy, had come in. That's where luck had come in, too. He had seen several poor devils kicked out of lodging houses because they couldn't pay their rent, and he had not been deeply moved by the spectacle. He had met too much poverty all his life. It was luck that had interested him in Orleneff, and made him pay the Russian's rent and even provide food and a doctor till the old fellow died.

A big element in the situation, no doubt, was the charm of Orleneff. Orleneff had possessed a definite charm. He was a highly educated man and a gentleman. He had been an exciting person to talk to, carrying Pomeroy into new scenes and among vivid personalities. Orleneff had died two months after Bruce Pomeroy, merely a fellow inmate of Mrs. Hall's lodging house, had come to his assistance, and in dying he had left his new friend, in a formal document, all he possessed.

All he possessed was an invention, so simple that it looked like nothing at all, and so necessary and far-reaching in its use that it was a potential gold mine to its owner.

He had given his final charity to Orleneff by burying the man—very simply and inexpensively. Nevertheless it had not been easy. Pomeroy was only a year out of college. His salary was small. It had taken most of his savings to lay the Russian away decently. He had told himself he was a fool to do it, but he had done it. The whole episode had represented his first and only deep friendship. He had been a "grind" at college, and a grind is not a popular type. His friendship with Orleneff had struck its roots down to the vein of sentiment in him, and now he thanked God that it had. He had done his best for Orleneff, and from his grave Orleneff had repaid his charity with a fortune.

Pomeroy, at first slow to take in the possibilities of the Orleneff clip, had from the moment he finally grasped them moved with much caution and sagacity. He had begun alone, in the smallest possible way, working three years more for enough money to make his modest start. Now, five years after Orleneff's death, he was taking in a syndicate with vast capital back of it—a syndicate formed of men whose integrity and financial resources were beyond question. Almost over night his small factory, down near the North river, would grow into a great enterprise, with himself as president and general manager. It was all settled—or almost settled. He stopped in the path and took out his watch. It was ten minutes past eight. Within five hours—at one sharp—he would meet his future partners at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel for luncheon, for the signing of the papers, for the discussion of a few final details. If the deal went through, in a few years he would be a multi-millionaire. That's what Orleneff had done for him—good old Orleneff, who had never been able to do anything for himself. Orleneff had been bled white—first by his only brother, who had died, and later by his brother's family, who had continued to bleed him till he escaped them by leaving California and sinking from sight under the social waters of New York.

Pomeroy walked on soberly. Thoughts of Orleneff increasingly sobered him as he increasingly realized his debt to the dead man. But there were things he had already done for Orleneff, things he could yet do. The clip was the Orleneff clip, not the Pomeroy clip. He could have given it his own name if he had wanted to be greedy about it. He had put a granite boulder at the head of Orleneff's grave and had had the lot widened and cared for. He would establish some Orleneff scholarships at his own college, and do something handsome for Orleneff's university in Moscow. He would—thinking of what he would do as memorials to Orleneff had become a favorite mental pastime with him of late. It had cost five thousand dollars to make the first machine for its manufacture. Pomeroy had worked like the devil for that five thousand——

Well, he must hustle along. He must get down to Fifty-ninth street and Fifth avenue, where he always took a taxicab to his factory. He had done it for two years, and a certain cabman he liked had formed the habit, quite of his own accord, of waiting for Pomeroy and wafting him downtown. On the journey they sometimes discussed the large problems of the day. They were friends. Pomeroy had even explained to the cabman, whose name was Jack Daniels, why he himself had taken an apartment so far uptown. It was to encourage him to take that daily walk, rain or shine, and keep fit.

Daniels had approved of this. He had looked appraisingly at the six feet of bone and lean flesh and muscle which formed Pomeroy, and at the latter's keen, serious young face, clear brown eyes and copper colored hair, and had admitted that he wouldn't like to have a mixup with him.

Pomeroy swung along. He called the promenade a three mile walk to give it a definite status, but it wasn't as much as that. He'd be at Fifty-ninth street by twenty minutes of nine, and in his private office at the factory by nine sharp. That was his schedule.

He had rounded a corner and had come to a park bench situated at the left of a heavy thicket. He knew the bench. Occasionally, during the last two summers, he had dropped down on it for a moment to feed his friends the squirrels. There was some one there this morning. It was a girl. He observed her small, close fitting black hat and its upstanding orange quill.

Jolson Plans to Quit After Present Film

Says He's Satisfied with His Million.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 19.—One more picture—the one he's starring in now—and Al Jolson, who appeared in the first great success in talking films, will retire for good.

He said today the only reason he's going through with "Wonder Bar" for Warners is to show the boys at Twentieth Century Pictures—by "the boys" meaning Producer-Partner Joe Schenck and Producer-Partner Darryl Zanuck—that "Wonder Bar" is a great film vehicle and will net much money.

Jolson said he'll confine himself in future to the stage and radio. He says: "I ought to be a happy man, and I am. I've got the best wife in the world. I've got a million dollars, too. So why should I keep on worrying about movies. I've had fame, glamour, fortune, and excitement, and after a man passes 40, well, they don't mean the same any more. Movies are a very exacting, fatiguing, and thankless profession.

"I offered the other company screen rights to 'Wonder Bar' for nothing, only that I should get a percentage on net profits. I was turned down. They'll be plenty sorry when they see what it earns."

An autograph nut hunted up Clark Gable at the bus station, in downtown Los Angeles where he and Claudette Colbert are making scenes for Columbia's "Midnight Bus," and asked Gable to autograph his birthday cake. The fan brought along an icing writing device, much to Gable's amazement and amusement.

The mob that hung around the bus depot so complicated work that Director Frank Capra thought up two devices to thin the crowd. He had studio carpenters bring saw horses and planking enough to fit a banquet table for 200 people, and then had the studio put on a free feed for that many.

In the meantime the same carpenters put up a little wooden house in the middle of the bus station, where Gable and Miss Colbert hid themselves except for the moments when they were wanted for actual shots. All the rest of the time Gable and Claudette were impersonated by their stand-ins, who took a lot of jostling good humoredly.

Claims Women Are All Alike, but Men Differ

BY DORIS BLAKE.

HOLLYWOOD. — [Special.] — Are women the same the world over and men different in different parts of the world?

Dorothea Wieck, who claims Switzerland as her birthplace, Sweden as a country ripe with childhood memories, Vienna the scene of her first stage part, and Germany the country where she was educated, says yes to the above questions. The men are different, at any rate, regarding their women.

"Women have the same feeling and behave much alike, no matter where they come from," says Miss Wieck. "It doesn't matter what they do, whether they work in an office, wait on tables, stay home with their babies, teach, or practice a profession, they're mothers at heart. If they haven't a baby to love, then they mother a man or a dog. They need something to love.

"And when there is a man around, or one just around the corner, whose appearance presently is expected, Eve of any and every nation perks up and aims to look her best."

Men, we suspect, have to have somebody to love, too, no matter what the nationality, but we didn't raise any argument with Miss Wieck about it. She might have responded that they aren't willing to let a dog absorb them as women are.

But about men of other countries, Miss Wieck says the Italian man is the most dominant toward his womankind. Italians want their women all to themselves, and no foolin'. The Spanish gentleman's attitude is much akin, except he likes his woman admired, so long as he doesn't catch her returning the admiration.

The Frenchman's reputation as the maestro of love-making, Miss Wieck thinks, is more than slightly exaggerated. They ruin their "stuff" by expecting every woman to fall for them. They take too much for granted, in our authority's words.

For sheer romance Miss Wieck gives the hand painted samovar to the Russian male. When he kisses your hand he puts "feelin's" into it. There's romance in the Russian heart. Englishmen make good companions, she thinks.

But the American man answers every woman's prayer for a boy to mother, boss and look after, one gathers from Miss Wieck's expressed observation. He never seems to grow old—the American man. He's great!

Clara Acquires New Silhouette Through Dieting

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

HOLLYWOOD.—[Special.] — Clara Bow has accomplished one of Hollywood's outstanding reductions of the year—from 135 pounds to 118. She looks remarkably well, with skin as clear as an infant's, beautiful brown eyes, glistening white teeth, and tousle curled mop of red hair, the latter distinctly and definitely Clara, and her new silhouette.

The reduction job started in June and Clara was ready for her picture dress fittings Aug. 1. Mabel Burritt, into whose hands Clara committed herself, explains the program as an individual one; that is, one planned and executed for Clara, calling for diet change and regulation and exercise suited to Clara's needs.

Clara was, among other things, a heavy meat eater, and like most heavy meat eaters, went in for a likewise heavy starch and sugar consumption.

It was necessary, therefore, to put her first on a cleansing diet, Mrs. Burritt being quite outspoken in her clean intestinal tract theory. There can be no reducing and no health advances, she claims, unless there is continuous attention to internal cleanliness.

For this purpose, particularly, hot celery juice was Clara's first early morning drink. Celery was stewed, strained, and the juice salted to taste. A glass or two at a time. During the day every two hours some liquid juice was taken, either tomato juice or spinach juice or celery juice.

Then a moderate meal was allowed at dinner time, this meal of fish or white meat of fowl, or a vegetable plate with 100 per cent whole wheat bread. With the meat or fowl, two vegetables were given, and a raw salad. The salad preferably of grated carrot, grated raw beets, raw spinach shredded, and lettuce, dressing made of honey and lemon. Coconut or grated nuts was sometimes added to the salads. Occasionally the outer part of a baked potato was allowed. The grated carrot is recommended once a day as a cleansing agent.

Tomorrow I'll continue with the Clara Bow reducing treatment.

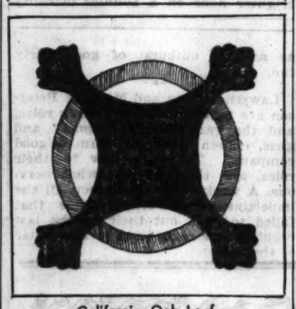
Soft Autumn Tones Make Attractive Quilted Oak Leaf



California Oak Leaf.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This unusual interpretation of an oak leaf design originated in California in the earlier periods of that state's history. The first versions of it were pieced, probably because of a scarcity of better colors and fabric from which to choose, in red, green and unbleached muslin. Quilters of today prefer to create the pattern in the soft tones of the oak leaf in autumn.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, the Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The French ambassador and Mme. de Laboulaye entertained a company at luncheon yesterday at the embassy, in compliment to the retiring Japanese ambassador and Mme. Mrs. Phillips left today for Boston to join her debutante daughter, Miss Beatrice Phillips, in their Boston home for a few days. Miss Phillips heads the list of buds to be known as "the big six."

The modern "big six" are, in addition to Miss Phillips, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, daughter of the assistant secretary of the navy; Miss Helen Davis, daughter of the former secretary of war and former governor of the Philippines, Dwight F. Davis; Miss Suzanne Carroll Hill, daughter of former Representative John F. Hill of Baltimore; Miss Anne Eustis, daughter of Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis and granddaughter of Levi P. Teen Age Boys and Girls Must Have Freedom

Parents Should Respect Their Maturity.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

The six days of this week, as we promised on Sunday, are to be devoted to talks about adolescent boys and girls, so that parents can understand them better and deal with them more intelligently.

We're making it six days because there are roughly, six changes or characteristics that are noticeable during these years.

Let us take as the first, the desire for freedom. When did boys used to run away to sea in the old days—boys ruled with a rod of iron in the home or forced into a counting-house or the father's business against their will? At around 15 or 16. When do most of our children who do it now run away? During the same years—during adolescence.

Their number is few, comparatively, nowadays, you may say. That is true. We're learning a lot. But running away is not the only symptom of the need a child has for shaking free from a too close restraint and supervision. Irritability, impatience, disobedience, rudeness, and impudence may be merely signs of restiveness under a control that is carried over from little childhood and does not suit this maturing boy or girl.

It is natural for boys and girls to want to spread their wings. But how can they do it tied by the proverbial apron string? How are they ever going to gain independence if they don't begin sometime? It can't be granted to them suddenly when they come of age. In fact, it shouldn't be, because they wouldn't, so suddenly, know what to do with it.

Adolescents, we must remember, are on their way to manhood and womanhood. They can no longer be treated as so many parents treat little children—directed at each step of the way, their advice not asked, their opinions not valued. Even if you have respected your child before he reaches his teens, remember when that time comes to loosen the reins, to recognise his need for freedom, for emancipation. Do it with judgment, with good common sense, of course—but keep it in mind as one of the needs of adolescence. If you do, you will prevent the strife and tension that so often come at this time.

A new booklet with a varied list of reading for boys and girls in their teens is now ready and will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A fund of $10,000 for the establishment of rehabilitation schools for German Jews was raised at a benefit banquet of the People's ORT federation held at the Morrison hotel last night. The guests paid $10 a plate.

The fund, which will be augmented by other activities of the organization, will be used to create schools in Germany and other European countries for the rehabilitation of Jewish people who have been thrown out of their regular form of work by the Hitler government, according to Jacob Seigel, chairman of the banquet committee.

Twelve of the schools are being established in Germany and others are to be established in France and Belgium.

Black Sleeves Lend Finesse to Frock by Lanvin

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Jeanne Lanvin has her own special brand of clothes that are as personal as the whorls on your thumb. She never deviates from the ideal of making us look our sweetest and best, even in the most hard boiled style season. The result is she has a big following among the Parisiennes who'd rather look charming and feminine than bold and chic at the expense of these qualities.

This fall her black sleeved frock of ivory colored wool is parading around Paris on the backs of lots of the most luscious looking ladies of the smart world. It's sketched.

The sleeves are made of black satin and set into armholes purposely made too large, and underlined by bands of fine embroidery done in black and silver. A second band of black and silver embroidery goes over each shoulder of the bodice, and between the two the neck is draped and finished with soft ties of the ivory wool at the center front.

There is a corded belt with a silver buckle at the waistline, and below that the easy, graceful skirt begins. It is flared a little from hips to hem and has none of the extreme fitting that so many skirts have.

The Third Chicago Tribune School of Cookery goes to the Aragon ballroom tomorrow for the final week. Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, famous home economics expert, in co-operation with Miss Mary Meade, Tribune Cooking editor, will conduct the sessions, which will continue Nov. 21, 22, 23 and 24. All schools will open at 12:30 o'clock.

BY MARY MEADE.

If your husband can boast to a friend (as a certain husband recently did to me) that his favorite meat dish is flank steak, then I pronounce you a grade A cook! It takes real artistry and finesse to bring forth from that flavorful but not so tender cut all the goodness there is in it. But once tempted out into the open, ah, then, "who-o-o-e's afraid of the big bad wolf?" For flank steak is gratifyingly inexpensive and, on top of that, is practically boneless and so can be used with little waste. Think also on the fact that there are numerous and sundry tricky ways of serving it up and you fast come to develop a healthy respect for this plucky Cinderella of the butcher shop.

Mock duck is one way. It's not, I agree, quite as convincing a mock duck as the one we've sometimes made from the shoulder and shank of lamb, but I figure that it more than makes up for it in flavor. Here are the rules!

MOCK DUCK.

Buy a flank of beef and wipe with a damp cloth. Prepare the mock duck dressing by crumbling two cups of bread crumbs and moistening them with a little hot water in which two tablespoons of butter or drippings have been melted. Season the dressing with salt, pepper, celery salt, and a finely chopped onion. Add three tablespoons green pepper, finely minced. Spread the dressing evenly over the flank steak and roll up. Tie or sew to hold the duck in shape.

Bake for one hour in a covered roasting pan in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) And if your ambitions run to improving the good flavor still more place a strip of bacon on top of the roll in the oven ten minutes before serving.

But maybe you have a Wimby to "come and bring his own ducks," and you're not particularly interested in the mock version. But that's no reason pressed beef flank shouldn't be a teasing treat. It's done in this way:

PRESSED BEEF FLANK.

Cut off any extra fat on a flank of beef and roll it closely. Place it in a kettle and cover with boiling water. Add one tablespoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of peppercorns, a scrap of bay leaf, and any bones which may have been removed from the flank. Cook over a dawdling fire until the meat is in shreds. By this time the liquor in the kettle should be almost evaporated and absorbed. Now arrange the meat in a deep pan, pour the remaining liquor over it, cover with a plate smaller than the size of the pan, and weight down heavily. When the meat is cold and firmly pressed, turn out and serve in thin slices, offering it cold with a spicy relish for a playmate.

PERMANENT VOWS.

Fanchon's eyes hardened into tiny spots. "All the evidence we have against Ferenz Bobianoff will be useful. But—there are ways of making him confess, and the other man who played the rôle of butler and father—the one you saw in Madame Craymer's apartment, mademoiselle. Hardly a satisfactory explanation that she had taken him in through kindness of heart! I am afraid Madame Craymer must have been involved—especially when she was under the influence of a woman like the Countess Vernadon. We know that they were seen together in Paris."

Bun's face lit up. "That accounts for her having the photograph!"

"It also accounts for her having made a feeble attempt to do the right thing and give her uncle a clew. You said something about her being financially involved," he addressed Finlay.

"She told me at Cannes that she had lost a great deal of money speculating—and that she was being pressed."

Fanchon nodded slowly. "And, naturally, at such times we all are disposed to turn to any source, no matter how questionable. The temptation to get hold of two hundred thousand francs might easily have been irresistible." He pushed back his chair and signaled to the waiter. "I feel this is no longer the time for us to discuss this matter further. The clews are all tied. Do you not agree with me?"

Finlay leaned forward intently. "There is one more thing, Monsieur Fanchon. How much of this must be given out to the world?"

"I never tell anything. That would ruin my career—and that of my associates. Naturally, a great deal will be known, especially about Ferenz Bobianoff and his colleagues. As for the Countess Vernadon—I suppose you have similar cases in America. Sometimes people have made such an important place in the world for themselves that even after they are dead it is considered discreet to withhold certain information. The circle she moved in, in spite of all the so-called present day democracy, still manages to pull wires. It is a tradition that will be a long time in dying out. She will undoubtedly have a spectacular funeral. People will come from Paris and London and Berlin to put wreaths on her tomb. It will be the smart thing to do, you see. As for rumors," he spread out his pudgy hands with a comprehensive gesture, "they always exist—and often add glamour to our reputations. I doubt if there will be a hundred people who will ever know that she and Madame Bobianoff were the same person."

"I wonder if they really were," Bun commented, doubtfully.

"Ah, mademoiselle—that is what ruined all of our carefully laid plans. Each time we felt we had one, she turned out to be the other. Naturally, Madame la Comtesse's position protected her. Madame Bobianoff's quiet mode of living protected her also."

"But—the two rôles! How could she manage them—and in such a small place as Grasse?"

"You forget Grasse is filled with foreigners, and also that we French are so accustomed to them that we do not inquire too intimately. It was really quite simple. Madame la Comtesse appeared there seldom; Madame Bobianoff lived a retired life. As for disguise—you yourself, mademoiselle, must admit that the putting on and taking off of makeup might have been sufficient."

"And he, Monsieur Bobianoff?"

"Merely a figurehead—to play husband or butler or father—whatever the drama of the moment demanded." Fanchon rose and bowed over Bun's hand. "If it had not been for you, mademoiselle, and the poor Madame Finlay—we might never have known the truth about this group of murderers." He nodded to the others. "We shall meet tomorrow—or rather today—and continue our conversations on the way to Paris."

A week later Bun and Robert Finlay—and Liberté in the rumble—were in the jade green car racing along the road to Havre.

"I'm getting so collet montet since I became engaged——"

"Remember, I don't speak French."

"It means conventional and stuffy, if you must know the truth, that I even went to the bother of bringing Liberté along. Funny what a little thing like marriage—even just in prospect—does to one. Fred's always complaining that I go round too much alone. You see what a deadening effect you're always having on me."

"Is marriage such a little thing to you?"

"How can I tell? I'm not married yet."

"You will be in six weeks—the moment I get back here. By the way, you'll receive a visit from my lawyer tomorrow."

Bun's eyes clouded. Weren't they ever to get that sinister past completely behind them!

"No—not what you think," Robert hurried on. "It's about that manoir in Normandy. Crawford ran down all the information about it for me. I bought it yesterday. It's in your name now."

Bun frowned threateningly. "But I planned that to live in alone!"

"Then do it alone for the next six weeks."

"Suppose I like it so much that way that I'll cable you not to come back?"

Robert put his hand over hers as it rested on the wheel. "Is there any danger of that?"

"One never knows. I've got to try it out first."

"If there's any doubt in your mind, you'd better turn round and drive me back to Paris."

Bun laughed contentedly. "If I were as sure of the rest of my life as I am of that I'd find it a deadly dull adventure. Only, sometimes I think these sudden affairs are a little dangerous." She turned and looked at him. "Bob, tell me, did you fall in love with me at first sight—as I did with you?"

He shook his head solemnly. "On the contrary, my first impression of you was that you were the sort of woman to be avoided."

Bun's chin went out. "Really! Then why didn't you do it?"

"You see, I don't look on marriage as a little thing—call me hopelessly old fashioned if you will—and I want it to be permanent. I knew, when I saw you, that it would be—at least with me."

"Is that all?"

"That's all."

The first person to greet them on the dock was Crawford.

"I'm counting on you to take care of her until I get back," Robert said, grasping his hand warmly.

Red Cross Officials Will Receive Reports on Roll Call Today

James B. Forgan Jr., chairman of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, will report encouraging progress in the annual roll call of that organization, at a luncheon at the Palmer House today, and at the same time will stress the importance of combating a general impression that the Red Cross receives any financial aid from the federal relief administration or the Community fund of the Chicago Allied Charities. This misunderstanding is affecting the work of the canvassers, he stated yesterday.

"Although the Red Cross is a quasi-governmental institution because of its years of close and patriotic cooperation with the government in national emergencies," added James T. Nicholson, manager of the chapter, "it does not receive any federal money and is dependent solely upon voluntary contributions."

WALGREEN'S SAY
"TATTOO YOUR LIPS"

Apply TATTOO like ordinary lipstick . . . let it set . . . then wipe it off. Nothing remains on your lips but transparent, even color—the smartest, most luscious ever seen. The color really stays too . . . regardless—and there's no purplishness. And, instead of drying your lips, TATTOO will keep them invitingly soft. It really will. To be sure of getting the proper shade of TATTOO, try all 4 on your own skin at the TATTOO COLOR SELECTOR on our counters.

No. 1 has an exciting orange-pink cast. Rather light. Ravishing on blondes and titian blondes. It is called "CORAL"

No. 2 is our choice of them all. An exotic, new shade—brilliant, yet transparent. Somehow we just cannot find the right words to describe it. It is called "EXOTIC"

No. 3 is a medium shade. A true, rich, blood color that will be an asset to any brunette. It is called "NATURAL"

No. 4 is of the type that changes color when applied to the lips. Gives an unusually transparent richness and a depth of warm color that is truly amazing. It is called "PASTEL" also of Evanston, who are to attend Miss Thomas. Miss Cutler will be the maid of honor and Miss Johnson and Miss Cain, bridesmaids. Frederick Johnson is to serve his brother as best man. Miss Thomas will be given in marriage by her brother, Edwin P. Thomas.

Also from the east we learn of the engagement of Miss Edith Hemenway Eustis, daughter of Frederic A. Eustis of Milton, Mass., to Winthrop Hollowell Churchill, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Spooner Churchill of Milton and formerly of Chicago.

Miss Eustis attended the Santa Barbara School for Girls and was graduated from Milton academy. Presented to Boston society in 1928 she was elected to membership in the Junior League and the Vincent club and the following year went to Smith college where she finished last June.

After preparing at the Francis Parker school in Chicago, Mr. Churchill went to Milton academy and then to Harvard. The wedding is to be an event of the near future.

Dance Recital to Aid Scouts.

There are to be numerous dinner parties before the performance of Serge Lifar and his Russian ballet this evening in the Auditorium theater. The program is the second event in the Monday night concert series sponsored by Chicago's Girl Scouts.

After a Northwestern football game there's a pleasant place to talk over plays and scores, alumni agree, and that's the great open fireplace in the Walter Dill Scotts' lovely old fashioned house on Chicago avenue. President and Mrs. Scott were host and hostess at another of their weekly football teas following the Northwestern-Notre Dame game Saturday afternoon.

A welcome addition to society is Seymour Blair, who came for a visit to his father, Edward T. Blair, and his sister, Mrs. Howard Linn, and who has decided to remain in Chicago all winter instead of returning to France, where his other sister, Miss Edith Blair, lives permanently. There is no chance of her coming home this winter even for a visit, Mr. Blair says, but he and his father expect to be here all winter.

It is hard to tell which family is the prouder these days, the Warren Lamsons of Winnetka or the Clarence G. Washburns of Elyria, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Warner M. Washburn . . . Mrs. Washburn is the former Elizabeth Lamson . . . became the parents of a son and he is the first grandson of both the Lamsons and the senior Washburns. Young Mr. and Mrs. Washburn also have a two year old daughter, Jean.

Members of the board of the Northwestern university settlement will entertain at a luncheon at 1 o'clock today at the settlement, 1400 Augusta street.

Mrs. Albert T. Evans and Mrs. Harold E. Leopold will be hostesses at the meeting of the board of the Home for Convalescent Women and Children at 11 o'clock today at the Chicago College club. Mrs. William D. McIlvaine is president of the board.

The South Shore Country club will hold a duplicate contract bridge tournament tonight, starting at 7:45 o'clock. It's for men only and they may enter singly or in pairs.

MINUTE MYSTERY
By H. A. RIPLEY

AN ANTICIPATED VERDICT.

"Poisoned, all right," stated Prof. Fordney as he looked carefully at the eyes. "Opium—and he hasn't been dead over an hour."

"But where's the hypodermic needle then?" inquired Gerald Hedrick, the dead man's friend, who had discovered the body.

The professor looked around again for a moment, then beckoned to the sergeant. "Reynolds, look through the apartment; see if you can locate it."

The officer reported back in a few minutes bearing a syringe. "Found it in the bathroom, sir—behind the tub. Wonder why he dropped it in such an obvious place if he were trying to hide it?"

The criminologist muttered something under his breath which neither of the two others caught.

"By the way, Mr. Hedrick," he suddenly questioned, "did you come here by appointment this evening or just happen to drop in?"

"Crane was expecting me—we were going to the theater. When he didn't answer his bell, he lives here alone, I tried the door, found it open, and came in. He was in evening clothes and I thought he was asleep, but when I couldn't arouse him at all I phoned the doctor and police. God! I had no idea he was an addict or had ever taken the stuff!"

Next morning at breakfast Fordney read the medical examiner's report—"death caused by an overdose of opium administered hypodermically in upper left arm. Only one needle mark on body."

He then called Inspector Kelley. "Be sure Hedrick's at the inquest. The coroner's court will probably hold him to the grand jury."

WHY DID FORDNEY BELIEVE HEDRICK WOULD BE HELD?

George Gershwin Sees Repeal as Help to Cause of Good Music

Pittsburgh, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Music goes with drinking, says George Gershwin, noted American composer, who asserts "repeal will greatly help the cause of music."

The composer of "Rhapsody in Blue" adds:

"I dare say that if beer were banished from Austria, 100,000 musicians would be out of work. Temperate drinking aids in the enjoyment of good music, which appeals both to the emotions and the intellect."

Kill that COLD!

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifle with! It may end seriously. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for an internal treatment. It also calls for a COLD remedy and not something good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is direct and internal—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is sold by all druggists, 30c and 50c. Accept no substitute.

New York, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The eastern trip of the Chicago Bears, defending champions of the National Professional Football league, came to an unprofitable close today when they were beaten by the New York Giants, 3 to 0, at the Polo grounds.

Gambling on a touchdown that would have earned them their seventh victory of the season instead of trying for a field goal that might have matched the three points recorded off the toe of Ken Strong in the waning minutes of the first half, the Bears saw their chances go up in smoke as they twice were thwarted near the New York goal line in the third period.

Bears Threaten Twice.

In all but the score the Bears were superior, and their several marches gave the 22,000 spectators many anxious moments. During the third quarter the Chicago eleven pounded and lateral passed for advances of 66 and 50 yards, but all this power was overcome by the field goal effort of Strong.

Standing on the Bears' 21 yard line Strong sailed a place kick between the posts when the Giants came out of a huddle knowing that there was not enough time left for them to reach the goal before the end of the half by rushing. The ball had been placed on the seven yard line on an eight yard forward pass, Newman to Campbell. It was also Newman who was responsible for getting the ball in the Bears' territory. He intercepted a pass and raced 18 yards to the Chicago 25 yard line. A penalty for clipping pushed the Giants back.

Then came one of the most thrilling plays of the game. Newman faded back to pass, but appeared smothered just as he had been earlier. Driven back 25 yards, Newman then gave a remarkable exhibition of dodging and side slipping. Finding no receiver in the clear, he started on a run that was not stopped until he reached the 15 yard line.

Fumble Halts Bears.

In the third quarter the champions came back with a daring lateral and forward passing attack that had the crowd in a panic and twice they were on the threshold of the Giants' goal line. They reached the seven yard mark on a 66 yard drive with Sisk, Molesworth, Brumbaugh, and Manders all featuring on laterals, forwards, and spinners. A 25 yard gain on a combination forward and lateral, from Brumbaugh to Hewitt to Karr, gave them a fourth successive first down at the 7 yard line and a touchdown seemed certain.

But the Bears' daring in shuttling the ball around cost them their opportunity, the ball being fumbled on a lateral in the middle of a clump of Giant tacklers and the home team recovered. No sooner, however, had Strong kicked out with one of his many fine punts of the day than the champions were back again.

March Back Again.

Molesworth returned Strong's kick with an amazing rush of 31 yards, twisting and spinning through the whole New York team to put the ball on the 18 yard mark. Sisk and Manders took it to the 8 yard line and a first down on bucks through guard.

Three times Manders, Sisk, and Molesworth hammered the line, leaving the ball on the one yard mark. On fourth down Manders was stopped without gain. The Giants were offside, however, and the Bears had another chance. This time, however, Molesworth was thrown for a 3 yard loss and the Giants took the ball on their 4 yard line.

The Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the Chicago Cardinals yesterday at Wrigley field, 3 to 0, Herman Hickman kicking a field goal from the 25 yard line in the second quarter. The crowd was estimated at 4,000.

It was the Cardinals' eighth defeat of the National Professional Football league season and their second in a row by three points. A week ago they lost to Cincinnati, 12 to 9, when a rally in the fourth period fell short, and yesterday a similar late drive was halted after the Chicago team had reached Brooklyn's 12 yard line.

Nesbitt Leads March.

Dick Nesbitt, full back, led the march that put the Cardinals in scoring position after they had taken the ball on the Dodgers' 40 yard line. Nesbitt's 23 yard plunge through left tackle was the largest single gain of the game. With first down and 12 yards to go for a touchdown and victory, three plays failed and Mike Koken then missed a place kick from the 19 yard line.

This was the best scoring opportunity the Cards had, although they did right well with their offense in midfield and proved their alertness in following the ball by recovering all fumbles. This fumble list comprised two of their own and three of Brooklyn's.

The Cards manufactured 9 first downs to 11 for Brooklyn.

Red Cagle and Shipwreck Kelly, co-owners of the Dodgers, were injured. Kelly went out of the game in the third quarter with a badly twisted arm while Cagle suffered a sprained ankle when tackled near the sideline in the fourth period.

Miss First Goal Attempt.

Brooklyn had an opportunity to score a field goal in the early minutes of the second period after its attack had bogged down on the Cards' 31 yard line. Hickman tried the kick on fourth down, but Nesbitt blocked the ball and Milan Creighton recovered.

Shortly after this, Brooklyn started its successful scoring drive from the Cards' 40 yard line when Joe Lillard's punt was partly blocked. A five yard penalty for offside on the Cards and a six yard forward pass from Cagle to Kelly on fourth down, kept the drive in motion. Kelly ran wide for two yards and Cagle again passed, this time to Les Peterson, for a first down on the Cards' 17 yard line.

John Karcis plunged for one yard. Another pass, Cagle to Kelly, added six more yards. Tom Yarr threw Kelly for a 7 yard loss on third down. Then Hickman dropped back and booted the ball over the scoring bar.

The longest gain of the afternoon's labor was called back in the second period. Kelly passed to Cagle for a total gain of 50 yards, but Cagle attempted a lateral to Dick Richards when he was about to be tackled on the Cards' 21 yard line and when the ball was passed forward, it was, of course, the second forward pass on the same play and Brooklyn lost the distance Cagle had advanced the ball.

PUTTING THE BRAKES ON CARDINAL ATTACK

Full Back Hubert Hinchman (No. 32) carrying the ball for the Chicago Cardinals against the Brooklyn Dodgers, is stopped after a short gain in the first quarter of the game yesterday at Wrigley field. No. 18 is Harold Moe, Cardinal back. The battle resulted in another defeat for the Cardinals by the close margin of 3 to 0. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

BOSTON RUNS UP 20 TO 7 VICTORY OVER PACKERS

Boston, Mass., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Boston Redskins stopped the Green Bay Packers' famed passing attack today as they closed their National Professional Football league season with a 20 to 7 triumph before a crowd of 16,500 at Fenway park.

The Redskins dominated the play from start to finish. The Packers' only touchdown came in the third period, when Bob Monnett, formerly Michigan State half back, ran a kick-off from his 11 yard line to Boston's 18 yard mark. Clark Hinkle, former Bucknell star, carried the ball over the Boston goal line in a series of plunges.

Cliff Battles' 75 yard punt, late in the opening period, paved the way for the first Boston touchdown. The Packers took the ball on their 10 yard line and kicked out to their 40. Jim Musick started pounding the tackles and when the period ended he was on Green Bay's two yard line. It was Boston's fourth down when the second quarter opened, but Musick plowed over for the touchdown. Just before the half ended the Redskins worked their way up to the Packers' 30 yard line, where Battles failed to place kick a field goal.

Midway through the third period Ernie Pinckert, former Southern California star and the Redskins' most consistent ground gainer, intercepted a Packer pass on his 45 yard line and ran for a touchdown. In the fourth period, when an exchange of punts put the Redskins in midfield, a pass sent Boston to the Packers' 28 yard line and Musick plunged the rest of the way for the third Boston touchdown. Two of his three tries for the extra point were good. The lineups:

Big 10 Windup Games May Knock Standings Awry

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Purdue got a break in the Big Ten football race Saturday when Minnesota and Michigan played a scoreless tie, but just when it seemed the Boilermakers might share 1933 honors with Michigan, the surprising Hawkeyes smacked them down and dropped them to fifth position in the standings. Now the title will definitely go to Michigan or Minnesota or be shared by these teams with Illinois or Ohio State.

If Michigan whips Northwestern Saturday, even if Minnesota defeats Wisconsin, the Wolverines will win the championship, although some may dispute the award inasmuch as one of Minnesota's four ties was with Michigan. If Michigan loses to the Wildcats and Minnesota wins or ties, the Gophers will have first place, although they will set an all time conference record for tie games. Chicago won the championship in 1924 with three victories and three ties.

Chance for Illini, Buckeyes.

If Michigan and Minnesota both lose their final games, then the winner of the Illinois-Ohio State game will get a share of the championship.

Iowa and Chicago have completed their conference schedules. By its victory over Purdue Iowa takes first place as the surprise eleven of the year. Its first upset was a 7 to 0 conquest of Northwestern. Then came a victory over Wisconsin. After losing to Minnesota, Iowa gave the Wolverines a fight, although losing, 10 to 6. This week Iowa meets Nebraska, champion of the Big Six, which lost to Pittsburgh, 6 to 0, last Saturday.

Brilliant Rise by Illinois.

Illinois' rise this season almost equals Iowa's and may be considered on a par if the Illini beat Ohio State. Illinois has whipped Wisconsin, Northwestern, and Chicago, and lost, 7 to 6, to Michigan. Chicago meets Dartmouth Saturday with a final tabulation in the conference of three defeats and two ties. The Maroons lost to Purdue, Michigan, and Illinois, and tied Wisconsin and Indiana.

Purdue concludes its schedule against Indiana and is out of the championship unless by a miracle Michigan and Minnesota lose and Illinois and Ohio State tie. Even then Michigan will have won one more game.

Coast Standing Jumbled.

The standings in the Pacific coast conference now are as badly jumbled as is the prospect for the Big Ten. Southern California's victory over Oregon, 26 to 0, leaves these two teams and Stanford and California with one defeat each.

Georgia lost its first game Saturday to Alabama Poly, 14 to 6. Duke now is the outstanding undefeated southern eleven, while Princeton and Army continue to pace the major teams in the east.

This Week's Games

Michigan at Northwestern.
Illinois at Ohio State.
Wisconsin at Minnesota.
Purdue at Indiana.
Iowa at Nebraska.
Dartmouth at Chicago.

ILLINOIS AND CHICAGO

If Vin Sahlin had run 57 yards instead of 54 in his third quarter dash and Jay Berwanger had progressed a foot farther to reach the Illinois goal in the last minute of play, Chicago would have beaten Illinois Saturday by at least 12 to 7 and possibly 14 to 7. Chicago would have emerged from the Big Ten cellar and all would have been happy in Coach Clark Shaughnessy's first and now somewhat dismal season at the Midway.

But the score was Illinois 7, Chicago 0, and it is so entered in the book. This gives the once proud Maroons a cluster of zeros as their rating in the Big Ten, there being no numerical credit for ties, as in the hockey business.

End Big Ten Competition.

The zeros are sure to remain, for the Illini contest closed the Maroons' conference season. The two teams which share the cellar with the Maroons, Wisconsin and Indiana, will be in league competition next Saturday, but there is remote chance that the Badgers or Hoosiers will abandon the goose egg ward. Wisconsin will face Minnesota and the Hoosiers should be a soft touch for the Purdue Boilermakers, who are reported very sore on the world.

The Illini were outplayed by the Maroons except when scoring opportunity appeared, and then the Champaign lads lost no time in grabbing victory. Crain Portman was sent in, and on the second play after his entrance, he carried the ball over on a pass from Jack Beynon.

Illinois has a mathematical chance to share in the Big Ten title next Saturday. Here's all that must happen: Illinois must beat Ohio State; Northwestern must beat Michigan, and Wisconsin must beat Minnesota.

OHIO AND WISCONSIN

A 55 yard run from scrimmage by Half Back Jack Smith in the first three minutes of play enabled Ohio State to defeat Wisconsin, 6 to 0, at Madison Saturday. Smith's run was a fortunate one for the Buckeyes, since their only other scoring threats were repulsed by the Badgers, and in addi-

U. S. CHAMPIONS BEAT SPARTA IN 3-2 SOCCER GAME

Stix, Baer and Fuller of St. Louis, national soccer champions, defeated Sparta, three goals to two, at Sparta Stadium yesterday before a crowd of 4,000.

Vleck of Sparta scored in the first minute of play with a shot which baffled McGavon, the St. Louis goalie. The Chicago team pressed the advantage, but its efforts were unavailing and Gonsalves, the so-called "wonder man" of the Stix team, tied the score a few minutes later.

Both sides missed several chances to add markers until the final five minutes of the first period, when Neilson put the St. Louisans in front by besting Goalie Baer close in.

Gonsalves scored again in the second period and it was not until the last minute that Vleck made his second goal for Sparta. Greenleas was called in to substitute for Center Lee, but missed an open goal that would have tied the score, just as the final whistle sounded.

In a preliminary game the Wonderbolts defeated the First Germans, 5 to 1.

SCOTS BEAT HUNGARIANS.

The Ravenswood Scots defeated the Hungarians, 5 to 1, in the deciding game of the preliminary round for the national challenge cup yesterday at the Norwegian field.

The Scots took the upper hand after fifteen minutes when Coubrough got the first goal. Five minutes later McCowie scored the second. Late in the first period Coubrough finished a solo run with a hard shot, beating the Hungarians' goalkeeper.

Beginning the second period the Scots again had most of the play. Coubrough, who was the Scots' star performer, got his third goal, and Timmons made it five. The Hungarians, after missing several chances, scored their goal when Jotzet, from long range, beat Randak.

RED WINGS STOP COOK BOYS, BEAT RANGERS, 4 TO 1

Roach Stars as Goalie for Detroit Club.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Detroit Red Wings, backed by stellar work from their goalie, John Ross Roach, overwhelmed the champion New York Rangers, 4 to 1, here tonight in a National league hockey match before 12,000 spectators.

With Roach repeatedly turning back the fast skating Cook brothers the Red Wings scored two goals in the second period and two in the third. Ebbie Goodfellow, rangy Detroit center, scored first. Then Larry Aurie snapped a rebound from Carl Voss past Goalie Andy Aitkenhead of the Rangers.

Babe Siebert of the Rangers was in the penalty box at the time of the first goal and Herb Lewis of Detroit was serving a penalty when Aurie scored. Lewis was still in the box when Bill Cook took Jean Pusie's pass to score the Ranger goal.

AMERICANS TIE, 2-2

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The New York Americans and Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey league played their second successive 2-2 tie tonight. The draw left the Americans at the bottom of the Canadian division standing with the Maroons just ahead.

Early in the first period Lloyd Gross, American rookie winger, tried to clear the puck after Hooley Smith's shot and drove it right into the goal to count for the Maroons. In the third Marvin Wentworth poked in Baldy Northcott's long pass. Then the Americans started an attack that didn't let up until the score was tied. Normie Himes made the first New York tally on Gross' pass with four minutes to go. George Patterson tied the count on Red Conn's assist.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The battling Blackhawks last night maintained their proud position as leaders of the National Hockey league, when they vanquished the rough and ready Ottowa Senators, 2 to 1, in one of the fightingest games seen at the Chicago Stadium in several seasons.

Twelve thousand customers were on hand to see the riotous performance, which included a real fist fight between Paul Thompson and Scotty Bowman, which drew a major penalty for both combatants; a slightly milder combat between Donnie McFadyen and Alex Shields, and an unpunished clash which netted a bad cut over the eye for Mush March from the stick of Earl Roche.

Lead Both Divisions.

The Hawks continued to lead both divisions of the National Hockey league, with a total of seven points. Detroit, second in the American division, has six points, and the Toronto Maple Leafs, leading the Canadian division, also have six points.

The Hawks did all their scoring in the first period. Johnny Gottselig counted in 10:10, and it was at this juncture that folks started getting hurt in one way or another. In removing his stick from the net after batting a goal from two feet off the ice Gottselig knocked over Goalie Bill Beveridge with his stick. From then on it was a case of divil take the hindmost.

In 14:50 Lionel Conacher scored on an assist from Jack Leswick and this margin prevailed until 10:40 of the second period when Cooney Wieland notched the Ottawa goal on a pass from Bill Touhey.

The Hawks will leave this morning for Boston, where, on Tuesday night, they will have their first meeting of the year with the terrible Bruins. Tommy Cook, who was not in uniform last night, will make the trip, but it can not be determined until this morning whether March will be able to accompany the team.

Gottselig Scores First.

It took the Hawks 10 minutes and ten seconds to score their first goal and the second one was rung up four minutes and five seconds after the first.

The first one, Gottselig's solo effort, was batted out of the air after the puck had popped out of a melee to Goalie Beveridge's right. After slamming the rubber home Johnny, in withdrawing his stick, gave the Senator goalie a mild haircut, causing him to fall to the ice, screaming with anguish as much as pain.

This episode gave the Ottawa boys an idea and they protested violently that Gottselig had done his batting from a point higher than his shoulders, which comes under the head of illegal behavior. The protesters, after saying their piece in unison, were told that the game would resume, with the Hawks leading, 1 to 0.

The second score was the handiwork of two new Hawks. Conacher made it on an assist from Leswick. Lionel took a pass from Leswick, receiving it at a point in front of and diagonally toward Beveridge's left. He steadied the disc for about two feet and then, having the Ottawa goal minder out of position, whanged the counter from a spot about four feet from the cage's brink.

It was the first time the Chicago customers had an opportunity to see Conacher produce for the Hawk offensive. In fact the credit marks earned by both Conacher and Leswick were their first on any national league ice since joining the Hawks.

Both teams were playing with a full array of talent when each of the goals was made.

Senators Get One.

Some nice defensive work by Coulter and Romnes when the Senators had Gardiner flat on the ice and were in control of the puck in front of the open cage, averted trouble in the fourth minute of the second period. Romnes dived through space and the goal-bound puck hit his outstretched arm. Coulter then batted the disc out of danger.

The Hawks weren't so fortunate some six minutes later. Touhey took the puck down the left boards in a

PROFESSIONAL SHOWS ON RING CARD TONIGHT

Nicholas Battles Johnson at Coliseum.

Professional boxing shows will be presented tonight at the Coliseum annex, 15th street and Wabash avenue; White City, 63d street and South Park, and at Marigold Garden, Broadway and Grace street.

George Nichols, former light heavyweight champion, opposes Larry Johnson, Chicago, in a 10 round bout at the Coliseum, at 180.

Johnson will have an advantage of approximately twelve pounds as George probably will not weigh more than 168. This may not help Johnson as the agreed weight is low for him. He has not made less than 185 pounds in more than a year.

Larry Best Under 180.

And then again it may, for Larry has done his best fighting when between 175 and 180 pounds. He was in the best condition in some time when he whipped Bob Moody on the Jack Sharkey-King Levinsky card at White Sox park last Sept. 18.

Since his hard fought 10 round contest with Sammy Slaughter at Mills stadium July 6, Nichols has engaged in three matches. He knocked out Martin Levandoski and beat Harry English at Muskegon, Mich. Then he lost a close 10 round encounter to Joe Knight at Madison Square Garden two weeks ago.

Jarrell Meets Rothier.

Pee Wee Jarrell, Fort Wayne, Ind., welterweight, is matched with Henry Rothier in the six round semi-final. Rother's undefeated record since he turned professional is in danger of being marred. Jarrell's clowning cost him a decision over Solly Dukelsky at the Coliseum last Monday. This will be his asset against Rothier unless it proves a liability again in the eyes of the officials. Other matches:

Joey Bozak vs. Frank Hall [6], 128.
Jimmy Richards vs. Davey White [5], 130.
Joey Palazzola vs. Pete Verri [4], 140.

Sharkey to Box Booker.

Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis, Ind., boxes Harry Booker in an eight round affair at Marigold Garden. It will be Booker's first windup bout. In his latest he fought an impressive draw with Eddie Ward at Marigold last Monday. Prior to this he knocked out Eddie Smith in two rounds at Midway arena Nov. 3.

Sharkey is the best opponent he has met at his weight, 128 pounds. After giving Freddy Miller, featherweight champion, a hard battle at Milwaukee, Wis., on Oct. 23, Sharkey defeated Young Geno at La Salle, Oct. 30, and Johnny Fitzpatrick at Milwaukee Nov. 10.

Johnny Long, Gary, Ind., light heavyweight, faces George Williams Chicago, in a five round semi-final contest. Supporting matches:

Chuck Reed and Einar Hedquist [4], 147.
Charlie Young and Danny La Marre [4], heavyweights.
Johnny Terry and Walter Statkus [4], 147.
Al Woznica and Tony Hajdich [wrestling].

Purvis Faces Weinert.

Jackie Purvis, Indianapolis, Ind., 147 pound boxer, collides with Puggy Weinert of Brighton Park in the six round feature bout at White City Purvis is the trial horse for Chicago welterweights. He has tested the ability of Solly Dukelsky, Johnny Phagan, and Young Joe Walker.

George Haberski is paired with Art Mitchell for five rounds. Eddie Ward faces Scotty Sylvano, Young Scotty meets Frank Keevil and Eddie Smith opposes Paddy Waltier at four rounds. A wrestling exhibition will bring together Tom Rolawiecs and Ed Van Herrick.

The Barney Ross-Sammy Fuller junior welterweight title bout, which was won by Ross at the Stadium last Friday, was a financial success. The Chicago Stadium Operating company made a profit of approximately $2,000. The net receipts were $16,500 of which Fuller received a guarantee of $3,000 and Ross took 37½ per cent. This amounted to $6,187. F. M.

LONDOS ARRIVES FOR MAT BOUT WITH M'MILLEN

When Jim Londos arrived in town yesterday for his heavyweight title defense encounter against Jim McMillen, scheduled at the Chicago stadium Wednesday night, McMillen returned to his farm at Antioch.

The Londos-McMillen feud dates back to their battle at Madison Square Garden two years ago. In the second match at the garden, McMillen injured Londos so badly he was unable to wrestle again for three months. Londos consented to meet McMillen again at Soldiers' field. Again Londos had to take a forced vacation because Jim mauled him around so much that he tore a ligament in the champion's back.

One of the country's roughest grapplers will make his Chicago debut on the card. He is Ernest [Dutch] Hofner, former University of Texas tackle. He will be pitted against Ray Steele, the Californian.

Another big and burly fellow who played football will be on the card. He is Frank Speers, the Georgia Tech grid star. Speers wrestles Everett Marshall of Colorado. The third preliminary brings together Dr. Karl Sarpolis and Tommy Marvin. George Zaharias meets Richard Shikat in the semi-windup position.

Quarter-Finals Open Tonight in C.Y.O. Meet

The first of quarter-final bouts in the Catholic Youth organization's amateur boxing tournament will be held tonight at C. Y. O. center, 31 East Congress street, and at De La Salle Institute, Joliet.

Thirty-two representatives of the north district will compete at the center. The same number compete in the Joliet district.

Sixteen matches will be fought at each arena, eight each in classes A and B. Winners tonight will advance to the semi-finals at C. Y. O. center Thursday. The south section quarter-finals will be presented at the center tomorrow and the west side winners box Wednesday. The 16 remaining after the semi-finals vie for titles at the Chicago Stadium on Dec. 1.

Outstanding boxers are Joe Minneci, Christy, Claude Hinderlider, Bruggman, James Webb and Jules Bracke.

Hawks' Early Drive Defeats Senators, 2-1

manner which did not seem to offer any especial threat. Then Touhey and Wieland started batting the rubber around, with the ultimate result that Touhey passed to Wieland while Gardiner was sprawled and Wieland had no difficulty in bumping in the goal. Touhey was credited with an assist and the time was recorded as 10:40.

McFayden, Romnes, and March laid down a severe barrage four minutes from the end of the second period, but the attack was repulsed with three miracle saves by Beveridge along with a couple of stops that weren't so miraculous.

Coulter was sent to the penalty box in the first minute of the third period and the ensuing attack of the Senators saw Wieland headed off by a sensational save on the part of Gardiner. There were several other threats during the Hawks' shorthandedness, but none so alarming as Wieland's.

A penalty on Bowman in the seventh minute of the third period inspired a Hawk drive that was more costly than effective, for during the activity March got a bad slash over his right eye and had to leave the game. Three stitches were necessary to close a wound on his eyelid.

A.A.U. COMMITTEE FAVORS KEEPING METRIC SYSTEM

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Retention of the metric system by the Amateur Athletic union as the standard for its championship track and field meets today appeared certain as the A. A. U. track and field committee voted unanimously to recommend that action to the national convention which opens its two day sessions tomorrow.

The committee also voted to recommend an amendment changing the 1,500 meter distance for championship meets to 1,600 meters, but with the proviso that it not be put into effect until similar action had been taken by the International Athletic federation, of which the A. A. U. is a member.

Cancela Thinks 15 Rounds Will Beat Everett

Tony Cancela, Tampa, Fla., heavyweight, and Buck Everett of Gary, Ind., will attempt to equal the 15 round performance of two featherweights, Johnny Pena and Varias Milling, when they meet in the second bout at this distance in Illinois since boxing became legalized, at the Arcadia garden tomorrow night. Pena was awarded the decision over Milling at Mills stadium last June 14 after 15 rounds of terrific fighting at top speed.

Cancela and Everett, both of whom expect to weigh 190 for their match, possess more speed than the average heavyweight. There is not much difference in their punching power, although some fans concede Everett the edge. At the same time they contend that Cancela has more speed.

Although Everett is more familiar with 15 rounds, having beaten Charley Belanger at this distance several months ago, Cancela refused the bout at 10 rounds. He demanded that it be set at 15, predicting that he will win because in two previous encounters with Everett the latter tired. Both were at 10 rounds, one at Indianapolis, Ind., and the other at Winnipeg, Man. Everett won the first. The second was called a draw.

Tony Cancela vs. Buck Everett [15], heavyweights.
King Levinsky vs. Seal Harris [3], heavyweights [exhibition].
Frank Misko vs. Bill O'Connell [6], 160.
Tony Bruno vs. Walter Jezz [6], 160.
Mickey Joy vs. Bill Reardon [4], 135.
Gene Higgins vs. Hank Bueker [4], 145.
Lenny Cohen vs. Frank Almares [4], 120.

hopes of the second place Spartans with a 10 to 7 victory in a National Professional Football league game today.

Early in the second period Burdick recovered a Portsmouth fumble on the Spartans' 31 yard line. A pass, Lefebvre to Clark, moved the ball to the 10 yard line. Lefebvre made six through the center of the line, Corzine added another yard, and on the next play carried the ball over. Clark drop kicked the extra point.

Near the end of the first half Tackwell, Cincinnati end, recovered Cadell's fumble on the Spartan 26 yard line. After the Reds had gained only 2 yards in three downs, Lee kicked a field goal from the 24 yard line.

The Spartans' offense began clicking in the fourth. Presnell received Mooney's punt on his own 18 yard line and ran it back to his 48. With Gutowsky and Presnell alternating at carrying the ball, the Spartans drove down to the three yard line, where Presnell went around right end for the touchdown. Presnell kicked goal. Two other Spartan marches were stopped near the Reds' 10 yard line.

AURORA ENTRY WINS SPRINGER SPANIEL TRIAL

Large Crowd Follows Dogs on North Shore.

Betting Bruning of Ashaba, a smart little Springer spaniel owned and handled by A. P. Moecher of Aurora, won top honors yesterday in the second annual field trial of the English Springer Spaniel Club of the Central States. More than 400 sportsmen and dog fans witnessed the trials held on the John C. Dillon estate, about two miles west of Lake Forest.

The judges, Martin H. Hogan of Barrington and Bob Becker, awarded second honors in the all age Springer spaniel stake to Benno Bruning of Ashaba, also owned by Moecher. Third place went to Jane of Avondale, owned by James Menhall of Edgerton, Wis.

Puppy Prize to Michigan Dog.

On Saturday the state of Michigan went into the win column when Fred Martinue of Benton Harbor turned loose his young Springer, Man o' War's Sweet Alice. This dog performed brilliantly to win first honors in the puppy class. B. F. Genty of Deerfield, Ill., was awarded second place in the puppy stake for the performance of his dog, Highland Pat. Glen S. Dundore's Cavalier Jack won third place.

The largest crowd that has ever attended a field trial in Chicagoland was present at 10 o'clock yesterday morning to see the first brace of Springers work in the all age stake. The spectators were so numerous that the stewards were kept busy holding the crowd at a safe distance behind the dogs, judges and the guns. Ring necked pheasants were put down on the courses to test the dogs' ability to find game, quarter their ground, retrieve fallen birds and steadiness to shot and flush.

Forgo Water Trial.

The ponds near the field trial course were frozen, thus preventing an adequate water test which would demonstrate the Springers' training in retrieving ducks. The judges were obliged to forego this feature of the trial and make their awards on the basis of upland game hunting alone.

After the running of the all age stake for Springer spaniels the cocker spaniel all age stake was staged. The little spaniels which competed received no awards, however, because the judges decided that they lacked sufficient merit in their performance to deserve ribbons.

The spectators who hiked through the fields and weed thickets also saw high class shooting by the gunners who were appointed to shoot game in front of the dogs. This squad was composed of Mason B. Phelps, Stuart A. Prosser, Leslie B. McMahon, Kenneth Curtis and W. R. Cannon.

Garibaldi to Wrestle on Coliseum Program Nov. 29

Gino Garibaldi will appear in the opening wrestling show at the Coliseum on Nov. 29. Joe Coffey had Garibaldi and Jim McMillen practically matched for Nov. 9 until the Stadium Operating corporation, which had first call on McMillen's services, stepped in with the result that McMillen wrestles Jim Londos at the Stadium Wednesday night. Coffey intends to hold McMillen to a verbal agreement should he win over Londos. Should Londos win Coffey will seek to match Garibaldi with George Zaharias for the opening windup.

Hunting Is Real Sport When the Fields Are Icy

BY BOB BECKER.

The ice hunting period of Illinois duck shooting, which usually comes during the last few weeks of the open season, is bound to give the average gunner quite a few thrills in spite of some of the obvious hardships. We advise sportsmen who haven't tried hunting mallards on the ice to try this sport, providing that the weather man sticks to his usual schedule with a solid covering of ice over the bayous and sloughs.

In order to really get the most out of decoying mallards to an ice covered slough the freeze up should be severe enough to make it possible to walk anywhere over the bottomlands. "Rubber ice," just thick enough to make it tough going with a boat, yet too weak to support a hunter means nothing but trouble and hard work.

For several years we have hunted near the Sangamon river late in the waterfowl season following a cold wave which covered all the sloughs and timber shooting holes with ice. Just about the only open water that one could find was the small area used by live decoys. These birds were able to keep a little water from freezing. The rest of the marsh was covered with ice thick enough to support any hunter and his gun.

We have noticed that immediately after a cold wave and the freezing of the marshes the mallards may sit tight and move around very little. The cold wave also may send a few birds on their way south. But within a short time after the freezeup the birds begin to move around again and some of our most interesting mallard hunting has been experienced with live decoys perched on the ice and cold winds coming out of the northwest.

Under these conditions the hunter needs boots large enough to take wool lined moccasins. Wearing these warm moccasins inside of boots is the only method that enables us to keep our feet warm. On several hunts when the ice was so heavy that there was no need for high boots we wore high-top pacs with an inner sole, a fleece lined moccasin and several pairs of socks.

Of course, only a hunter would sit out in a wind swept blind, courting pneumonia and almost freezing to death trying to hunt birds. However, with plenty of warm clothing, a thermos of hot coffee or soup and a couple of those little gadgets which generate heat in a little sack, one can be comfortable even though conditions are more ideal for skating or hockey than bird shooting.

SENATORS FILE PROTEST AGAINST TORONTO VICTORY

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Ottawa Senators of the National Hockey league announced tonight they had protested Toronto's 4-1 victory over the Senators at Toronto last night.

"In spite of instructions from Managing Director Frank Patrick," said a statement issued by T. F. Ahearn, Ottawa president, "to place markings around the goal creases and certain marks out from the net, to enable referees to spot any player interfering with the net guardian's vision, the Maple Leaf Hockey club defied such instructions and has refused to put such markings on the ice.

"Saturday night two Toronto goals were scored by men within a foot of the Ottawa goalkeeper. Before the game Coach George Boucher protested to the referee about the absence of markings, especially those which should have defined the goal crease. That official promised to have it attended to, but nothing was done."

WILDCATS TURN THEIR ATTENTION TO WOLVERINES

Kawal Lost for Saturday's Windup Game.

Northwestern's Wildcats, still reeling from the impact of two successive defeats, will begin reassembling their shattered forces today for the season's windup against Michigan Saturday at Dyche stadium.

The Purple would like nothing better than to rescue a sad season by turning back the undefeated and championship bound Wolverines, but are none too hopeful of accomplishing the task. Saturday's licking at the hands of Notre Dame will prove a hard blow to recover from in the space of one week.

Practice for the year's finale will get under way today for those physically able to hobble about. Al Kawal, star guard and the spark plug of the Wildcats' line, is definitely lost for the Wolverine game. The dislocated shoulder received Saturday will make it impossible for him to play.

There is a chance that Olson, Cruice and Duvall, the other Wildcat casualties, may recover in time to face Michigan. Art Jens, who did not play against the Irish because of injuries sustained in the Illinois game, will be back in the lineup, however.

IOWA SCORES MOST POINTS.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa football team which gave all its opponents a chance to bolster their scoring records last year, today found itself at the top of the Big Ten in points made against other conference teams.

As the result of its upset of Purdue yesterday the Hawkeyes now have 60 points, made in five conference games in none of which have they been shut out. Iowa is two points in front of Michigan which has 58 for the season thus far.

Coach Ossie Solem is again being called a miracle man in the Hawkeye camp because of the success of Iowa in conference competition this year.

The Hawkeyes returned here this morning with their hard Western conference schedule completed, but they still have to face Nebraska at Lincoln next week. Although Iowa will probably be a slight favorite over the Cornhuskers, Nebraska will not be taken lightly.

Rivalry between the two neighboring schools, whose football series dates back to 1891, is strong. The series was discontinued during the 10 years preceding 1930 when the rivalry was resumed with the Hawkeyes victorious. Nebraska has won the last two games.

MICHIGAN SEES A BATTLE.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The Michigan football squad, going into the final stage of the Big Ten campaign with three teams still challenging its domination, will begin preparations tomorrow for the contest next Saturday with Northwestern.

Tomorrow's practice will be light, but Tuesday the real effort to build a new defense will be begun. Special attention also will be given to Regeczi's kicking, as his anticipated punting duel with Ollie Olson may go a long way to determine the issue.

The team took something of a physical beating again yesterday, but the bruises will not keep the men out of the final game of the season. It is expected that Carl Savage will be available at guard and relieve the pressure on the line. It is possible also that Estel Tessmer may be given an opportunity to do his last bit of quarter backing for Michigan Saturday.

NOTRE DAME IN STRIDE?

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The oft repeated prediction that if Notre Dame hits its stride it will be unstoppable will have its test here next Saturday.

Notre Dame hopes of a victory over Southern California were raised when the Irish scored their first touchdown in five games to win, 7 to 0, from Northwestern yesterday. But two hours later when the result of the Southern California-Oregon contest came east, hope all but died. The Trojans, defeated once and tied once, returned to their old time winning form with a thumping 26 to 0 victory over the powerful Oregon eleven.

Notre Dame came through the Northwestern game without serious injury, although Nick Lukats, Ray Brancheau and Tony Mazziotti were severely bruised. Dominic Vairo, junior left end, who has missed three games with injuries, played a short time against the Wildcats and will be ready for a more active rôle Saturday.

ILLINI SEE TITLE CHANCE.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Coach Bob Zuppke will have no trouble in arousing the Illinois football squad when it begins preparations tomorrow for its final game against Ohio State at Columbus. With the highest ranking since 1929 as the certain stake and a chance, even if remote, for the championship as the stake, the Illini will be on their toes all week.

Zuppke paid tribute today to the Maroon showing yesterday and predicted that Chicago will be up higher next year if Coach Shaughnessy is able to find worthy successors to Zimmer and Sahlin.

The old time glories of the Ohio State-Illinois series seem in a fair way to be restored as advices from Columbus indicate that 35,000 or even more will see the windup there.

Football Player, 14, Is Dead After Spike Wound

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 19.—(AP)—John E. Miller, 14 years old, a sophomore at Southwest High school here, died today from complications which physicians said started from an ankle bone infection after he had been struck on the left leg by a spiked shoe in a football game on Oct. 13.

Fenwick and Loyola Clinch Section Titles

The Fenwick High school football team won the championship in the west section of the Catholic league by defeating St. Ignatius, 20 to 0, yesterday at Mills stadium.

Loyola clinched the title in the east division by beating De Paul at the latter's field, 12 to 0, while Mount Carmel took second place with an 8 to 0 victory over De La Salle. St. Rita defeated St. Leo, 13 to 0, thereby capturing third place.

The Mount Carmel-De La Salle game was played at Soldiers' field, proceeds going to the Loretto academy auxiliary fund. Attendance was estimated at 20,000.

Loyola finished its title campaign in the east division with four victories, two ties and no defeats. Mount Carmel won four, lost one and tied one, while St. Rita won three, lost one and tied two.

Pesch Starts Fenwick Scoring.

Pesch, a substitute quarter back, was the first to score for Fenwick, plunging through the center of the St. Ignatius line. Norris of Fenwick then took the kickoff and ran 60 yards for another touchdown, after which McGrath kicked the extra point. In the last quarter Hardin recovered a fumble behind the St. Ignatius goal line for a third touchdown.

In the second quarter of the game at De Paul field McCarthy of Loyola intercepted Tonelli's pass on his own 20 yard line and ran to the De Paul 40 yard line. Three plunges put the ball across the goal line, McSheehy making the final drive. In the last period McCarthy tossed a 25 yard pass to Warner, who caught the ball on the De Paul 10 yard line and scored.

Mount Carmel Given Battle.

The game between Mount Carmel and De La Salle was scoreless until the closing minutes of play, when Timmerling of Mount Carmel plunged across the goal line. Immediately afterward Heil, De La Salle center, passed over McKenna's head and the ball was downed in the end zone, giving Mount Carmel two more points.

Capt. Jackowski scored first for St. Rita by intercepting a pass on the St. Leo 25 yard line and going for a touchdown. Etten kicked the extra point. In the third quarter Zybrowski went ten yards for the second St. Rita touchdown. Lineup:

ST. MARY'S TIES SANTA CLARA, 6-6; RIOT BREAKS OUT

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 19.—(AP)—With half a dozen or more fist fights climaxing the game, St. Mary's Gaels and Santa Clara's Broncos battled to a 6-6 tie here today in their annual football contest.

An argument between rival players developed into nearly a mob fight before police could clear the field. Many of the 55,000 spectators swarmed onto the gridiron after the game and slugging broke out all over the place.

The football players themselves soon retired to respective dressing rooms, but the belligerent fans, many of whom apparently didn't know what it was all about, tossed punches anyway.

The battle subsided, however, after police whacked a few heads with their clubs.

SING SING WINS, 26-6; PROSECUTOR OFFICIATES GAME

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Sing Sing's convict football team scored its eighth victory of the season today by humbling the eleven of the City Island Athletic club, 26 to 6. The felons suffered their first defeat of the summer last Sunday.

More than 600 shivering spectators from outside the walls helped raise the prison's football gate receipts for the season to nearly $10,000.

The field judge was Prosecutor E. J. Madden, who sends his Hudson county, New Jersey, crooks to the New Jersey state prison at Trenton instead of Sing Sing.

In the opening period Alabama Pitts, Negro convict quarter back, threw a 25 yard pass to Bud Winkler, who ran 5 yards for a touchdown. Moon Byrd kicked the extra point. Midway in the second quarter Pitts intercepted a pass and raced 50 yards to a touchdown. Byrd's kick for the extra point was wide. Another interception, this time by Byrd, followed by a 40 yard scamper, put the prisoners in front, 19 to 0, Byrd again missing the extra point. Late in the game Pitts ran his own right end for 24 yards and the last Sing Sing touchdown.

Final Games May Jumble Big 10 Race

tion, they were clearly outplayed in the second half.

After Fontaine of Wisconsin had punted to Pincura early in the game the latter was halted on his own 42 yard line. Kabealo got three yards on the first play and on the next Smith scored. Pincura took the pass from center and started far around his right end. En route, he handed the ball to Smith, who cut over to the left, and after some excellent blocking by Joe Gailus, was in the clear, having no trouble in outdistancing several would-be tacklers. Vuchinich's placement for the extra point was wide of the posts.

The Badgers had an obvious advantage in play throughout the second half, making six first downs to the Buckeyes' one. They finished the game with nine first downs to Ohio's six. Wisconsin made its first march toward a touchdown in the middle of the third quarter. Taking the ball on their own 38 yard line, Schiller and Fontaine, with a lateral-forward pass involving them and Haworth, advanced to the Ohio 15 yard line. Instead of repeating their thrusts at an obviously tired Buckeye line, however, they attempted another lateral-forward, and the ball escaped Deanovich's fingers in the end zone. At the end of the third quarter, another march brought them to the Ohio State 24 yard line, but Vuchinich ended the threat by intercepting a Badger pass on the Buckeye 14 yard line.

NOTRE DAME VS. N. U.

When Andy Pilney sped around end for ten yards and a touchdown to defeat Northwestern, 7 to 0, at Dyche stadium Saturday it was the first time Notre Dame had planted the ball behind an opponent's goal since it defeated Indiana in the second game of the season.

The setup for Notre Dame's touchdown was arranged by two former Chicago high school athletes, Ed Krause of De La Salle and Tom Gorman of St. Philips. Krause blocked Olson's punt late in the second quarter and Gorman recovered for Notre Dame on the 10 yard line.

Coach Hanley of Northwestern said after the game that Pilney and Don Elser, Notre Dame full back, were the best back field men he has seen this year.

Notre Dame made thirteen first downs to Northwestern's one but was prevented from piling up a larger score by the expert punting of Olson and the fine defensive work of the Northwestern line. Late in the fourth quarter the Irish had earned a first down on the Purple's 10 yard line, but when they had concluded their fourth attempt to reach the goal they had been pushed back to the 39 yard mark.

IOWA AND PURDUE

Iowa's Hawkeyes, who made Michigan flinch when they struck, then a week later terrorized and routed Purdue, have shown the most startling improvement of all the teams in the Western conference.

They have gained the respect of so many rooters that the fans everywhere in the Big Ten circuit are satisfied that the Hawkeyes will carry on nobly in their battle with Nebraska, the Big Six champions, on Saturday.

Laws and Crayne, spectacular Iowa backs, came out of the Purdue game limping and pretty well bruised up. But they had emerged from the Michigan game in the same condition and were able to show Purdue the most dazzling attack the Boilermakers have faced in three seasons.

Purdue, while still staggering from the Iowa wallop, should be able to win its scrap for the Old Oaken bucket against Indiana at Bloomington on Saturday. Its vaunted running attack will not encounter such a stubborn line as it did in Iowa. So Purvis, Carter and the rest of the Purdue ground gainers should step lively enough past the Hoosier first line of defense to win by quite a comfortable margin.

While the long runs of Laws made possible the unexpected Iowa triumph over Purdue, it was the perfect way the Hawkeye line functioned that brought about one of the big gridiron upsets of the year.

MICHIGAN-MINNESOTA

Weather conditions and strategy accounted for the scoreless tie between Michigan and Minnesota Saturday at Ann Arbor, a tie which ended the Wolverines' string of 16 consecutive victories. The damp gridiron and chill breeze made forward passing hazardous and each eleven refused to take a chance. Only six passes were thrown, none was completed and three were intercepted, two by Minnesota.

Thus kicking was all important and the running attack was successful only between the defensive tackles. Each team used a six man defensive line, four secondary defense backs, with a fifth always in position to handle kicks. Regeczi of Michigan outkicked Lund by a slight margin, but Lund's returns balanced in ground covered. There were 34 punts, 18 by Michigan.

Defensively each line was superb. Seldom was the runner able to get away from a tackler, although Lund returned a punt 30 yards. Lund was the best ball carrier in the game. Michigan was unable to make first down twice in succession. Minnesota hooked three together in the first quarter, stopping at Michigan's 33 yard line, and got its distance twice in succession in the fourth period. This drive ended with Bevan's failure to place kick from Michigan's 25 yard line. This attempt was the only scoring threat.

McKendree Will Meet Wesleyan in Title Battle

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—McKendree and Illinois Wesleyan, co-champions in 1932, will meet for the championship of the Little Nineteen conference this season here next Saturday. McKendree set the stage for the title battle by defeating State Normal, 9 to 0, yesterday.

Both colleges enter the championship game undefeated in conference games. McKendree has a slight advantage in the standings, its record showing four triumphs, no defeats, and no ties. Wesleyan has three victories, no defeats, and one tie.

Wesleyan played a nonconference game with Western Kentucky at Bowling Green, Ky., winning, 7 to 0, over the 1932 Kentucky state champions yesterday. Wesleyan enters the title battle with a record of no defeats in ten straight league games, having finished the 1932 season with six victories, no losses, and no ties.

In addition to the championship battle between McKendree and Illinois Wesleyan and the Millikin-Bradley feud, De Kalb Teachers and Carbondale Teachers will meet at Carbondale next Saturday. These are the only three league games scheduled this week.

Three nonconference contests also are scheduled for next Saturday, chief of which is the University of South Dakota-Illinois college engagement at Springfield. Hanover, Ind., will close the season for Charleston Teachers, while Gary, Ind., meets St. Viator.

Shaughnessy Decides Big 10 IsGoodLeague

Defensively, at least, the Western conference is the toughest football league in the country, according to Clark Shaughnessy, who completed his first season of Big Ten competition Saturday when his University of Chicago Maroons lost to Illinois. The Maroons face Dartmouth at Stagg field in their season finale next Saturday.

"The fact that Chicago made only one touchdown in five conference games speaks for itself," Shaughnessy said yesterday. "We made lots of yardage in the last three games and came awfully close to touchdowns a number of times, but that doesn't count in the record book."

He'll Stick to His System.

Shaughnessy appeared undismayed about all this defensive strength, however, and said he had no plans for modifying his style of attack next year as a result of his experiences this season.

The expression "moral victory" is not popular around the Midway these days, but Maroon followers believe their team has shown remarkable improvement in the last few weeks.

"I'd like to play our conference schedule over again," Shaughnessy said.

The Maroon coach named Jim Carter and Duane Purvis of Purdue and Jay Berwanger of Chicago as the best half backs he has seen this year. Bernard of Michigan he picks as the best defensive lineman, with Wistert of Michigan a close second.

Sees Good Ends.

"On the last four Saturdays, against Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Illinois, we have encountered four fine sets of ends, but I think I'd pick Frink and Schustek of Illinois for my team," he said.

He chooses Renner of Michigan and Beynon of Illinois as passers.

EDELWEISS WINS THREE GAMES FROM BABY RUTHS

The Edelweiss team staged an upset last night in the Classic Bowling league when it won three games from the leading Baby Ruths. Ed Zajoc of Baby Ruth shot 714; Jim Frana of Olive Can totaled 703. The Bowlers Aids' 3,177 score was high team score. Scores:

300TH BIRTHDAY OF MARYLAND TO BE CELEBRATED

State and England Will Join in Exercises.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The sailing of the ships, the Ark and the Dove, which brought the first settlers to the shores of Maryland 300 years ago, will be commemorated Wednesday at exercises on both sides of the Atlantic, formally opening the Maryland tercentenary celebration.

As Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, state officials, and patriotic organizations meet in the war memorial in Baltimore, a marker at Cowes, England, will be unveiled, designating the place where the first Marylanders left in 1633 under the leadership of Leonard Calvert, brother of Cecil, the lord proprietary of the new province.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to participate in the program and give a brief talk.

An international broadcast has been arranged.

Sailed in 1633.

The Ark and the Dove sailed from Cowes on Nov. 22, 1633, and landed March 25 of the following year near where St. Mary's City is located, at the junction of the Potomac river and Chesapeake bay. The charter of Maryland had been granted on June 20, 1632.

The unveiling of the marker at Cowes will be held on the Victoria Esplanade, where a bronze tablet has been erected. Albert, Lord Fairfax, twelfth baron of Cameron, a Maryland born member of the house of lords, will [illegible] the exercises.

Lord F[illegible] will be followed by Sir Timot[illegible]den, sixth baronet of Maryland, descendant of the Lords Baltimore and Sir Robert Eden, last colonial governor of Maryland. The last speaker there will be Robert W. Bingham, United States ambassador to the Court of St. James's.

Governor Heads Party.

Baltimore's celebration will open with the assembling of Gov. Ritchie and his staff; Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore; E. Lester Muller, president of the city council; consuls of foreign nations, and officials and guests of the tercentenary commission at the mayor's office.

Led by a band playing "Maryland, My Maryland," the party will cross the city hall plaza to the war memorial, where it will be received by flag bearers of more than a score of patriotic societies. Mayor Jackson will give an address of welcome.

Herbert A. Hobson, British consul at Baltimore, will speak. His address will be followed by the British national anthem, "God Save the King." Then the gathering will turn its attention to the reception of the ceremonies in England.

Roosevelt Will Respond.

President Roosevelt, speaking from his vacation retreat at Warm Springs, Ga., is to make the first response to the English. He will be followed by Gov. Ritchie, the last speaker on the international exchange.

An extensive program has been planned by the Maryland tercentenary commission to mark the 300th anniversary of the founding of Maryland during the coming year.

NATIONAL BOARD REFUSES TO ACT AGAINST FISHBEIN

No disciplinary action will be taken by the board of trustees of the American Medical association against Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the association's journal, on charges made against him by the Chicago Medical society. This was announced yesterday by Dr. Austin H. Hayden, secretary of the board of trustees.

Censure of Dr. Fishbein was urged in a resolution passed by the society at a meeting last Tuesday for an article by him on obstetrics in the September issue of the American Mercury. In the article Dr. Fishbein compared old and new obstetrical methods. His colleagues of the society interpreted his tenor to be one of ridicule of present methods and accused him of making a derogatory attack on the medical profession. The resolution questioned his fitness for employment by the association in view of the article.

"The resolution was considered at a meeting of the trustees last Friday," said Dr. Hayden. "The board has observed the work of Dr. Fishbein for twenty years and can find no reason to question his motives in writing the article."

Dr. Fishbein has refused to discuss the matter.

EXPERT ASSAILS MONEY DOCTOR OF ROOSEVELT

Warren Diagnosis Called Wrong.

BY REUBEN CAHN.

The President's leading financial adviser, Prof. George F. Warren of Cornell university, whose calculations of the relationship between prices and gold led to the adoption of the present national monetary policy, has been attacked on a new ground.

Heretofore, Dr. Warren's critics have accepted his diagnosis as substantially correct, but have objected to his therapy. Now comes a learned diagnostician with extended experience in financial ailments who says that the body economic is sick all right, but that his X-rays, electro-cardiographs, and blood tests show that it hasn't got the disease Dr. Warren is trying to cure it of.

Dr. Rufus S. Tinker is the economic and statistical expert who now attacks the Warren proposition that the depression is caused by a deficiency of gold in the national bloodstream and that buying more gold at advancing prices will cure us of our ailments. Dr. Tinker was formerly a member of the faculty at Harvard, latterly was an expert of the United States department of commerce, and now is the consulting economist for an investment house. The results of his study were presented by Dr. Tinker to a closed meeting of economists at Boston on Saturday—which the writer was privileged to attend.

Result of Studies.

A year ago Prof. Warren and his colleague, Prof. Pearson, brought to a conclusion their study of commodity prices and gold. The authors announced that they had discovered a positive relation between the two—that when the amount of gold increased more rapidly than goods—other things being equal—prices went up. And that when gold increased less rapidly than goods, prices went down.

From this they concluded that they had the answer to the depression: Make the dollar smaller and that will raise prices; that is, have the same effect upon prices as a sudden increase in the quantity of gold. As it was, 20.67 dollars were being cut out of an ounce of gold. If 41.34 dollars were made out of an ounce of metal, there would be twice as many dollars, and, said Warren, prices would be twice as high. The day by day advancing price of gold, which we have had, was thus a resu. of the purpose to chisel more dollars out of our gold stock and thus to put up prices.

Buying Back Prosperity.

Prosperity, said Warren and Pearson, could be brought back by lifting the price level. And once we got our prices up and our prosperity back, a higher price level and prosperity could be retained by jiggling the gold price—keep prices from going down by increasing the gold price per ounce [reducing the gold content of the dollar]—keep prices from going up by reducing the gold price per ounce [increasing the gold content of the dollar].

The committee for the nation adopted the scheme early in the year—in late summer the President added Prof. Warren to the professoriat and subsequently declared the Warren scheme the nation's fundamental monetary policy—finally during the last week designating a former loyal student of Warren's as the acting secretary of the treasury. Warren now rules supreme.

Those who have long been regarded as the nation's leading monetary experts objected to the scheme as unsound and dangerous. It was unsound, they said, because it would not put up prices as had been represented.

Business by Checks.

The bulk of business in this country—9-10 of it in fact—is done by check—raising gold prices will have little effect upon prices, they pointed out. Our incomes, bank accounts and debts will be just what they were.

Only articles of foreign trade will be affected in price, said they, and even these prices need not be influenced if other countries devaluate at the same time, as they are likely to do. It was dangerous because it represented a partial repudiation of its obligations by the government of the United States—the nation's first repudiation. To the objections of the leading financial economists, Tinker adds the criticism of an able statistician.

Dr. Tucker goes after Warren not only in his conclusions, but in his premises. The whole Warren proposition rests upon an index of wholesale commodity prices which is assumed to supply an accurate measure of the cost of living and the general purchasing power of money.

Reasons for Stand.

This was found by Dr. Tucker to be an invalid assumption for the following reasons:

1. The Warren index is not even a reliable measure of wholesale prices, both because of the method employed in constructing it and because of the small number of commodities on which it is in large part based.

2. That even an accurate index of wholesale prices constructed from many commodities would not measure the purchasing power of money.

3. That the index, which should be of interest to one who would do something about prices, is the general price level.

4. And an index of the general price level shows that there is little if any conection between the supply of gold and the price level.

Uses Snyder Data.

The index from which Tucker deduced the last conclusion was one which he calculated largely from data of Dr. Carl Snyder, generally recognized as the statistician who has done

Steel Demand Improves and Output Gains

The steel industry was encouraged and operations were quickened to 28 per cent of capacity last week as interest in structural materials broadened, the railroad program became clearer, and larger miscellaneous demand appeared, according to the magazine Steel.

"Steel makers believe that before the first of the year there will be a substantial revival in buying, if not in actual production, of steel," declares the review.

"Opinion is more general that if inflation does not stimulate conversion of money into commodities, including steel, stabilization of the dollar should restore confidence by eliminating many uncertain factors. Also, it is logical to expect the lower value of the dollar in the world markets to increase attractiveness of American products abroad."

Auto Prospect Better.

Prospects have improved for buying in the automobile industry, whose consumption of steel has passed the low point of the year, though the inventories at Detroit discourage volume purchasing.

The review declares that "the government's decision not to allocate 344,000 tons of rails on which it procured bids, but to permit railroads to buy direct," is of prime importance to steel mills. The carriers are also free to buy 245,000 tons of track fastenings where they choose; the government has decided not to take bids.

It is expected that the clarification of these points may expedite steel releases, says the magazine. The Chicago and North Western is placing 65,000 tons, Louisville and Nashville 17,500 tons, Atlantic Coast Line 5,000 tons, Missouri-Kansas-Texas 4,700 tons. The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific is trying to get court sanction to buy 35,000 tons.

Structural Awards Higher.

The increase in structural shape awards to 28,000 tons shows the cumulative effect of public projects. Thirty-three thousand tons will be placed for three projects in New York.

"The government also has decided to try the experiment of bridging the Atlantic with seadromes," reports the magazine. "Its $1,500,000 appropriation for a quarter section of one unit insures early release of 6,000 tons; and if successful, 125,000 tons ultimately to complete the project."

The navy is buying 16,000 tons of plates for two cruisers and two gunboats. An affiliate of the Socony-Vacuum corporation is taking bids on the first oil pipe line to appear in months.

Considered by districts, steel works operations last week rose 11 points to 32 per cent at Buffalo, 10 to 31 at Youngstown, 8 to 45 at Detroit, and 8 to 46 at Wheeling; fell 2 points to 21 at Pittsburgh, 5 to 70 in New England, and 1 to 17½ in eastern Pennsylvania, and remained at 46 in Cleveland, 29 at Chicago, and 20 at Birmingham.

Limit on Price Filing.

New prices must be filed today if they are to go into effect Dec. 1 for first quarter sales.

"Steel producers, however, apparently are less concerned over higher prices than in getting volume at present levels remunerative," says Steel. "In the heavy finished products, including plates, shapes, and bars, no changes are anticipated. Wire rods, tin plate, nails, boiler tubes, and possibly billets are among the few products likely to be advanced."

RUSSIAN TRADE MUST BE 2-WAY, SLOAN ASSERTS

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A belief that the United States cannot expect to sell huge quantities of goods to Russia unless it is prepared to buy something in return was expressed today by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors.

Sloan, saying he did not believe that "just because we are going to send an ambassador to Russia means that we are going to get hundreds of millions of dollars in business," continued:

"We have learned one lesson in international relationships since the war, and that is that a nation cannot sell unless it buys. In other words, the international balance must be discharged through goods, not exchange."

Sloan discussed Russian recognition informally during an interview, at which he announced a new engineering development that will give next year's automobiles a "knee action" in the front wheels.

The front axle will be eliminated entirely and the wheels will be attached independently to the chassis, he said, so that when one wheel goes over a bump it will absorb the shock without communicating it to the other wheel.

TWO FACTORS HELP CHICAGO RETAIL TRADE TO HOLD ITS ADVANCE

Two factors contributed materially in maintaining the Chicago retail and wholesale markets recently at a pace somewhat ahead of the same period a year ago, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

A pair of contemporaneous furniture shows and the early opening of the Christmas buying season kept local wholesalers and retailers as busy as they could have hoped for. In addition, jobbers in underwear reported exceptionally good demand.

The chief difficulty in the underwear field appears to be the labor limitations of the NRA. Although orders are far behind and raw material is available, inability to work night shifts finds manufacturers and jobbers with heavy back orders. Seasonal merchandise continues to move in heavy volume.

Railroads Increase Supply of Surplus Cars

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 19.—The railroads increased their supply of surplus freight cars in October, according to the American Railway association. The statement shows that they had 385,137 surplus cars in repair on Oct. 31, compared with 376,819 on Oct. 14. Surplus coal cars numbered 110,730 on Oct. 31, a decrease of 96 from Oct. 14. Surplus box cars increased 9,041 to 227,761, stock cars 1,039 to 18,663, and refrigerator cars 23 to 9,796.

SENATOR HOLDS OIL PRICE FIXING BOOSTS PROFITS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—(AP)—As the petroleum administrative board prepared for the opening of hearings tomorrow on proposed price schedules, Senator Dickinson [Rep., Ia.], tonight charged in a statement that price-fixing would enable oil companies to make huge profits.

Secretary Ickes, oil administrator, said that receipt of 500 and 700 briefs for consideration indicated the magnitude of the task before the board which called the hearings to give both opponents and advocates of price-fixing an opportunity to present their views.

"We desire to proceed in fullest fairness and equity toward the industry and the consuming public," Ickes said.

Dickinson, one of the few Republicans who have been publicly criticizing the administration's recovery program, said the oil operators already had increased their income by $375,000,000 from price boosts in the last three months, and that a study of their books would show price-fixing was "not necessary for their prosperity."

Puts Liquor Investment by Jan. 1 at $340,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 19.—Investments of approximately $340,000,000 in real estate, plant, equipment and rolling stock will have been made by the whisky and wine industries in the United States before Jan. 1. The figure, based on a recent survey—the first of its kind—was announced today by G. M. Vanderbeek, managing director of the National Wine and Spirits show to be held next month.

DOLLAR ACTION IS WHOLE SHOW IN WALL STREET

Speculative Traders on Sidelines.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 19.—Speculative Wall street continues to stand blankly by while Washington puts the dollar through its antics on the foreign exchange marts. The monetary unit has been doing some weird things in the week just ended, but about all it has meant to the stock trading community is a lot of headaches. Bull and bear alike remain as deeply befuddled as ever over the outlook and as little inclined to venture commitments on the possibilities.

Brokers agree that prevailing opinion leans to the constructive side on the whole, but that the continued flight of capital abroad and other uncertainties of the situation keep the fact from showing up very convincingly in the market returns. In other words, the average trader is afraid to back his judgment to the extent of buying.

A One Day Spurt.

While price averages are up on the week the market reacted in four out of the six trading sessions and barely succeeded in keeping afloat in the fifth when the combined average gain amounted to only about a third of a point. Virtually all the improvement netted was achieved in a one day spurt on Thursday—prompted by a sudden rejuvenation of some of the stock currency inflation talk and allied rumors that have been knocking about for so long.

The soviet recognition announcement Friday afternoon failed to create more than a momentary stir, having already been discounted several times over. The visits of Al Smith, J. P. Morgan, Myron Taylor of U. S. Steel, and Bernard A. Baruch to the White House were mildly reassuring to those most anxiously concerned over "sound money," but it likewise baked no chestnuts, speculatively speaking. Commentators agreed that the event was "smart politics," intended probably to give the impression to the country at large that the "new deal" administration, for all its experimentation, was keeping in touch with conservative leaders of the financial world, but there was no general disposition to attach any deeper significance to the episode.

Trade News More Cheerful.

The week's trade news was a bit more heartening on the whole, retail business showing some improvement with the weather and more stable prices, and the steel mills picking up a bit, but these considerations were practically overlooked in the general concern over the dollar's gyrations.

20 Charters for Home Loan Groups Given

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The newest of the government's banking systems took form today with the announcement that 20 charters had been granted to federal savings and loan associations to provide new funds for home financings.

John H. Fahey, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank board, said these associations were being formed in seven states, and that preliminary approval had been given to 86 more in 26 states.

The home loan board, established to provide funds for home building, is modeled after the federal reserve system. Each of the savings and loan associations will be members of the home loan system much as commercial banks are members of the reserve systems.

Sees Need for Financing.

"Due to the practical withdrawal of many insurance companies and commercial banks from the home finance field, hundreds of thousands of American homes from now on must be financed through other existing institutions which are in a position to extend loans of sufficiently long term to meet actual home credit conditions," Fahey said in a statement.

"The federal home loan bank system is making hundreds of millions of dollars available in communities, both through established home finance institutions which are already members of the system, and likewise through the organization of local federal savings and loan associations as sound partnerships between private and federal ownership stock, and private, local management of their operations.

"During the past five years, it is estimated that in actual shortage of more than 800,000 family housing units has developed in the United States. Many communities are not only short of homes, but utterly lacking in any form of home financing agencies, with all that they imply in making money available for construction, repairs and maintenance and the employment of workers in the building industries.

Cites Need of Cities.

"A still greater number of communities, including many of the larger cities, are not adequately served by existing institutions."

Fahey said the new federal associations would serve to fill this deficiency, and explained that he had appointed 14 men of long experience in the home credit field to organize the associations. These men are now at work.

Pennsylvania Road Has Fewer Stockholders

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The number of stockholders of the Pennsylvania railroad on Nov. 1 totaled 238,890, a decrease of 10,702 from the same date last year.

RESERVE CITY BANKERS HAVE REFORM PLANS

Favor Commission to Direct Changes.

A comprehensive program of banking reform to eradicate the present admitted weaknesses of the system and to insure safety for depositors is recommended in a report made public yesterday by the Association of Reserve City Bankers.

The report, the result of six months' study by a special commission of the association, urges that such a program be substituted for the permanent deposit guaranty plan which was enacted as part of the Glass-Steagall bill by the last congress. To draft such a legislative program the report recommends the creation of a commission similar to the Aldrich commission of 1907 whose work resulted in many fundamental banking reforms and paved the way for the federal reserve system.

Condemns Deposit Guaranty.

The report roundly condemns the permanent guaranty as fraught with dangers to the banking system, but urges that banks coöperate in the temporary plan which becomes effective Jan. 1. The latter guarantees deposits up to $2,500 and covers an estimated 86½ per cent in number of all deposits.

John H. Hogan, vice president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, is chairman of the commission which made the study. Two other Chicago bankers, Walter Lichtenstein, vice president of the First National bank, and Laurence H. Robbins, vice president of the Northern Trust company, served on the committee of 23 members. The commission's membership represented all the 12 reserve cities in the country. E. H. Kemmerer, research professor of International finance at Princeton university, acted as economic advisor to the group.

Endorses Two Plans.

The committee endorses both the temporary deposit plan and the administration's program for strengthening capital structures of banks as necessary to public confidence.

The report does not include any recommended program of banking legislation, but it was stated that such proposals will be made in the next bulletin to be issued by the association.

The report consists principally of a detailed analysis of the parmanent guaranty plan. The unlimited assessments for an indefinite period to which member banks are liable is equivalent to signing a "blank check" on every bank stockholder most on the problem of the general price level in this country.

The absence of any conection between the supply of gold and the general price level [Warren's assumption to the contrary is back of the present gold buying policy] was emphaized as follows by Dr. Tucker:

"The low point in prices came in the year 1843, five years before the California gold discoveries; the next low point came in 1896, ten years after the Johannesburg gold rush; the high points occurred when the gold standard was suspended in this country, except in 1920, when most of the outside world was off the gold standard and it was consequently not in operation in spite of our legal adherence to it.

Other Factors Present.

"Other than gold factors have had effect upon our price levels," he observes. "Aside from cyclical, or wartime increases in the price level, there seems to have been a permanent increase following the introduction of bank checks as currency on a large scale as a result of the bank act of 1844 in England and the national bank act of 1863 in this country. The federal reserve act of 1913 and the measues taken by foreign countries to substitute bank notes for gold and to dilute their reserves had a similar effect."

Dr. Tucker further brought strong evidence to establish that a rising trend of prices, so ardently sought after in Washington, would not mean either prosperity for the bulk of the population or increasing business activity.

Overextended Credit.

"The downturn in prices followed collapse of an overextended credit situation," said Dr. Tucker, "is, of course, destructive to profits and employment, but it obviously has nothing to do with changes in the gold supply or in the long time trend of prices. We have had major crises when the long time trend of prices was upward [1797, 1808, 1857, 1907, 1914] and when the long trend of prices was down [1839, 1873, 1920].

"Crises can and should be prevented or minimized by preventing overexpansion of credit, but the measure of credit expansion is not the commodity price level, and the overexpansion of credit has very little to do with the gold supply.

Long Period of Stability.

"This present depression came after five years of unusually stable wholesale commodity prices, and, in fact, the most important cause of the crisis was the fact that central banks of many countries, including our own, had deliberately attempted to prevent commodity prices from declining, and had thereby brought about, or prevented the removal of, an excessive debt structure which finally collapsed of its own weight."

Several economists of wide reputation who heard Dr. Tucker's presentation said that it completely annihilates the Warren theory. They doubted, however, that it would lead the administration to abandon or modify its adherence to the Warren program.

'ARCHITECTS TO DISCUSS HOUSING AT JOINT SESSION

RELATIVE STABILITY OF U. S. BONDS DENIED BY INSURANCE LEADER

The popular belief that the market value of government bonds is more stable than the securities of high grade corporations is disputed in a message sent by Franklin B. Mead, executive vice president of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company, to representatives of the company. Mr. Mead cited the record of United States Treasury 4¼'s, 1952, during the period from January, 1929, to November, 1933, as compared with the range of bonds of one of the high grade utility corporations.

The comparison disclosed a wider fluctuation in the movements of the government bonds than in those of the utility company.

"From June, 1931, to January, 1932," Mr. Mead asserted, "United States Treasury 4¼'s, 1952, fell 15 points, yet nobody feared for their ultimate recovery, while at that particular time they were dropping more rapidly than some other types of security. Naturally this does not mean that government bonds are insecure in any sense of the word, but it serves to demonstrate the relative stability of other high grade securities, such as those held by American life insurance companies for the protection of their policyholders."

SHOPKEEPER IS MADE WEALTHY DESPITE SELF

Given Loop Corner to Pay for Debt.

BY AL CHASE.

How a Chicago storekeeper of moderate means was made a millionaire in spite of himself during the early forties was told yesterday by George C. Olcott, editor and publisher of Olcott's Land Values Blue Book of Chicago. He recalled three great panics Chicago had gone through—1873, 1893, and 1929—and pointed out that in all depressions people felt that the eclipse of land values would be permanent.

In those times real estate could not be sold by despondent owners and in consequence of their inability even to give away their property in adverse times, many men were made rich in spite of themselves.

An Involuntary Millionaire.

"Thus Tuttle King, with extreme reluctance, took a deed to the northwest corner of Dearborn and Washington streets in the early forties from a debtor who was unable to pay in cash for a small bill of goods," said Mr. Olcott.

"But he was so angry at the debtor for giving him such a poor substitute for cash that he wouldn't speak to him for six months afterward. He dropped the deed in his trunk as a scrap of paper of little or no value.

"Some years later he passed a subdivision and the lot stakes reminded him of his deed. He resurrected it from the bottom of his trunk and put it on record. Later on, having become a millionaire as a result of his ownership of the corner, his advice was sought by shrewd investors in real estate."

Rise Always Follows.

Mr. Olcott spoke of the series of studies on the trend of real estate values in Greater Chicago during the past century sponsored by the Chicago Title and Trust company and resulting from research by Homer Hoyt.

"After the panic of 1873 and again after the panic of 1893, just as after our recent crash in 1929, there seemed to be no hope for the future of Chicago real estate," said Mr. Olcott. "But this stage always has been followed by periods of rising business activity."

GERMANY'S CASH MORATORIUM AID TO EXPORT TRADE

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—On the day that Germany invited representatives of her creditors to discuss a prolongation of the transfer moratorium in Berlin on Dec. 5, new trade returns which were published showed the German export surplus is increasing.

October trade netted a surplus of 98,000,000 marks, or nearly $40,000,000 at today's rate, compared with 84,000,000 marks a year ago, when this sum was worth only about $20,000,000.

Germany has been able to increase her exports due to the scrip system on foreign currency frozen in Germany. When a German exporter finds he cannot compete with a foreign rival selling in currency like the dollar or pound, he can help his customer pay in frozen marks, which are 25 to 30 per cent cheaper than the official rate.

Frozen marks are held here for foreign creditors unable to transfer cash out of Germany under the provisions of the moratorium and the Nazi law forbidding the export of German money. The creditor who needs cash sells frozen marks to a customer of a German exporter, thus helping to finance German exports.

German authorities assert that the improvement in October trade is only temporary, and that Germany will not agree to drop or even restrict the moratorium and will scarcely change the scrip system introduced for the benefit of foreign creditors, not referring to the advantage it gives the German exporter.

Wool Cloth Market Idles as Retail Sales Improve

The wool cloth market is now in "a pronounced lull," largely because of seasonal factors, says the New York Wool Top Exchange service. However, retail sales of women's wear improved this week, with the result that manufacturers reduced stocks and took a firmer attitude on prices.

INSURANCEHEADS DIFFER ON BOOK VALUE OF ASSETS

Commissioners to Act on Convention Scale.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The "convention value" fiction which insurance companies have been following in reporting their condition in the last two years promises to stir up a row when the National Association of Insurance Commissioners meets next month.

It is upon the basis of the recommendations of the association, the unofficial arbiter of such matters in the field, that insurance companies will prepare their statements for 1933.

The listing of assets at "convention values" has been a matter of expediency for insurance companies during the depression. Securities have been carried on the books of the companies at the market values on June 30, 1931, thus giving insurance company assets a much greater book value than that given by the franker stock exchange quotations.

Failures Disclose Weakness.

Chicago's two big life insurance failures—the Illinois Life and National Life of U. S. A.—have given examples of how such fictitious listing of assets proves a cloak for actual insolvency.

There is a strong sentiment among insurance men and many of the commissioners that the companies should throw off the obvious fiction of showing 2½ year old quotations and give the actual market value of their assets. This would mean that all assets be listed at market values as of the close of business on the last day of the year.

The use of arbitrary values such as now followed has been defended on the grounds that market prices do not represent intrinsic values. The system's defenders, conspicuous among whom has been Commissioner George S. Van Schaick of New York, declared that the contention is equally applicable in boom times. It would be ridiculous to list assets at peak bull market quotations in boom times, they declare.

Want Pretense Abandoned.

The question resolves itself into whether the June 31, 1931 quotations give a fair indication of actual value. It is certain such values could not be realized and some commissioners believe that all pretense should be thrown aside inasmuch as the public is wise to the situation anyhow. General realization that the book values of insurance do not represent real values has been brought home by such failures as have taken place.

An unsuspecting person inspecting the books of either the National Life of the U. S. A. or the Illinois Life a few days prior to the receivership actions could not have found grounds for suspicion of insolvency.

Will Decide Issue.

The degree of frankness followed in this year's statements will be decided upon when the commissioners meet in New York Dec. 5-6. A compromise plan with a not too rigid yardstick of values will probably be adopted. There appears to be general agreement that bonds not paying interest and stocks yielding no dividends need special treatment.

Ernest Palmer, Illinois insurance superintendent, who inherited the National Life and Illinois Life situations when he took office a few months ago, has been a leader in the movement to require franker statements from companies. He may be expected to throw his influence against "convention value" system.

U. S. OIL FIRMS PLAN MARKETING UNIT IN FAR EAST

New York, Nov. 19.—The Socony-Vacuum corporation announces in a letter to stockholders a plan to organize a new company for the purpose of merging the marketing facilities of the company in the far east with the refining and producing facilities of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The new company, to be known as the Standard-Vacuum Oil company, will be incorporated in Delaware if sufficient stockholders approve the merger. Proxy blanks accompanied the letter.

Week's Heavy Engineering Contracts Are $36,951,000

New York, Nov. 19.—Heavy engineering contracts awarded in the week ended Nov. 13 totaled $36,951,000, the Engineering News-Record reports.

LETTERS

Land Bank Bonds.

Chetek, Wis., Nov. 10.—Relating to your article headed, "U. S. Ignores Security Act in Bond Selling," I write to say that I was one who, through my admiration for President Wilson and my belief in Charles Evans Hughes, bought joint stock land bank bonds in the belief that they were "instrumentalities of the United States government."

I purchased $10,000 for the Southern Minnesota Joint Stock Land bank bonds—all the money I had in the world. Then our government dismisses responsibility. I am sending you a letter and statement of the bank. It looks just as good as the Florida land ventures. The bonds are quoted at 18. MRS. G. N.

Dollar Ballyhoo.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 11.—Why does your paper lend its help to the ballyhoo now being handed out regarding the depreciation of the dollar? Why do you let your readers believe that the administration is putting something over on the chancellories of Europe with its inflation program?

Can you visualize the anguish in the British treasury as they watch their debt to America shrink at the rate of two million pounds a day.

Furthermore, every cent the pound climbs results in the transfer of additional capital from American to English control, thereby giving more strength to the pound and weakness to the dollar.

Maybe we'll wake up some day when we read the headlines, "England Returns to Gold Standard." HOWARD REEP.

P. S.—If the country ever issues medals for valor to civilians in time of peace, I nominate Carey Orr.
